

VETERAN GUARDS ON PARADE

A company of the Veterans Guard of Canada takes up its dressing on the parade square, somewhere in Canada, with all the snap and sparkle bred in them by their service in two years. The Veterans Guard of Canada, which celebrated the third anniversary of its founding on May 24, has more than 11,000 veterans in its ranks, and is expanding daily. Companies of the veterans guard have been serving overseas for nearly three years.

Veteran Guards of Canada Celebrated Third Anniversary

Ottawa, May 31st: Some men of the Veterans' Guard of Canada, which celebrated its third anniversary on May 24, have not only seen service in the Great War of 1914-18, but in previous campaigns.

And they're glad to be back in uniform again. Some have as many as four children presently serving in the Armed Forces.

Numbering in excess of 10,000 all ranks, the Veterans Guard of Canada is administered by Colonel H. R. Alley, O.B.E., V.D., who is a fourth generation soldier himself. His great-great-grandfather fought with the Royal Regiment of New York in the American Revolution. Afterwards, the family settled in Ontario. Descendants have fought in every war since that time in which the Empire has been engaged. Col. Alley saw eight years of militia service before the Great War, going overseas in 1914 as a Lieutenant and returning after the armistice with the rank of Major. He also served as a staff officer at the War Office, London, England.

Members of Col. Alley's immediate family are on Active duty in the present war. His two sons-in-law, Lieut. E.R.B. Lash, R.C.N.V.R., just recently returned to Canada after two years of service in the Mediterranean, and Captain O. R. Corkett, overseas with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, are looking after the junior honors for the male side of the family. His youngest daughter is Leading Wren Frances Alley, Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service. Capt. Corkett has been seriously wounded, serving with the 1st Army in Tunisia.

The majority of the Veterans Guard have sons and daughters serving actively, many of whom have been killed, including the sons of Colonel R. O. Bell, M.C., Capt. W. E. Fletcher, Lieut.

Col. Alley, "they are doing actually better than 'warmer men'." Primarily these require patience and discipline. Discipline was developed in these men during the last war; patience comes with the passing of the years.

A. W. May, M.C., Lieut. C.O. Fisher. "The lads, the Veterans are on parade," says Col. Alley. "they are doing actually better than 'warmer men'." Primarily these require patience and discipline. Discipline was developed in these men during the last war; patience comes with the passing of the years.

"You know what happens when you put a puppy to watch at a rat hole," declares Col. Alley. "After a while, he will fire of his violence and go away. But put an old trained dog on the job and he will stay on it until he is called away."

Overseas and in Canada, these patient watchmen celebrated the third anniversary of the founding of the Veterans' Guard of Canada on May 24. In most cases, duty prevented anything but the briefest relaxation of their vigil but in some centres grateful citizens gathered on the double anniversary, to pay well-deserved homage to these "grand guys" who know the price of freedom, and are willing to pay it.

These old soldiers never die, nor do they fade away!

DISTINGUISHED GUEST

These special C.B.T. programmes are to feature the brilliant Russian Violinist, Mikhail Glinka, as a conductor and soloist. The first concert will be held on Saturday, June 4, at 10:15 pm. The C.B.T. will also feature the National Network. The orchestra arrived in U.S. in 1929, and made its debut in Carnegie Hall the same year. Since then, it has made extensive tours through the States, becoming Concert Master and Assistant Conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra in 1929. He became Concert Master with the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra in 1931, a post to which Toscanini invited him, and which he still holds.

10th Columbia

An unfortunate accident occurred in Oshington Tuesday morning when Roy Webb slipped as he was climbing a fence and a rifle he was carrying, to shoot a groundhog, went off, the bullet striking him. An X-ray showed the bullet to have entered just below the heart, narrowly missing the lung and kidney and lodged in a muscle close to the back bone. He is suffering considerably.

