Incident From Lions Convention

The following incident took place two or three weeks ago when the Lions Club was holding its international convention in Toronto. Local delegates thought it of particular interest.

The restaurants near the Maple Leaf Gardens were crowded beyond capacity when the noon recess was taken. Into one of them came a timid little newsboy—he couldn't have been more than seven or eight years of age, to sell his few papers. He approached a man nearest the door, who purchased one, glanced at the boy sharply, and then called to him.

"Here, son," he said, "I've read this paper. Take it to that fellow over there in the corner and sell it to him. The lad did as directed, the first purchaser meanwhile giving his friend a sign. A minute later the second purchaser had directed the boy to a third by this time everyone in the restaurant was either watching the proceedings or taking part in it.

From table to table went the lad, selling and reselling the same newspaper. It took six minutes to make the rounds, and when he emptied his pockets on a table near the cashier's desk his new-found friends helped him to count his money. The little pile contained $3.80, proceeds of about fifty sales, and the little fellow still had his original stock of papers!

His face shining with happiness and excitement, he hurried to the door. Just as he went out he turned to the crowd and shouted: "Goodbye! I'll be here again tomorrow!"

District Man Asks Support of Georgetown Fall Fair

ANNUAL EVENT MERITS GOOD TURNOUT

In 1933 the Georgetown Agricultural Society, through its management, decided to give up its place in the list of Fall Fairs. The event was dropped for one year, consequently, when it was decided to resume annual holding of the show, understood priority in selection of dates was lost and the directors were forced to select some date not beset by another agricultural society. As a result of unsavory late holding of the event, popular interest showed considerable falling off a feature that was detrimental to receipts at the box office, and to the business of both urban and rural inhabitants of the district.

Active and energetic members of both town and country affiliations, reflecting the general desire for reestablishment of former prestige of the Fair, combined with vigor to improve the list of attractions including the prize list and program. Wide newspaper and billboard advertising was resorted to, and local associations of businessmen, agricultural and professional individuals and associations were persuaded to commit themselves to the posting of considerable sums to be distributed for winning competitive displays and class entries.

In keeping with the understanding that "to him who hath shall be given," the provincial dept. in charge of Fall fairs encouraged the local patrons by means of a grant, and in 1933 Georgetown Fair was away to a new start in a period of increased prosperity.

Annually, since the above year, and even despite wartime conditions, success of the event as an entertainment and educational feature has been attested in expressions of satisfaction and in record of receipts at the turnstiles. So popular, in fact, has the Georgetown Fair become that new attendance records have been attained despite increasing cost of travel and labor on farms and in business institutions.

This increase has been brought about, partly as a result of the feeling that attending the show which caters to the improvement and encouragement of production is in a measure a patriotic undertaking. Furthermore, improvement in exhibits, especially of far products, orchards, garden crops and livestock are not only arousing increased interest but indicate the benefit of the Fair as an undertaking for encouragement to farmers and to those who utilize their produce.

As a social leveler by grading up, no other institution supersedes the Fall Fair. Have the farmer, in town for the day, mingle with the business man and manufacturer, to realize that they are all interdependent, and working in the interest of the nation as a whole. At the moment, the combination is devoted firstly, to the effort to win the war. But, after the war this interdependence will be realized as never before, and will be reflected in an improved condition of society as a whole. Attend the Fair! Encourage the exhibitors, patronize local institutions, and observe and learn, not only for your own benefit, but for the benefit of the locality and of the country at large.

SAMUEL HERSHOREN

When the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra resumes its series of CBC National network programs, in the Prom Concert performed from Variety Arena, Toronto, Thursday, August 27, Samuel Hershoren (above) will be guest conductor. Jean Dickerson will be soloist and bridge works of Mendelssohn, Elgar and Minsky-Korshakoff. Mr. Hershoren will conduct the orchestra in "Enchanted Hill" by the Canadian composer, John Weir. The broadcast portion of the program will be heard at 10:15 p.m. EDT.

Invented during the Russo-Finnish War of 1939-40, Molotov Cocktails have become a vital anti-tank weapon. Molotov Cocktails are usually a glass container filled with inflammable liquid which burst into flames when smashed against the side of an onrushing tank. The picture illustrates Canadian troops in action "destroying" a tank by this method. Demonstrations took place at Camp Borden.

Income Tax is Fair to All

In the fourth year of war, Canada will need almost four billion dollars. This is the equivalent of nearly $350 from every man, woman and child in the country.

Even with the highest income tax in history, 52% only of the money Canada needs will be raised by taxation. The rest will have to be borrowed by means of War Savings Stamps, Certificates and Victory Bonds.

Starting with the first pay period in September representing September earnings only, your employer is required by law to deduct your income tax from your wages or salary, and send it promptly to the Government. Everybody will pay his share as he goes along.

It's going to be tough . . . but not too tough! Here are some good features:

1. You will pay as you earn, so that you will not be faced with a large lump sum payment next year.
2. The National Defence Tax already deducted during the first 8 months of this year has been taken into account in the Table of Tax Deductions.
3. Though the income tax rates show a sharp increase over last year, a large portion of this increase is actually savings, to be paid back to you with interest after the war.
4. The money you are paying for life insurance premiums, annuities, principal repayments on your home, or into a pension fund may be deducted (up to a certain maximum) from the savings portion of your income tax. In many cases this may be sufficient to make payment of the savings portion of the tax unnecessary.

Unless you are single, without dependents, and not making payments of the types mentioned in paragraph 4 above, you should file Form TD-1 with your employer. Otherwise, you may not be allowed the credits to which you are entitled. DO NOT DELAY. File Form TD-1 with your employer at once so that you may get the full allowances from the start.
