WHOLESALE PRICES OF SPRING LAMB. Wholesale prices of spring lamb are brought under control by a new order announced by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. The order sets maximum wholesale prices for 15 zones across Canada and limits retailers to their basic period mark-up plus transportation costs. In zones five and six, which include all Southern Ontario, the wholesale price is set at 30 cents a pound. Maximum price for retailers is thus 30 cents plus the retailer's actual transportation cost plus his basic period mark-up, not to exceed nine cents a pound.

Legion Notes

Comrade Jack Minto of Brampton, an employee of Alford Ltd of Milton, paid a visit to the Legion Club rooms on Monday. ... Comrade Johny Oliver, caretaker at the local Amersites, witnessed a full grown deer grazing in the local park last Thursday morning when he opened up the Amersites for the day. ... Comrade and Mrs. Olliver, formerly of Georgetown and now of Weston spent the week end with friends in town.

THE PROS AND CONS OF THE OUTCOME OF THE last election and who is to be in power were thoroughly discussed by Legion members over the week end, and after hearing the discussions that took place we would not be surprised that a "dark horse" from the club rooms will run for office at the next election. ... For the past few months our members have been ill at ease regarding the completion of the Club Rooms spring cleaning. Quite a surprise awaited them on Monday when property chairman, T. Orise took charge with a group of experts from Toronto. Before the day was over a complete new floor covering of Flexible Tile Flooring was laid. The work was under the supervision of Mr. Paul Leveller of Toronto who arrived with a truck, men and equipment used in the laying of the tile flooring. The tile is laid in squares and cemented to the floor. The color is granite and black and with the black border as a finish gives the appearance when laid of a large rug. This new floor gives the club rooms a very smart appearance. The Flexible Tiles were supplied by the Building Products of Toronto and the local order for the flooring placed through the Georgetown Lumber Company who are the local agents.

Comrade Fred Gilmer has been laid up with a severe attack of lumbago last week and the comrades are glad to see Fred back in harness and doing a good job as chairman of the canteen committee.

Several of the comrades this spring took up the hobby of chicken raising. Some of our members were fortunate in having on hand a supply of chicken wire, while others due to the shortage of fencing were compelled to use what ever could be obtained to pen up their chickens. We understand that Comrade Adam Kay is making quite a success of the venture and has been working quite hard lately building a chicken house to winter his prize poultry. Adam expects to have laying hens shortly as he discovered the secret of feeding them. His garden has lost its beauty since his chickens arrived and any member needing advice should see him. Comrade Boley and several others are just sitting back hoping to spring a surprise next fall. Comrade Mitchell is not very fortunate with his 500 or 600 chickens. Being unable to purchase proper enclosure for his pullets he has to be contented to let them run wild. Living on the 7th line his flock has ample space to roam but it is very difficult explained Dick to pen them up at night. He invites the local boys to pay him a visit and see for themselves what 500 chickens look like roosting in the trees at night surrounding his property.

When interviewed regarding Associate Members of the Legion, Comrade President Fred McCarty of the local branch informs us that over 500 members have been issued membership cards in this district since the outbreak of war. These membership cards are issued within the jurisdiction of the branch. President McCarty informs us that the greatest anxiety in the ranks of the Legion is to see that the unity of the Legion is enhanced and expanded, rather than disrupted and diversified by the springing up of other organizations when the conflict is over. When issued with associate membership cards the man in service is informed he is a member of his home branch and that the branch was standing behind him, willing and anxious to render him or his family every possible needed assistance and advising him to write the branch if

'As We See It'

By J. A. Surang. THE FRUIT situation is always open for discussion these days. Last Spring we worried because of the small amount of sugar available for home canning. Later on the outlook for a crop of fruit was reported to be rather discouraging and then when the fruit did commence to become ready for picking the price was another astounding block to many of us. We are very apt to forget that perhaps others may be even worse off along the same line than we are. This England for instance. As you know they import most of their fruit as they do everything else almost. With shipping taken up with more important cargoes than that of fresh fruit the volume of fruit obtainable over there is rather meagre. Sugar is even more scarce there than it is here, again the price of fruit is away beyond all reason and then, as though that wouldn't be enough headaches along the fruit line, they are unable to do any canning because of the fact that during the Blitz their canning jars were practically all broken and they are unable to replace them. The problem of obtaining anything in the glass line is serious over there. Window glass that has been replaced since the Blitz is not clear glass like we have but it is ripply-like and does not give the clear vision that we are used to so if we have to do without the usual amount of canned fruit on our cellar shelves this winter it may be some comfort to remember that we are not alone in that respect, that others may be even worse off and although we may not have the stock of fruit on hand that we usually have we at least haven't had to endure a Blitz, that our canning jars are still available for use another season and we may still be able to get prunes. The honey crop is away ahead of last year and at times we are even able to get corn syrup. Summing it all up we might easily be a great deal worse off. WHILE THERE ALWAYS is a tendency to attempt to look into the future, the practice is perhaps more popular than ever during the war. The result is that there is more cup reading, hand reading, card reading, and fortune telling going on now-a-days than there usually is. An article somewhere recently stated that the Americans were spending as much as two hundred million annually now in an attempt to divine into the future of course much of it is done for excitement's sake and the verdicts obtained are not taken seriously at all. On the other hand some of them may be taken quite seriously and one's conduct may be governed accordingly. At times the future-reading artist may hit the jackpot and make a true divination of future events and if that happens the news is scattered far and wide. On the other hand when the reading proves to have been away off it never hear anything about it. Of course we all know that attempting to read the future is contrary to law and is condemned in many passages in the Bible as well. One peculiar thing about fortune tellers is that while they claim to be able to help their customers, they are unable to even help themselves by their attempts to divine into the future. Charity is supposed to begin at home. The advantages derived from telling the future ought to start with the person supposed to be gifted that way.

A CANADIAN OFFICER was asked by a youth over in England if the insignia worn by the Canadian meant the same as did that worn by the Home-land officers and the reply was that everything was the same in both armies and then the after-thought, all except the pay. The Canadians get about one half more pay than does the British Officer.

THERE HAS BEEN quite a bit of comment about the high price of certain articles in spite of the fact that we have, or are supposed to have, price ceilings. There is no doubt about it, the prices asked at times are high but we sometimes forget that if we weren't willing to pay those high prices and had enough back home to refuse to pay them that those high prices would soon fade away. It always take two parties to make a sale, a seller and a buyer. If the price asked by the seller is too high all that the buyer has to do is to make up his mind to do without the article and if everybody did that the price asked would soon get down to proper levels. The fact that money is more plentiful and with less luxuries to spend it on tends to make us reckless, and to buy anyway, whether the article we are interested in is good value or not.

THE FOLLOWING QUOTATION from a letter recently received from overseas may be of interest to our readers. "The British certainly think that the Canadians are O.K. At the show on Friday night the newsworld was the Sicily invasion pictures and when they showed the Canadians the people cheered. It made us feel proud to be Canadians." There is anything he feels that they could do for him or for his family, and also stressing the many ways the Legion might be of assistance to him and wishing him good luck and a safe return. Any Comrade having news items they would like to appear in this column would do the writer a favor by leaving same with Dick Mitchell at the canteen.
