War Ministers Inspect New Railway Munitions Plant

A BIG WAR PLANT, the existence of which had been unknown to the general public, was given national recognition when three members of the Federal Cabinet officially inspected the National Railways Munitions shops at Montreal, operated by the Canadian National Railways. The Ministers were Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supplies; Hon. Angus Macdonald, Minister of Naval Services; and Hon. W. P. Mulock, Postmaster General. They were welcomed to the plant by R. C. Vaughan, President of the Canadian National Railways. Upper left—Mr. Howe watches Miss Josephine Skull, instructor of women workers, operating a turret lathe. Centre—Finished guns assembled for government inspection. Right—Mr. Macdonald examines the breech of one of the finished guns.

What the Glen Looked Like in Flood Time Nearly 35 Years Ago.

One of the most vulnerable spots in flood time, in the Spring of the year, is the Village of Glen Williams. As far back as the memory of local "wags" will go, they can always come up with some incident in the Glen district which was caused by the flood menace, when the Credit River overflowed its banks, and piled the ice cakes high in "jams" along its course.
This year, last Tuesday in fact, the Glen suffered a rather serious flood, although not in the same proportions as in years past. Those living near the river, awoke Tuesday morning to find their homes flooded with water, after an all night rain that helped break up the ice. The 9th Line road between Wagstaff's hill and the "white" bridge was practically impassable when the raging waters tore it away in their mad rush through the Glen.

The above picture, taken some thirty or thirty-five years ago will recall the position the Glen used to hold in flood-time. It was a serious situation in those days, and the Glen residents are now thankful the water does not rise to such proportions as in those by-gone years. About this time too, a new dam had been constructed beside the United Church, (where a dam still stands) and the first Spring out went the dam. Those who remember this, say that a case of dynamite had been used to blow up the ice on the pond, shaking nearly all the buildings in the district, and no doubt shaking the base of the dam. At any rate it went out and the lower

Glen was practically submerged under the waters of the Credit. We believe the Credit River has its beginning somewhere up in the Caledon mountains, and by the time it reaches the Glen, usually becomes a wild rolling stream in the Spring of the year.
The above picture is one of the Herald's most prized photos, and whenever there is a history of the Glen written and printed in book form, this picture should most certainly be included.

THE NAVY'S HERE
Vice-Admiral P. W. Nelles, R.C.N., Chief of the Naval Staff, whose brief address introduced a series of special feature broadcasts over the National Network of the CBO recently. The programmes, under the title "The Navy's Here," have been written at Naval Service Headquarters, Information Section, to tell the story of Canada's fast-expanding naval service and its valuable contribution to democracy's part in total war. The next broadcast, "Navy's Here," will be heard on coast to coast on Sunday, March 29, at 8:30 p.m. EDT, 9:30 p.m. ADT.
