RECONSECRATION WEEK

To-day, September 10th, marks the opening of the third year of war, and the Government of Canada has proclaimed the week of September 10-17 as "a week of reconsecration of the Canadian people to the democratic cause against Nazi tyranny."

It is a week in which we should take stock of ourselves—as a nation, as a province, as a town, and as individuals, to see just what we have done, what we are doing, and what we shall do in this year to come to help bring this war to a successful conclusion.

Has Georgetown been playing her part? In our judgment, she has, and nobly so. Hundreds of her citizens have answered the call to the colours. More are leaving every day to join the army, the air force and navy and play their part as fighting men. Others are working at less obvious, though nontheless important roles in local plants where war materials are being produced.

Our Red Cross Society is turning out vast quantities of supplies for hospitals and for British bomb victims. Our citizens have given generously to the Canadian War Services and Red Cross campaigns, to the Herald War Victims' Fund, and to the tag days for Greek War Relief, Navy League, Soldiers' Comforts and Legion war work. The War Loan was oversubscribed by a substantial amount, and War Savings Certificates are being bought every day to help provide funds for the war.

What shall we do in the year to come?

No one can accurately foretell the sacrifices that will have to be made—the dollars which must be donated and lent, the men who must leave their peacetime jobs to join the ever-increasing roles of the armed forces, the things those who remain must do without. Come what may, we know that Georgetown will continue to do her best in all these things, as she has done before and that, in future years, we shall be able to look back and say "We did our best!"

ANOTHER FUND

It is coincidental that as this third year of war begins, the Herald inaugurates another new Fund, which we sincerely hope will gain the support of every one of our readers.

Last year the Soldiers' Comforts' Committee was organized as an adjunct of the local Red Cross Society, and given an initial donation of $100 from the Society's funds to get it started. The purpose of the Committee is just what the name implies—to provide our soldiers overseas with some of the little things that they cannot obtain for themselves—cigarettes and tobacco, chocolate bars, tea, etc. More than this, it shows that we back home are thinking of them—and thinking of them in a practical way, by sending along a parcel every now and then.

The work of this Committee has been greatly increased in the past few months, since the Lorne Scots Regiment arrived in England, and there are now over 120 names on the list. It is no small undertaking now to send a parcel to the boys. Even to send cigarettes once costs $1.20, and to add a few other things to the parcels increases the cost proportionally.

So far the funds have been raised by tag days, baking sales, and a few private donations of money and goods. Now the time has come when the support of the public in general is needed to enable the Committee to carry on its work. We hope that everyone will try to help the Fund by a donation, no matter how small, and that this Fund, like our Herald War Victims' Fund, will keep on growing and growing and growing.

It's up to you!

COMING EVENTS

"Coming events cast their shadows before"—at least so a number of our readers seem to believe, and we were the object of much good-natured "ribbing" last week, when the Herald, for the first time since we came to town, failed to make the appearance on Wednesday night.

It was truly a coming event which was responsible for the delay—but not what you think. We were hard at work getting out the Fall Fair prize list, and with the holiday on Monday, it was impossible to get all the type set for the Herald in time to get it on sale at the usual time.

We're not making any promises—but at time of writing, all indications point to an early edition this week. Meanwhile, thanks for the congratulations, and for the "ribbing"—we can take it.

IT WOULD BE NICE

Glancing over the list of those on active service, published two weeks ago in the Herald, one is struck by the number of young men and women serving in different branches of His Majesty's service from this district. Going over the list 250 names were counted of those in the army, navy, airforce, veteran guards, training centres and nursing sisters. Not many towns in Ontario the size of Georgetown can boast a better showing. Georgetown is surely making a sacrifice and doing her bit in this war. While reading over an exchange paper we noted where a number of towns are making presentations to their soldier boys and girls, and thought it would be a fine thing if Georgetown were to follow in line with other towns. But going back to Mayor Gibbons farewell address to the Lorne Scots Regiment before embarking for overseas, he said that when they returned they would be suitably rewarded. This was indeed a fine thought—but we just wonder if the boys wouldn't rather have some token of appreciation of their services to their country now. There is always the possibility that some may not return. If and when Britain should take the offensive in this struggle. Should we not do it now. Orangeville council presented their soldiers with rings, 150 in all; Mount Forest did the same, while in Chesley the Kinsmen's Club relieved the council of this duty. It is only a thought on our part, but should we not do something along this line.

SAYONARA

We once read that of all the good-byes, Sayonara, a Japanese word, was the finest. Sayonara, meaning "Since it must be so" — is most beautiful. Unlike auf wiedersehen and au revoir, it does not cheat itself by any bravado. "Till we meet again," is a sedative to postpone the pain of separation. It does not evade the issue like "farewell," which is a father's good-bye—"Go out into the world and do well my son." It is encouragement and admonition, but it passes over the significance of the moment; packing it says nothing. "Good-bye" and "adieu" say too much. They try to bridge distance, almost to deny it. Good-bye is a prayer: "You must not go — I can not bear to have you go. But you shall not go alone, unwatched; God will be with you." But sayonara says rather too little, not too much. It is a simple acceptance of fact. All an outstanding of life lies in its limits; all emotion smouldering, is banked up behind it. It is the unspoken good-bye the pressure of a hand.

FALL FAIR PRIZE LIST COVERS

The printing of the fall fair prize list is always a "big ado" in the weekly newspaper office. A great many towns and villages in Ontario have an annual exhibition and it is usually up to the printer of the town to get out the prize list in booklet form. And when we say it is a "big ado," we really mean it is. Great effort is put into the designing and creating of an attractive cover for the booklet. Let the printing on the inside pages be as it may, the cover must be something outstanding, something that will hold its own or surpass the efforts of the neighboring printer. While the designs of some covers are along very conservative lines, others are really out to ring the bell in any competition. Let's take a look at some of the covers this year; we have seen all the district fair booklets yet, but those we have seen, have all sounded a patriotic note. Take Orangeville, for instance, they really went out all the way with their prize list cover. At the top centre of the cover is a Union Jack, done in red and blue, and the background white—while under the flag were the words: "There'll Always Be An England." In the centre a picture of Prime Minister Churchill, with his famous utterance: "I
