

VERSATILE

Don Pringle's personality is like his voice—friendly. His name became a by-word in the homes of Haligonians, announcing the farm broadcasts in the past two years. He had his start at CPNB, Fredericton, joined the CBC at Ottawa in 1937. Now he is back as senior announcer at CBO with a paternal eye on the Western Five, broadcasting Tuesdays and Thursdays at 6:00 p.m. If an artist ever failed him, Don could pinch-hit as pianist or vocalist. He studied at Toronto and Halifax conservatories for seven years.

Mrs. Jones—"I wondered where you got them."

THE APPEARANCES AFTER THE RESURRECTION

LESSON TEXT—John 20:19-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am alive for evermore—Revelation 1:18.

The most important day in all history was the first day of the week following the crucifixion of Christ. Then He appeared to His disciples as their risen Lord. All the hope of all mankind for all eternity depended on His victory over death.

By eventide news had come to the disciples of His resurrection, and half in hope and half in uncertainty they had gathered to talk over these matters. Fearful of the Jews, they met behind closed doors. All at once He was there—the Lord Himself. What a wonderful change came over them as He made Himself known to them. They went

I. From Fear to Gladness (vv. 19, 20).

Their eyes had been upon their enemies and they were afraid. Now they "were glad, when they saw the Lord." We need to learn that lesson. If we look within we are ashamed and discouraged. If we look around us we are confused and fearful. If we look to Christ we are glad and strong.

Notice that their joy was not based only on an emotional impulse. They saw Christ in His resurrection body—the very One who had died. The evidence was there before them. Now they could understand the things He had said to them. The whole realm of spiritual truth was now in focus again, and they were glad. So are we when we really see Christ.

II. From Weakness to Strength (vv. 21-23).

The disciples who were called to be witnesses for Christ had lost their testimony when He died on the cross. Unbelief and discouragement had so weakened them that they were in hiding instead of being out proclaiming His truth.

Now the risen and victorious One sent them forth with the Father's blessing. They were empowered by the Holy Spirit, and given great authority (v. 23). Note that it was given not to one man or to the leaders, but to all the disciples. It was a declarative right, and it belongs to every true disciple. Those who have received the gift of the Holy Spirit are in a position to declare to men that their sincere repentance brings forgiveness" (Douglass). The opposite is also true.

III. From Doubt to Faith (vv. 24-28).

Thomas, who had doubts and who cultivated them by his stubborn attitude (v. 25), did himself and his brethren a serious disservice by being absent from the meeting on the evening of the first Easter Day. When he did appear he had only doubts to contribute. Let those who make a custom of absenting themselves from the place and hour of service beware lest they do likewise.
His doubts were honest ones—and God always meets such questions, honestly and intelligently. When the evidence was before him, the heart of Thomas leaped the chasm from doubt to faith in one cry of complete devotion (v. 28).

It is significant that down through the ages many doubters have been won to Christ by the proof of the resurrection of Christ, which is by the testimony of historical scholars "the best authenticated fact in all history." The risen Christ stands before men today and says, "Be not faithless but believing." May many respond with Thomas, "My Lord and my God."

IV. From Death to Life (vv. 29-31).

Christ arose from the dead not just to show that He had power to do so, but, as Paul puts it, "for our justification" (Rom. 4:25). The reality and dependability of the entire plan of salvation hinged on the return of Christ from the dead. Had the grave held Him, His claims of deity and of the ability to forgive sin would have been entirely discredited. Because He lives we shall live.

The experience of regeneration is therefore likened in Scripture to a passing from death to life (John 5:24). Thomas saw the Lord, and believing, passed from doubt to faith. We cannot see Him now, but we have the blessed privilege of believing and thus receiving life (vv. 29, 31).

This was the message which the now radiant and empowered disciples went out to preach. The book of Acts tells us how effectively they did it, and shows how much of their preaching centered on the fact of the resurrection.

The command and the commission was not to them alone, but also to all of us who believe in Christ. May God take out of us the fear of men, overcome our weakness, and send us out with renewed faith to make this life-giving message known to our fellow-men.

ENFORCEMENT — FOOD

How do they get away with this, with that? Even your own friends say, "They can't do this to me, I want hoarding." You've heard plenty of that stuff. And Fred A. McGregor, grey haired, soft spoken Enforcement Administrator of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, at Ottawa, tries to help find the answers. There's nothing he fears more than to have his personnel labelled Gestapo and such things.

F. A. MCGREGOR

says Mr. McGregor. They keep checking on the checkers, even, sometimes it takes time to find out. "We can't decide local cases in anatory lower in Ottawa," he said. Whether it's on rentals, hoarding or anything else they do try to get an honest statement of fact from the enforcement counsel in each regional division and they do insist on getting "local colour" with it. Personal circumstances are taken into consideration. All the administration does, he says, is pass on a case to decide whether it should go to the courts or not. Then the law does the rest.

