a short leave last week and spent a couple of days with Mr. and Mrs. W. Hodge.

The W.A. went to Mrs. Johnston's home in Georgetown, Friday afternoon, to quilt a quilt for the Red Cross.

LAC Gilbert Hunt, of Jarvis, and Trooper Tom Dickenson, of Toronto, were home over the week end.

L.O.L. Stewarttown, went to Grand Valley Saturday, and took part in the 12th of July celebrations there.

ASHGROVE

During our pastor's vacation services will continue as usual except on July 27th when there will be no church service. On July 13th Rev. J. B. Moore, of Milton United Church was the pastor in charge while on July 20th, Rev. R. C. Todd, of Georgetown United Church will be the guest preacher.

Those who had the privilege of attending the District Institute picnic at Mile's Park report a splendid time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Westby, of Toronto, called on a few Ashgroves one day last week. Mr. Westby was on his last leave before leaving for overseas.

Harold Baron is enjoying a few days holidays with Herbert and Billie Wilson.

Mrs. O. Marshall of Central Butte, Saskatchewan was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brownridge last week.

Miss Swanson, of Rockwood, visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Austin.

We are pleased to know that Mrs. Horace Barnes was able to return home from the hospital.

Mrs. O. Brownridge who suffered a severe ankle sprain recently has been enjoying an enforced rest at her brother's home at Limehouse.

Hazel and Mildred Reed, of Shelburne, are holidaying this week with their cousin Gladys Ruddell.

WITH THE BOWLERS

Thursday night's mixed jitney was well attended by the members of both sexes, and two out of town visitors were also welcomed—Mr. George Reid, of Niagara-on-the-Lake and Dr. C. E. Blehn, of Windsor.

The high-scoring lady was Mrs. W. G. Bell, and men's winner was Mr. Fred Thompson, each of whom took home "the sugar."

Men's doubles tournament was played through its fifth 21-end game on Monday night last. Three greens in use. Elmer Thompson and S. T. Faram were winners over K. M. Langdon and Harold Cleave; W. G. Bell and S. P. Chapman defeated Ernie Thompson and P. B. Coffin; while W. C. McDowell and Art Reeve out-pointed Fred Thompson and J. Richardson.

On Tuesday the ladies held their usual afternoon and evening play, while on a green not in use by the above, Fred Thompson and W. G. Bell were unsuccessful in their challenge to lift the Grant Trophy held by P. B. Harrison and W. G. McDowell.

NEW ACTIVE-SERVICE LIST TO BE PUBLISHED SOON

We are planning on publishing a new list of men on active service with army, navy and air force in a forthcoming edition of the Herald. Relatives and friends are requested to check with us and make sure we have the correct number, address, etc. of those they are interested in, in order to make this list as near correct as possible. Remember it is used as a mailing guide by many organizations sending comforts to the boys from this district.

Scripture Text
 "Moreover, all these curses shall come upon thee, and shall pursue thee, and overtake thee, till thou be destroyed; because thou hast hearkened not unto the voice of the Lord thy God, to keep his commandments and his statutes which He commanded thee." Deut. 28: 45.

Courage and Patience—

plode, if you ask me," observed the Newspaper Man.

"I know," replied the old chap a little testily. "But what a hole it's made! Ruined the best bed of lettuce and carrots you could ever hope to see!"

"That's something I can begin to understand, too. I was almost in tears myself yesterday, for I went across to the allotment—having been away from it for two days, owing to fire-duty—and found, in place of my two baby marrow plants, two brown and dead sprouts. A bitter frost in the night had slain them. I sat down on the mound, utterly crushed; and along came the Gardening Partner. In face of his six feet of bluff masculinity I tried to cheer up, fearing harsh ridicule.

"I was only just mourning the marrows," I explained. "They're dead." His face clouded and he sat down beside me.

"I know," he said. "I saw it yesterday and it depressed me for the whole evening."

Tragedy in Miniature
 Crazy, isn't it? But I think one puts so much into this allotment business, so much hard work and hope. The little sprouting things seem so brave and jolly, and it's like a tragedy in miniature when they perish. Anyway, my respect for the Gardening Partner increased marvellously in those few seconds of mutual grief.

How odd this account of our lives must seem to you over there! Perhaps War seems a long way off—as it once did to us. In that distant and almost mythical time of four or five years ago we used to hear about wars: news on the radio, perhaps about China. Then about some corner of Europe; and still it was almost as distant as the moon. One felt sorry for the folk concerned, of course, but in a detached kind of way. (Perhaps we even had a suspicion that, bad as it was, they didn't feel quite so intensely as we might feel if it happened to us. But that was one thing which just couldn't happen, of course. These were the things which like crimes in the newspapers—always happened to Other People.

And it has happened to us, strange though it seems; and pain and discomfort and grief (and that Monday-ishness for the luckier ones) have come right home. It's an extraordinary experience. We shall never get that Moonfolk feeling again, I'm sure. How could we? Of course, there are still a few people, even over here, who kid themselves along, but they're liable to wake up any day. Just a few who help themselves to somebody else's chair and tell the world how they'd run this old war—you know the type. The intolerant speculate boldly on what may happen to them before long; the tolerant regard them as a scourge inseparable from all human communities and go out to do a bit of digging to work it off.

Ludicrous Incongruity
 The other night, on fire-duty, I went out into the garden during an Alert, just to have a look round and make sure that no chink of light was showing anywhere. It was a beautiful night and the sky was thick with stars. I could hear planes droning overhead, and I stared upwards, expecting their shapes to blot out the starlight for a moment. Great beams of searchlights crawled across the sky; I could hear distant booms and, in the intervals, the voices of Wardens talking quietly near at hand. I stood on the steps of the ugly Victorian villa which is now our headquarters, and I marvelled at the incongruousness of it all: that house built for smug security—and now filled with typewriters and bustle all day, and fire-watchers all night.

There was nothing Mondayish about that, believe me. It was one of those sharp, half-ironical, half-ludicrous impressions which remain as long as anything can be remembered. The iron gate and the Victorian hedge outlined in black against the paler shade of the road; the pointed fir-trees . . . and above them those beams of light and those zooming machines trailing across the quiet of the night. And somewhere there were people standing up to it all with incredible courage—and patience. Little ants of humans performing miracles of endurance and bravery not so many miles away; and this great lump of rock and earth spinning round toward the light—and another Monday. So perhaps we're quite wrong, after all, to feel like that about another new day. It's never quite like yesterday; not when you look at it like that, is it?

STEWARTTOWN

At their July meeting held last week the Esqueving W.I. quilted a quilt made and donated by Mrs. Walter Lawson for war victims in England. Mrs. DeVries and family, Mrs. Lawson, Mrs. Walter Lawson and Donald, Mrs. R. Harris and Evelyn, attended the District W.I. picnic held in Miles Park on Thursday. The children were greatly taken with the animals they saw there, particularly the monkeys and donkeys.

Miss Christine Semple, of Toronto, was in Stewarttown calling on old friends, recently.

Gunner and Mrs. David Hodge came from Sussex Military Camp, N.B., on
