WE'RE SETTING A DEADLINE

We're going to have your paper in the mail by six o'clock every Wednesday night. Yes—that's a promise—qualified, of course, by things beyond our control, such as a break-down in the machinery and so on. We've been surmounting difficulties and working up to it for a long time, and now there is only one thing that stands in our way—late copy.

It does not take an expert in the printing trade to realize that if all the copy on hand is set by Tuesday night, and we're delayed in the mail with six or seven columns of news Wednesday morning, we cannot possibly have your paper out on time. It takes, roughly, an hour to set a column of type, and add to that time for proof reading, correction, and setting up, and you can see it would be 4 or 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon before we could even start preparing to "go to press." Looking at it from another angle, it means three or four hours of overtime for our men, and when it could be so easily avoided, a solution should be found.

So—we're going to try something which we hope will solve the problem—setting a deadline for news. If your copy does not reach us by Tuesday noon, we cannot guarantee it will appear in that week's issue of the paper.

We like getting news items through the mail phoned in, or brought to us personally. It makes us feel that our efforts to give you the local news of the week are really being appreciated. And we know that if you realize that making that little extra effort to give us your news before Tuesday will guarantee you an early paper, we'll have your support.

WELL DONE

We were greatly impressed by the efficient way in which the local Red Cross organized the Blood Donor clinic held here last week. Everywhere there was evidence of that power used to achieve an end, which only co-operation on the part of all parties concerned can give. It was perfect in every detail and they deserve credit.

Those who gave their blood did a service which many a wounded soldier, sailor or airman will never forget. In discussing the matter with a Red Cross official who laid the groundwork for the coming of the Mobile Unit to Georgetown, she stated that the blood of men who live in small towns, or the country, was especially desirable because of the pureness of the air in their environment. For this reason the splendid response to the appeal for blood donors from Georgetown and district was all the more gratifying.

May the Red Cross meet with the same success the next time it appeals for your support in this work of saving lives.

LOGICAL REASONING

The Collingwood Enterprise-Bulletin ran an editorial a short time ago under the caption "The Home Press" which set forth in clear logic why everyone interested in the community in which he lives (and who isn't), should read and support his town paper. It's well worth attention, and we reprint it below:

"No man is too poor to take his local newspaper, and it is false economy to try to get along without it. Hardly a week passes, that something does not appear in its columns which will be of financial benefit to you and by the end of the year you have made or saved from one to twenty times the subscription price. The city papers do not take the place of your local paper although some people seem to think they do. The city papers are alright in their way, but they do not give you what you are most interested in in your community. You cannot learn from them when public meetings are held, who have died, who are marrying, and who are moving out and who want to sell land, in fact, hundreds of items which might be of particular importance to you. Such matters city papers cannot furnish but your local paper does. If you are not a subscriber to the local paper, you should be. Plan to have your name added to our subscription lists."

NUTRITION PROGRAMS GAIN MARKED ATTENTION

War is a mighty consumer of all sorts of goods, and particularly of foods. Even such great food producing countries as Canada and the U.S.A. are feeling the pinch of food shortages.

War workers are under a definite strain. They

Commandos Strike at Dawn

When Lieut-General Kenneth Stuart, DSO, Chief of the Canadian General Staff, pledged the co-operation of the Canadian Army in making The Commandos Strike at Dawn, he was making no idle promise. The fulfillment of this promise has resulted in making the picture one of the most realistic films of the war.

So complete was the Army co-operation, and the help of the Canadian Navy and RCAF, as well as the hard-taken Hulls of propaganda, that the story of the first night of the invasion of Normandy is so vividly and accurately depicted. The film is a masterpiece of modern filmmaking.

Of course it wasn't all "beer and girls." Wartime priorities made problems that would not exist in Hollywood and called for all sorts of ingenuity on the part of carpenters, prop men, painters and set dressers.

