DID YOU MISS ANDY CLARK?

All set to listen to the "Neighborhood News" broadcast last Sunday morning. We were rather disappointed, when tuning in at the accustomed hour of 9:00 o'clock, to find no program on the air. It seems Andy had a lot of complaints about the early hour of the program, so he decided to change the time. The program is now broadcast from 10:05 to 10:20, Sunday mornings.

PAIN AND DEATH OF WAR'S VICTIMS CURBED WITH ICE

Read . . . in The American Weekly with this Sunday's (April 5) issue of The Detroit Sunday Times . . . how the numbing by cold has proved as satisfactory as anesthetic drugs, and more so, in experiments to remove the shock of major surgery, especially in the field. CHRIST AND LIFE AFTER DEATH (EASTER)

LESSON TEXT—Mark 12:24-27: 1 Corinthians 15:54-55
GOLDEN TEXT—But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.—1 Corinthians 15:57.

V for Victory! By that sign have many peoples indicated their confidence in a victory to come. It is well to have a victorious outlook, but it is even better to be able to look back to victory already attained. That is just what we are able to do as we consider man's great and final enemy—death. That victory has been won on behalf of all who believe, by the risen Christ of whom we think in a special way on this Easter day.

He is the Lord of the living, not of the dead; those who, even though they may have left this world, have only laid aside the corruptible body for the incorruptible. They are victorious, even as we are, over death.

I. Living, Not Dead (Mark 12:24-27)

The Sadducees, a rationalistic sect of Christ's day, denied the resurrection, and so they were much distressed by His plain teaching of that truth. They therefore devised an intricate hypothetical case (see Mark 12:18-23) and sought to set a trap for Him. But they only caught themselves, for He pointed out to them and to the people that what was wrong with them was that they did not understand the Scriptures nor the power of God.

That is precisely what is wrong with the modernists of our day—they misinterpret God's Word, and they deny His power.

Then Jesus turned to them and in place of their fantastic "supposing" story He spoke of three real characters from the books of Moses which they taught. He said that God still calls Himself the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, because though they had long been in their graves, they were still alive. God's fellowship with His people is not merely for the brief life span of this earth, but for eternity. That fact, of course, carries with it the truth of the resurrection.

II. Incorruptible, Not Corruptible (1 Cor. 15:50-54)

Man knows that his earthly body is marked for decay and death. That fact is written in its very members. He also knows that such a body would be entirely inappropriate for heaven—for eternity. Is he then barred from God's eternal kingdom? No, indeed, for there is to be a glorious change—the corruptible shall put on incorruptibility.

Whether we shall tarry until Jesus comes and be transformed without dying, or whether we shall await His coming for a time among those who sleep, there will come that trumpet sound, and in the twinkling of an eye we shall be clothed upon with incorruptible bodies like unto His glorious resurrection body (Phil. 3:21). There we have an assurance of victory already won on our behalf, which can and does strengthen our souls against the trials and sorrows of life.

III. Victorious, Not Defeated (1 Cor. 15:55-58)

When Satan after a long struggle finally had Christ's body laid away in the tomb, he thought he had the victory, but just then came his great hour of defeat.

"Up from the grave He arose,
With a mighty triumph o'er His foes."

"Death could not hold its prey," for it sought to hold one stronger than itself—the Lord of Life Himself. He had broken the bonds of sin by His sacrifice on Calvary; and since it was sin (the violation of the law) which brought death in the first place (Gen. 2:17; 3:17-19), there was now a complete victory over both sin and death.

The one who knows Christ need no longer fear death. For him it is not a leap into the dark, or going as a trembling wayfarer into an unknown land. President John Quincy Adams was right when, aged and frail, he replied to a question as to his welfare: "Quite well, thank you. The house in which I live is tottering and trembling, and I may soon have to move out, but I am quite well." He was ready for the departure into a better land and a better body.

Such a hope has a splendid practical application, which Paul stresses in verse 58. With victorious assurance the believer stands steadfast and unmovable at the center of life, while always abounding in the joys and duties which come at its circumference. Like the wheel which can be useful only as its center is established and steady, so man can serve the Lord and enjoy a satisfying life only as he has the steadfastness of which Paul here speaks. We trust that it is your possession by faith in Christ. If not, make it so on this resurrection Sunday!

TIMELY TOPICS FOR WOMEN . . .

