

'As We See It'
By J. A. Strong

AFTER ENJOYING the real June weather that we have been having recently we have almost forgotten the long winter and the wet late spring that we had become so fed up with. Showers last Monday seemed to be just what he had been hoping for to freshen up everything and to pop up the strawberries in their final efforts for the season. They have been of extra good quality surely this year and there seemed to be plenty of them. They were high enough in price though and we noticed where they had even been selling for as high as 50c per quart box last Saturday which is more than they are worth Monday's showers would be helpful to the raspberries also as they are now formed and will soon be on the market. Last week was an ideal week for hayting and there must have been a good deal of it harvested during the week. It seemed to be a heavy crop judging by any fields that we noticed. At the moment it looks as though there may be more hay than straw this year as the late grain doesn't look so well as it so often does at this time of the year. Potatoes look well and may be they will not be so scarce another spring as they are right now.

IT SEEMS DIFFICULT to understand why any one would want to dress themselves up in one of those Zoot-Boots that we read of these days. They are anything but neat and when there are such nice Khaki or Air Force Blue suits to be had, for the asking almost, it seems strange that anyone would ever look the second time at a Zoot-Boot. It isn't because they are reasonable in price nor would they be cool for summer wear either. Ever since the last war we have become used to changes in dress or even to the lack of dress in many cases, but hard as some of the newer ideas in dress were to get used to none of them were in the same class as this latest idea, the Zoot-Boot. It isn't much wonder that they have created a riot in some of the large cities and we would think that the wearers merely received just what was coming to them.

THE RESULTS OF the last Victory Loan Drive were announced this week and the grand total was given as one billion and three hundred and eight million which means a lot of money. The number of subscribers were given as two million and five hundred thousand. Most of us wondered if our Dominion would reach its objective in the last loan but we might have saved our worrying. No doubt the next loan will be even larger and like all the others will pass its objective as well. The home front is doing its part as well as the other fronts in this second world war.

ONE OF THE EARLIEST arguments to get under way is the one as to which we would prefer to live in the City or to live in the smaller town. As far as we are concerned there isn't any argument to it. Take this past week for instance with its June heat. Living in the city you might want to visit a bathing beach and to get there from many points in the city would mean an hour or perhaps more on the street car. But suppose you wanted to take the plunge here. From almost any point in town you could arrive at the river in about ten minutes or less. Besides that you wouldn't be in danger of having your feet cut on broken bottles as so many did last week end in the city. Then the fresh cool air for sleeping isn't on the job in the city like it is around home. Which would you prefer? As we see it there is no room for argument at all.

During the 46 days ended 31st May Allied front-line troops and Air Forces in North Africa used up 38,000,000 rounds of ammunition of all calibres. In the last great battle 100,000 tons of ammunition were made available every day.

Fourth Blood Donor Clinic a Success

After having held their third successful blood donor clinic slightly over four weeks ago, Georgetown again answered the call of the Red Cross for blood donations last Wednesday morning in the Legion Hall, when forty-nine reported to give the much-needed serum.

There were six beds in use, and the usual staff of nurses and local doctors once more gave of their time and talents in getting the donations. Miss Pallen, N. N. was supervisor in charge. The reception committee, registrars, and refreshment committee were again on hand to make the operations of the clinic smooth-running and efficient.