One of the biggest "sets" ever filmed outside the major studios was the beautiful wedding scene in The Commandos Strike at Dawn—the interior of a Norman village inn. The set was 9 feet in length and it required almost seven minutes of continuous shooting to film it.

know the necessity of getting the goods to the men on the firing line in the shortest space of time. Employers have found that well-balanced meals served in clean and comfortable surroundings pay dividends by aiding the health and the morale of their employees. With foods rationed, or becoming increasingly scarce, the modern industrial caterers is replacing the old-fashioned lunch-box, and is paving the way for a permanent change in the dietary habits of Canadian workers.

With many mothers employed in war industries, educationalists are taking steps for the supplementary feeding of school children.

Canada is benefiting from the experience of Britain, where the British program has worked a revolution in the eating habits of the people.

FOLLOW INSTRUCTIONS

Organization for the distribution of Ration Book No. 2 between February 19th and March 1st is well in hand. When the present Ration Book No. 1 was issued, it was mailed to the recipient. This time the books must be picked up at the distribution centres, which will save the Canadian public an estimated $500,000.

A great many people have wondered why they are getting new ration books when they still have four unused pages of coupons. Board officials explain that these unused sheets of coupons are not enough to ration tea, coffee, sugar and butter for the next six months' period. The tea, coffee and sugar coupons remain good and the last butter coupon does not expire until March 14, although the new books will be issued between February 19th and March 1st, and become valid March 6th. So you can readily see that Ration Book No. 1 is not being scrapped with the issuance of Ration Book No. 2. The new ration books will contain sets of spare coupons because it is impossible to foresee now what commodities may have to be rationed in the future.

Georgetown and Acton will be the only distribution centres for North Halton, and books may also be obtained at Milton. Everyone in Georgetown will apply at the Municipal Office located at the corner of Mill and Main Streets, for his own book, and if he so desires, for the books of other members of the household. Everyone, however, must sign his own postcard at the back of the present book.

Pamphlets have been printed, and citizens are asked to read and follow instructions printed thereon very carefully. If all will see that this is done, and make a point of getting their books as soon as possible so that a last-minute rush may be avoided, it will be a great help to the local board, and those assisting them in this purely voluntary work.

THE NEW MUNICIPAL BUILDING

Yes, it's definite now, Georgetown will at last have a fine Municipal Building of which we may well be proud. Last week the deal was completed, and the building formerly owned and occupied by the Bank of Montreal, on the corner of Mill and Main Streets, will henceforth belong to the town.

It was a wise move on the part of the council for several reasons. First, of course, is the price consideration. We feel that the building was purchased at a very reasonable sum, and the investment is one which will give satisfaction to the ratepayers for many years to come. A similar building could not be constructed for a fraction of the price. The situation is very central, and will save the townspeople a good deal of inconvenience in that way. Heretofore, there has been no proper place in which to hold Magistrates' Courts, and now they will be held in the municipal building. It is expected that all collections will be made in the office. A couple of police cells will be installed in the basement and thus eliminate a lot of time now having to be spent by the Chief of Police in travelling back and forth to the county jail at Milton.

A municipal building in the centre of the town, of fine appearance, where all the activities pertaining to the business of the municipality may be enacted, is something which every town in a position to afford it should not be without. We're glad that Georgetown has one!

Department of Labour National War Labour Board GENERAL ORDER

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics has found that the cost of living index number for January 2, 1943, is 117.1 (adjusted index 116.2) as compared with the cost of living index number for July 2, 1942, of 117.9 (adjusted index 117).

The Wartime Wages Control Order, P. C. 5963, provides in Section 48 (iv):

"The amount of the bonus shall not be changed unless the cost of living index number has changed one whole point or more since the last general order of the Board requiring an increase or decrease in the amount thereof."

The index number not having changed by one whole point or more since July 2, 1942, pursuant to the provisions of P. C. 5963 as stated, the National War Labour Board orders that the terms of its General Order dated August 4, 1942, shall continue to apply for the period February 15, 1943, to May 15, 1943, subject to the right of employers or employees to apply to a War Labour Board for authorization of payment of such an amount of cost of living bonus as a Board may determine to be "fair and reasonable," under the provisions of the Order.
