"As We See It"
By J. A. Strang

THE CBC PROGRAM. Newbridge, is one of the most interesting of the serial programs that is on the air right now. It centers around the Bugle's printing office of the town of Newbridge and is a typical account of the doings of almost any Canadian town of similar size. The villain, as it were, of the story, is the town's wealthiest citizen who sees to it that the tax rate is kept down. He isn't a member of the Council but his is the final word overbills. We spent a few years on the Council and listening to this story brings it all back to memory. If you haven't been listening to this serial and if you enjoy a typical Canadian small town history, tune in and get interested. Of course you may have to listen to several evenings of it before you get the full drift of the story but you will think it worth the effort. The best part of it is that there is no advertising to listen to along with it.

DURING WAR-TIME it is always easy to put those on the back who may be at the head of dissenting organizations for raising funds for the war. We are apt to forget those that have been carrying on in other lines through peace-time as well as during war-time. No doubt you have listened to the bells on Hart House in the City of Toronto and maybe you have also heard the bells of the Peace Tower at Ottawa. Both of these are wonderful bells and are worth seeing as well as being a treat to listen to. If you haven't seen those bells on the Peace Tower, we suggest that you make it a point to have a look at them the next time that you are in Ottawa. But we have bells right here in Georgetown that are mighty nice to listen to. We like them and we wonder if they are appreciated. Of course some tunes may suit you better on the bells than others and no doubt everybody will have their favorite tunes. The tune that still stands out as tops with us that we have heard on the local bells is one that we heard on a clear frosty morning in the winter-time. It was the Psalm, the first line of which is: "The man that once has found a home." We don't think that we had ever heard anything just like it. No doubt the frost and clear sun had had something to do with it but it was a stand-out.

ONE THING that we Canadians can enjoy this war-time, is the fact that we still are able to get good palatable bread. During the last Great War, the ruling was that substitutes had to be used, along with wheat flour in all baking and they didn't improve the quality of the bread a little bit. Perhaps the use of barley flour was the worst substitute of all and after trying to slice bread with a certain percentage of barley flour in it, the knife was coated with a slimy, sticky substance that didn't suit you well. The substitute changed the odor of the bread as well as the texture of it. However, with this war we still have all kinds of quality wheat from which to make our usual standard of high quality flour. Many other countries are not enjoying this same privilege though. Maybe you have read the story of Mussolini. It was before the United States entered the war. The American Ambassador was to visit the Duce and he had instructed his son-in-law Ciano to burst in on them with some good news shortly after the American had arrived. Ciano rushed in alright and told Mussolini that twenty eight ships loaded with wheat had just arrived at an Italian Port. He went on to say that what could be done with all this wheat when our granaries were all full. Mussolini scratched his head and the American helped him out by stating "Why don't you put it in your bread."

THE 24th OF MAY, Queen Victoria's birthday, seems to have slipped in popularity during these last few years. At one time it was the main holiday of the year and with suitable weather almost any celebration would have a real turnout. Perhaps the motor cars may have had something to do with it as of course they were unknown, almost, in the older days. With the introduction of motor cars there wasn't the same attraction to just drive in a mere ten miles to a celebration. The smart thing to do was to see how much gas we could burn in a day, one would think looking back at it now. But the scene has changed once more. Gas and tires are a problem that up to the present situation had never bothered us and maybe we may get back to thinking that a ten mile drive to town is plenty far enough to travel in one day. Strange how things change and then change back again isn't it? Even the tide does just that, it goes out and comes in again.