The community was indeed shocked to learn of the death on Saturday of

THE "CABLE PARADE"

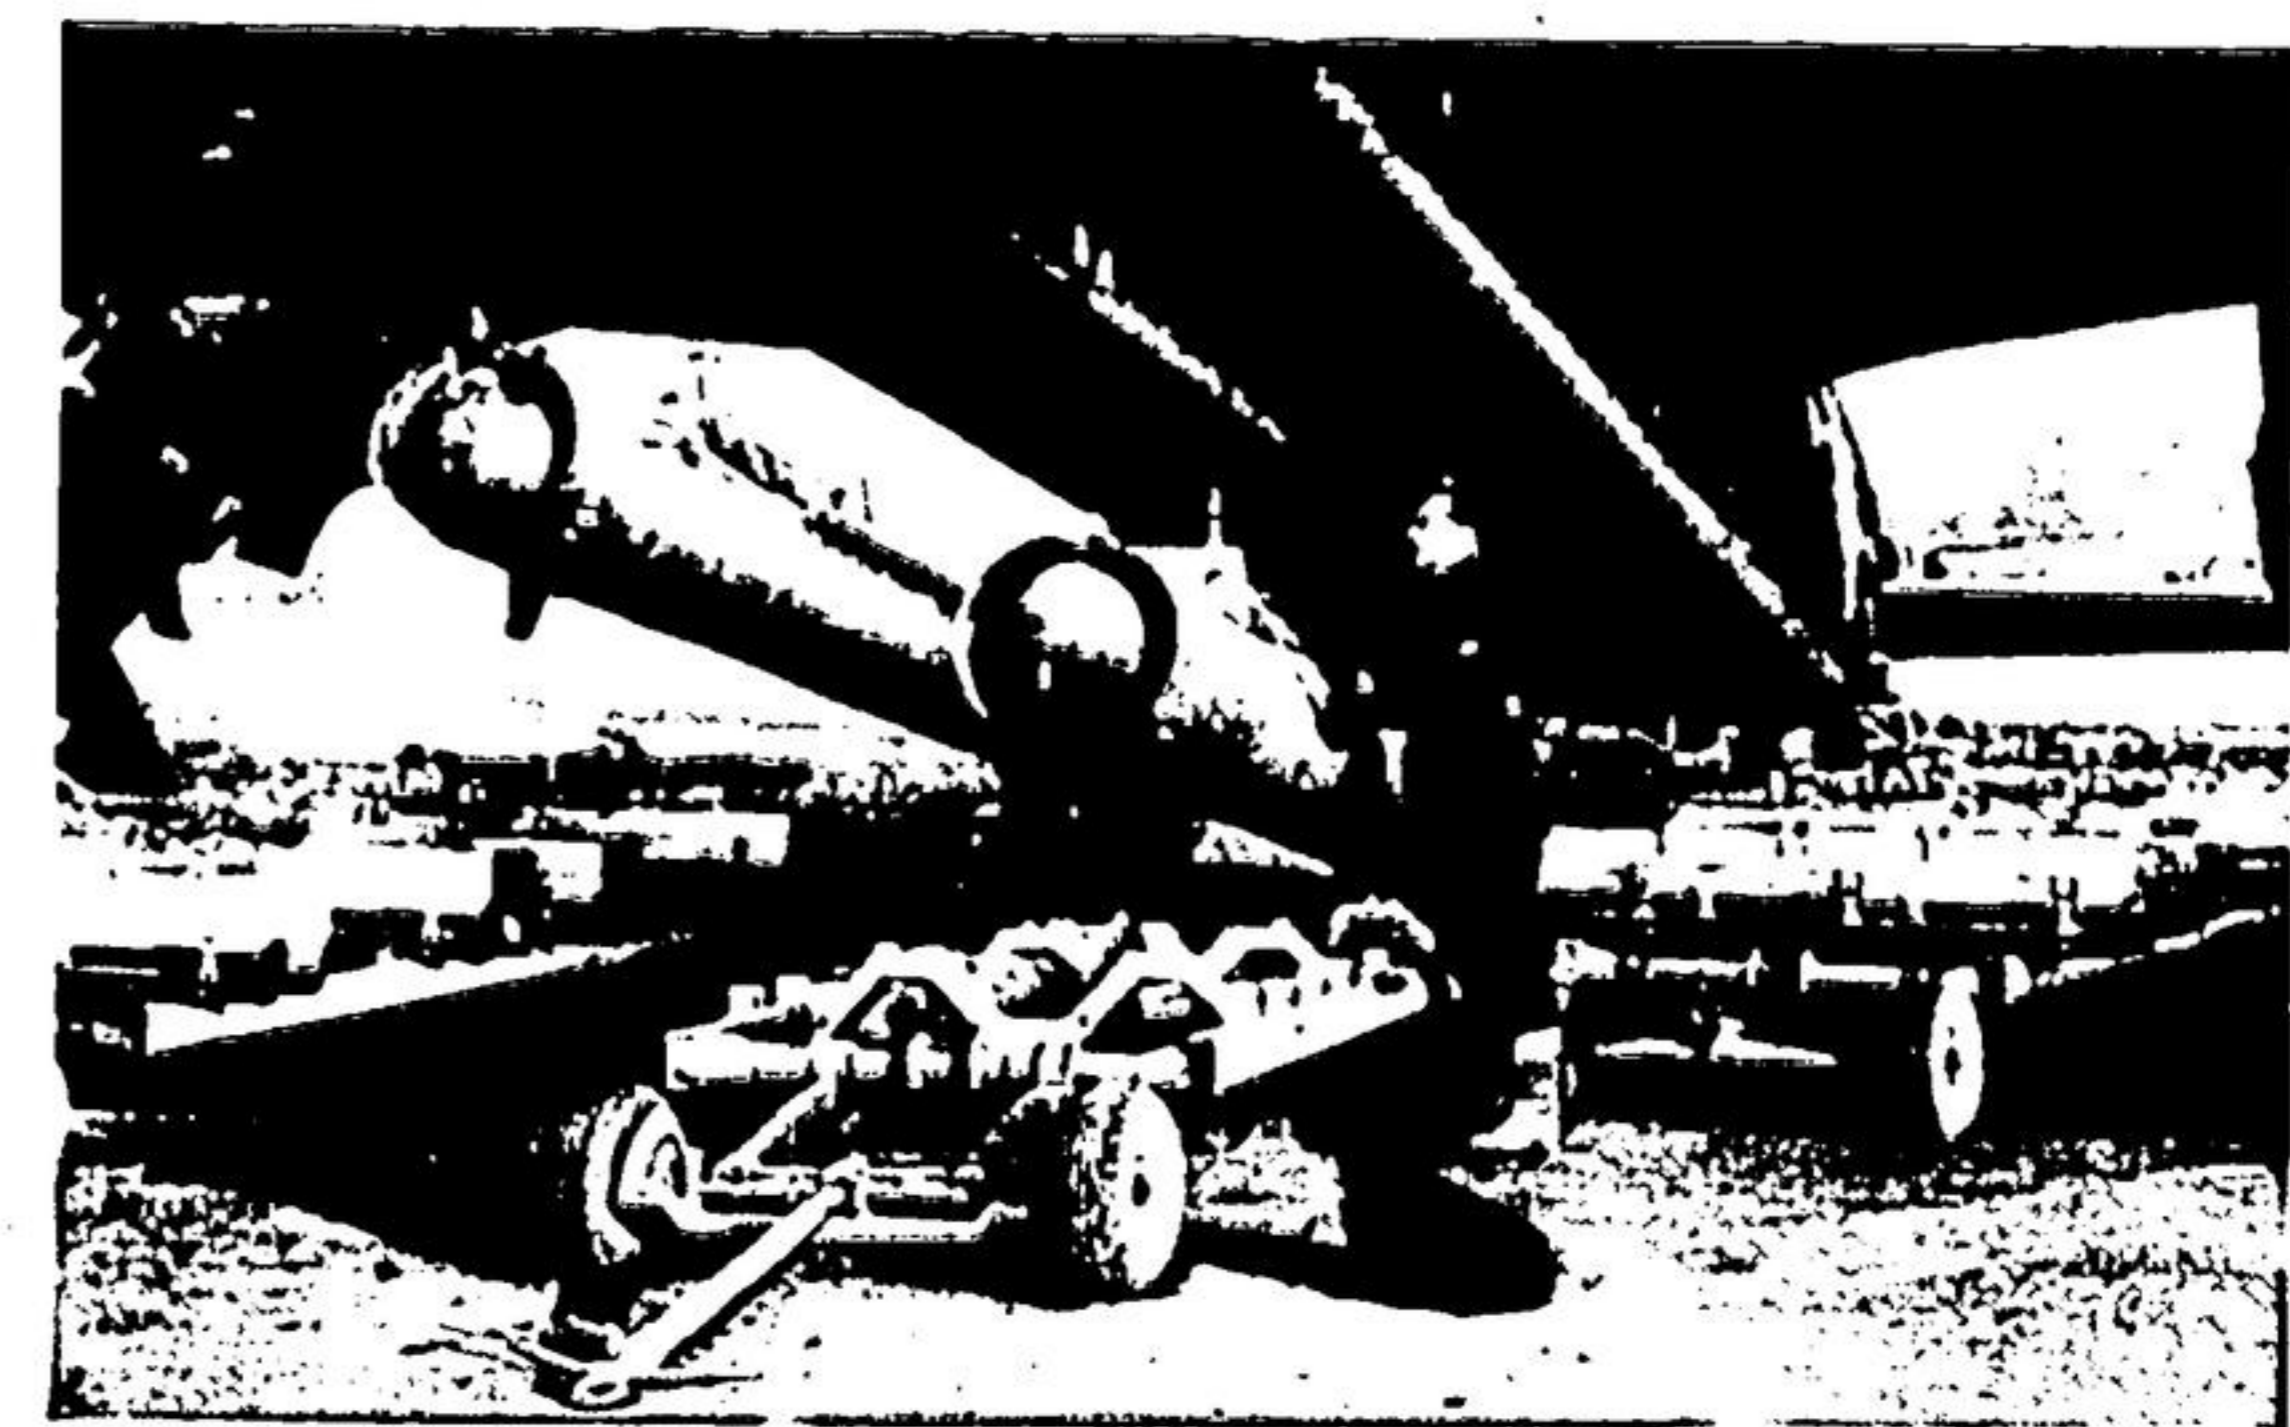

Canadian National Telegraph men and women call it the "cable parade" because it develops each time general leave is granted to almsmen receiving instruction at one of the larger training centres in Canada.

Young men from many parts of the Empire are trained here under the Commonwealth plan. On arriving at their depot or on the eve of furlough they storm the nearest telegraph and cable offices to send messages to the folks at home.

The upper photograph shows the staff doing capacity business at one of the 1,076 Canadian National Telegraph offices while (below) other almsmen outside await their turn to file messages.

NEW BOX CAR GETS FIRST WAR LOAD

This car, one of 2,000 new box cars being built for the Canadian National Railways to handle the increasing volume of war traffic over the lines of the National System, is shown above at the plant of National Railways Munitions Limited being loaded with naval guns manufactured at this subsidiary of the Canadian National Railways. The car bears the new maple leaf design with the System slogan. The big crane handling the gun being placed in the car is operated by Noella Beaudet. Inset is close-up of Miss Beaudet operating the crane. There are seven girls working as crane operators in this big war plant.

The box in which the naval gun barrel is encased for travel is a special product of the Canadian National Railways Montreal wood mill shop. The box is of unusual design with interior bracing to hold the barrel firmly in place, while on the exterior steel plates strengthen the carrier and provide loops to enable crane hooks to take hold when transferring to and from the freight cars at terminals.
