Dear John: It is with mingled feelings of pride and sorrow that we, your friends and neighbours are gathered here this evening to honour you, and to wish you Godspeed. We are proud that you are going forth in Freedom's name to defend that way of life which is our common British heritage. It is indeed an honour to wear the King's uniform, and we are especially proud of you, a son of one of our most highly esteemed families, and one who wears the uniform so gallantly. We are sorry to see you go for your pleasant personality and genial helpfulness have won for you a host of staunch friends in this community.

We hope and earnestly pray that this parting may be but for a short time. We look forward to that happy time when Peace shall again prevail throughout the world and Johnny will come marching home again to once more fill the vacant place which his parting will make in his family circle and his large circle of friends.

In the meantime, we feel that we should like you to have a constant reminder that your friends back home are thinking of you and "pulling for you", as we ask you to accept this watch and haveback as a token of our love and respect. With it go our best wishes for your future success, and our prayers that God's blessing may follow you wherever you may be called upon to go.
