"The Lord is My Fuehrer"

By Edward E. Grud, Managing Editor,
The National Jewish Monthly,
Published by B'nai Brith

"Not you, Mr. Hitler, but the Lord is my Fuehrer."
"Whoever is an anti-Semite and persecutes the Jews can never be a real Christian."
"There isn't a single Nazi leader in the country today who has not cut himself off from the Christian faith."
"Assertions like these sprinkle on of the most amazing interviews ever granted in a Nazi concentration camp — for that is where it took place. The speaker: Rev. Martin Niemöller, former leader of the German Confessional Church, and the man who openly defied Hitler until his arrest four years ago. The interviewer: Leo Stein, a German Jewish fellow prisoner."

Mr. Stein has just arrived in this country, and he tells his startling story of 22 months with Martin Niemöller in the forthcoming May issue of The National Jewish Monthly, published by B'nai Brith. It is the first direct word on the famous German pastor received in this country. In years, and the first exposure of Mr. Niemöller's views on the Jewish question since he was thrown into prison in Germany.

It is a thrilling and enheartening story, for it not only proves that four years of Nazi torture have failed to break the Christian convictions of a great German church leader, but it demonstrates that despite everything there is as Erika Mann claimed in her recent book, "another Germany" — a better Germany, that hates and loathes Hitlerism and only waits in cowed silence for the opportunity to smash it forever.

Stein first met Niemöller at the infamous Moabit Prison, where they shared a cell. "I heard those poor creatures cry out like wounded animals, I knelt down and prayed to God. I never prayed so fervently in all my life. I almost collapsed. Without my prayers, I could not have lived through the next day."

Stein had formerly studied ancient ecclesiastical law, and had many talks with Niemöller on religion. "Jesus Christ," Niemöller told him, "the founder of Christendom, was a Jew. I love the Old Testament more than anything else. Hitler is trying to denounce this Testament as 'Jewish,' but there is no Christianity without it. Whoever is an anti-Semite and persecutes the Jews can never be a real Christian. Hitler is the true anti-Christ."

Stein immediately asked Niemöller why he had ever joined the Nazi party, and the pastor explained that he had been betrayed. He had had an audience with Hitler, he revealed, in 1932, shortly before the latter became Chancellor. "Hitler promised me," he told Stein, "on his word of honor, to protect the Church, and not to issue any anti-Church laws. He also agreed not to allow pogroms against the Jews. On the other hand, I hated the growing athletic movement, which was fostered by the Social Democrats and the Communists. Their hostility toward the Church made me pin my hopes on Hitler for a while. I am paying for that mistake now, and not me alone, but thousands of other persons like me."

After Hitler came to power, and Niemöller realized he had been betrayed, he preached openly against the Nazis from his pulpit in an exclusive church in Dahlem, a Berlin suburb. It was there that he thundered forth his defiance: "Not you, Mr. Hitler, but the Lord is my Fuehrer." Because of his enormous following, even the Nazis were afraid to touch him for a long time, but finally he was seized and thrown into Moabit.

A super-patriotic German nationalist, Niemöller was one of the most distinguished submarine commanders in the German navy during the First World War. He was the idol of thousands of men, and has countless followers in Germany even today. He told Stein that the average German is also super-patriotic, and that when a few thousand Jews from Eastern Europe settled in Germany during the 1920's, Hitler craftily stimulated the hatred of the masses against them, as strange. "Instead of feeling sorry for these miserable refugees," Niemöller said, "some people begrudged them the little they had. Today, Hitler persecutes Jews and Christians alike. There isn't a single Nazi leader in the country who has not cut himself off from the Christian faith."

"German Christians" are just heathen, who see in Hitler the Messiah; they have made him their Jesus Christ."

Niemöller suffered for his convictions, and the fearless way he openly expressed them. He did pastoral work at Sachsenhausen, protected and defended fellow prisoners, and spoke openly with Jews — all strictly forbidden by the concentration camp officials.

One day, before his very eyes, a guard shot and killed a Jew who had collapsed from overwork. "I saw Niemöller trembling," Mr. Stein writes. "Tears rolled down his cheeks, and he said — loud enough for the Nazis to hear him: 'Lord, forgive them, for they don't know what they do.' One of the guards who had heard Niemöller walked up to him and gave him a dirty look. Into the barracks with you," he cried, pushing him.

"The same guard slapped Niemöller a few days later, taunting him: 'Where is your dirty God now? Why doesn't he help you get out of this concentration camp?' A moment later he shouted: 'Salute Heil Hitler!' Niemöller stood silent. The guard slapped him again. 'Salute Heil Hitler!' he roared.

"Niemöller remained silent, but just then another prisoner — a Jew — stepped out of line, and the guard rushed away to beat the man to the ground. All the prisoners realized that the Jew had done that deliberately, in order to lure the brutal guard away from Niemöller."

Niemöller never lost his faith in the final defeat of Fascism. He told Stein that all the Nazi prison guards and officials used pseudonyms, because they feared their ultimate overthrow, and hoped to escape the consequences when the German people tried to call them to account for their misdeeds.

"In the Germany to come," Niemöller assured Stein, "the Church will have to make good for so many things. I only hope it won't take too long until then."

When Stein was released from the concentration camp to leave for America, he had a final interview with Niemöller.

"When you are abroad," the pastor told him, "tell the world what you have seen. Let them know about the brutalities practised in the concentration camps. You may also tell them about me. I am not afraid of what might happen to me. . . . We may see each other again — when there are no laws and discriminations against Jews anymore, no more pogroms and political executions. Good-bye, my son."