Micks—Well-founded and Unfounded

"We have to watch our step, too, from those whose toes have been stepped on, who make spite charges against persons they may have a grudge against, many, many of which have been investigated and discovered to be unfounded." And in the converse, he showed me the file and memo, where he had just that day personally telephoned an old foreign-born woman in Montreal to apologize for the actions of an investigator who was too smart altogether.

"We couldn't handle the job of enforcement if the public didn't co-operate," he pointed out, "but thank heaven 85 per cent of the people are doing a real enforcement job with us." A small percentage, of course, are defiant and won't play ball. Some of it he claims, is pure carelessness of regulations to be observed in business. "What of the future?" I asked. He hitched closer to me to emphasize the point as he warned that more difficult times are ahead, with dangers of "black market," etc. "Tell the people they are only helping themselves, and they can be of tremendous help to us as the more critical times approach. We would rather have compliance than enforcement any time."

From Dec. 1, 1941, to Dec. 31, 1942, they had 1,552 prosecutions for the whole of Canada, and 1,438 convictions. You and I who know what's going on can reason it out for ourselves whether they are a Gestapo gang or an administration to check with firmness.

Britnell Views Foods Situation

I hate to hurry on with so much material of interest available, but the series is just about finished. I might give you a few thoughts from Dr. G. E. Britnell, economic adviser of the Foods Administration, tousel headed, earnest fellow whose office walls are covered with colored charts. Better enthusiasm? All parts of the over-all picture we had, he explained. Picture it out: more lunch pails, more sandwiches, more civilian workers, armed forces; Red Cross necessities; Alaskan Highway; USA troops in Canada; commitments to West Indies and Newfoundland. Why, the use of fluid milk increased by 10 per cent over the previous year. Our per capita consumption of butter in Canada is 26 lbs., while that of cheese only 4 lbs., and it takes two of cheese to make one of butter.

Beef? Yup, he admitted a tight position there, but remember that in general there is nothing in its overall position in Canada which would dictate it if we had no responsibilities to the United Nations. It is obvious that we cannot maintain higher consumption levels of meats than others of the United Nations, say the United States.

It is unlikely that we will avoid meat rationing in the trend of events, he says, and that takes in beef, pork, bacon, veal, lamb and mutton. With the new feeding programme, however, he is certain we will have more beef in the long run. Now, co-operation is the slogan.

As I got up to leave he shook hands and said with a smile: "Remember, fellow, we are still the best fed people in the world." I had had bacon, two eggs for breakfast. Could have had more. How in heck can we grouse

About Foods Administration

And now I'll finish this with a few words about talking with Foods Administrator Gordon Taggart, who was shortly leaving his job and Ottawa to sit in the agricultural driver's seat in Saskatchewan again.

His staff includes men of expert knowledge of the various food commodities, directly from farm and various food processing and distributing industries. The food administration staff determines what to do," he said, and much of the action which follows may be carried out by regional offices of the Board, enforcement or rationing divisions.

You see, food supply naturally divides itself into two groups, foods of domestic origin or imports. When domestic supply is threatened as a result of lower price established under the ceiling, either of three things is done. The article can be removed from the ceiling entirely as done with a number of fresh fruits and vegetables. The price could be increased as with beef, lamb and some other products which have a seasonal price range and which required higher prices to maintain supply, or, thirdly, subsidies were added to the existing price.

You remember how the latter was done extensively in the case of milk, dairy products and a number of canned items, such as tomatoes. Action with respect to maintenance of supply has been taken mainly in conjunction with or in co-operation with the Department of Agriculture in the case of essential imported foods, he pointed out, the same general principle is applied, to subsidize imports if the price ceiling threatens supply or to lift ceilings from the threatened products. There it is in a nutshell, and I hope there's a kernel in it.

And he added did Mr. Taggart, that the most common practice of imports has been for the Commodity Price Stabilization Corporation to bulk purchase at the best possible price and then sell into the domestic trade at whatever price is necessary to maintain ceilings.

The determination of requirements and the management of distribution has been the responsibility of the Foods Administration. They control prices and keep up supplies of food for the civilian population, and to assist other government bodies. It also acts to requisition or otherwise acquire food for the soldier boys and girls and other priority needs in cases of particular commodities which are in short supply.

Mr. Taggart made it sound so humdrum that I lost my appetite for dinner. And there's not a secret. Subsidies are not handouts, and the trade gets no special benefit from them. They are only paid if there is no other way of securing a sufficient supply of an article without exceeding the ceiling price, and are limited only to essential consumer goods, and next week's article concludes the series.