"THE I. O. D. E. ADOPTED SCHOOLS"

Most of you are quite familiar with the splendid war work of the I. O. D. E., and with the welfare work it does in its own community. But the general public knows little of the help given the Order's "adopted" schools.

One of the primary aims of the I. O. D. E. ever since its inception has been the education of children, and the instilling in them of the idea of patriotism in its highest sense. One of the chief methods employed to this end has been the "adoption" of schools in isolated districts. In Ontario this work first began in 1921 when 30 I. O. D. E. chapters were presented to needy schools in sparsely-settled parts of the province. Since that time the work has grown enormously, and today 308 elementary schools are being helped.

To "adopt" a school a primary Chapter must make an initial gift of at least $100. In addition the Chapter must be prepared to give each year whatever extra help the school may need.

Large quantities, and wide variety, of equipment have gone forward from the Order . . . subscriptions to school magazines, pictures to brighten drab walls, pencil sharpeners, equipment for sports and games, material for sewing and knitting, kindergarten supplies, first aid kits, maps, globes, balls and seeds for school gardens, and in a few cases desks and blackboards. Indeed some schools have been fortunate enough to receive gramophones with records, radio, organs or pianos, gifts of benefit to the whole settlement, since often the school-house is the only centre of community life, and used for Sunday school, concerts and socials as well as education of the young.

I would like to tell you about some of these lonely little schools. Some of them are in "ghost towns," the site of once flourishing lumbering and mining centres, but now the grave of lost hopes, with mines deserted and mills silent. Imagine home and school conditions for those left behind in such places.

On the other hand some of the "adopted" schools are in brand new boom towns, where a mining syndicate has sunk a shaft, or a new mill has begun operations. Workers pour in, and in no time a town of ten-piper shacks has sprung up. Children seem to appear from nowhere. The Department of Education gives a grant for a new school to be erected, but many extras are needed and here the I. O. D. E. steps in.

Especially interesting is a little school in a new "back-to-the-land" settlement where life is as primitive as in the days of our grandparents (or possibly our great grandparents). But the people . . . all Anglo-Saxons . . . have courage and optimism. They provided everything for their school themselves: free labour, the low, the building, cupboards, stoves (out of old drums) . . . everything excepting the blackboards, windows desks and of course the teacher. The government provided these.

Other very needy schools are in farming districts in Northern Ontario which were once settled but which are now all but evacuated because the difficulties met with proved too great.

I wish I had space to tell you of other schools in the north country, of the little French-Canadian school, of the Indian schools, the Finnish schools and the many schools of mixed nationalities. . . . one rural school reports an enrolment of twelve pupils, with eleven different nationalities represented. Scores of such schools are in urgent need of outside help.

But do not think that because these children are poor there is no merit in their school life. Their pleasures are simple—the school fair, the school concert, a Christmas treat from their Chapter . . . but enjoyment is no less real because of that. Much depends on the teacher. It is she who sets the pace and many young girls and women are giving invaluable leadership in these outlying districts at great sacrifice to themselves.

But do not pity these children too much. They may need our help, but they are alright. A cross-section of northern children compares favourably in points of behavior, health, intelligence, integrity and achievement with those of a cross-section of older Ontario. The I. O. D. E. is to be congratulated on its share in making this possible.

FOR OUR SCRAP BOOK

We all are dead until we see
That in the human plan
Nothing is worth the making
If it does not make the man.

Why build the cities glorious
If man unbuilded goes
In vain to build the world anew
The builder also grows.

BLUE HORIZONS

(Oxford, 278 p., $2.35)

BY: FAITH BALDWIN

Romance and adventure, fantasy and fairy sound the keynote of Faith Baldwin's most recent novel, "Blue Horizons," the setting of which is the fashionable Miami Beach and the Florida coast, the setting of which is the fashionable Miami Beach and the Florida coast.

Bobbie Rivers owns a beautiful beach home in which she offers hospitality to an odd assortment of guests who come and go at will. When Josephine Bruce accepted Mrs. Rivers' offer to become her private secretary she did so with considerable misgiving as Blue Horizons was once her old home. . . . But now she needed the generous salary offered, to care for her widowed mother and aunt. And soon she was the central figure in a dramatic sequence of events.

First Bobbie's stepson, Larry, became infatuated with her charms. But more serious complications arose when Josephine found herself falling in love with Bobbie's own son, Johnathan, already engaged to Elsie Meredith, and the apple of his mother's eye.

But you can trust Mrs. Baldwin for a happy ending, and she does not let you down this time.
