Company Celebrates 25th Anniversary

The year 1945 marks an important milestone in the history of Smith & Stone, in that the company has now been in existence for twenty-five years. A number of trade papers in ceramic, electrical and hardware fields have given considerable space to this anniversary. During the period the plant has been enlarged nine times, to take care of expanding business. The industry has now become one of considerable importance in the district and of interest throughout Canada.

Electrical parts and fixtures have come to be of great importance and also bathroom fixtures such as tooth brush holders and soap receptacles. With the expected boom in home building in the post war period, there is every reason to expect good business in these lines.

The addition of moulded Bakelite electrical items has given the company a much more complete line and added to its attractiveness to the trade.

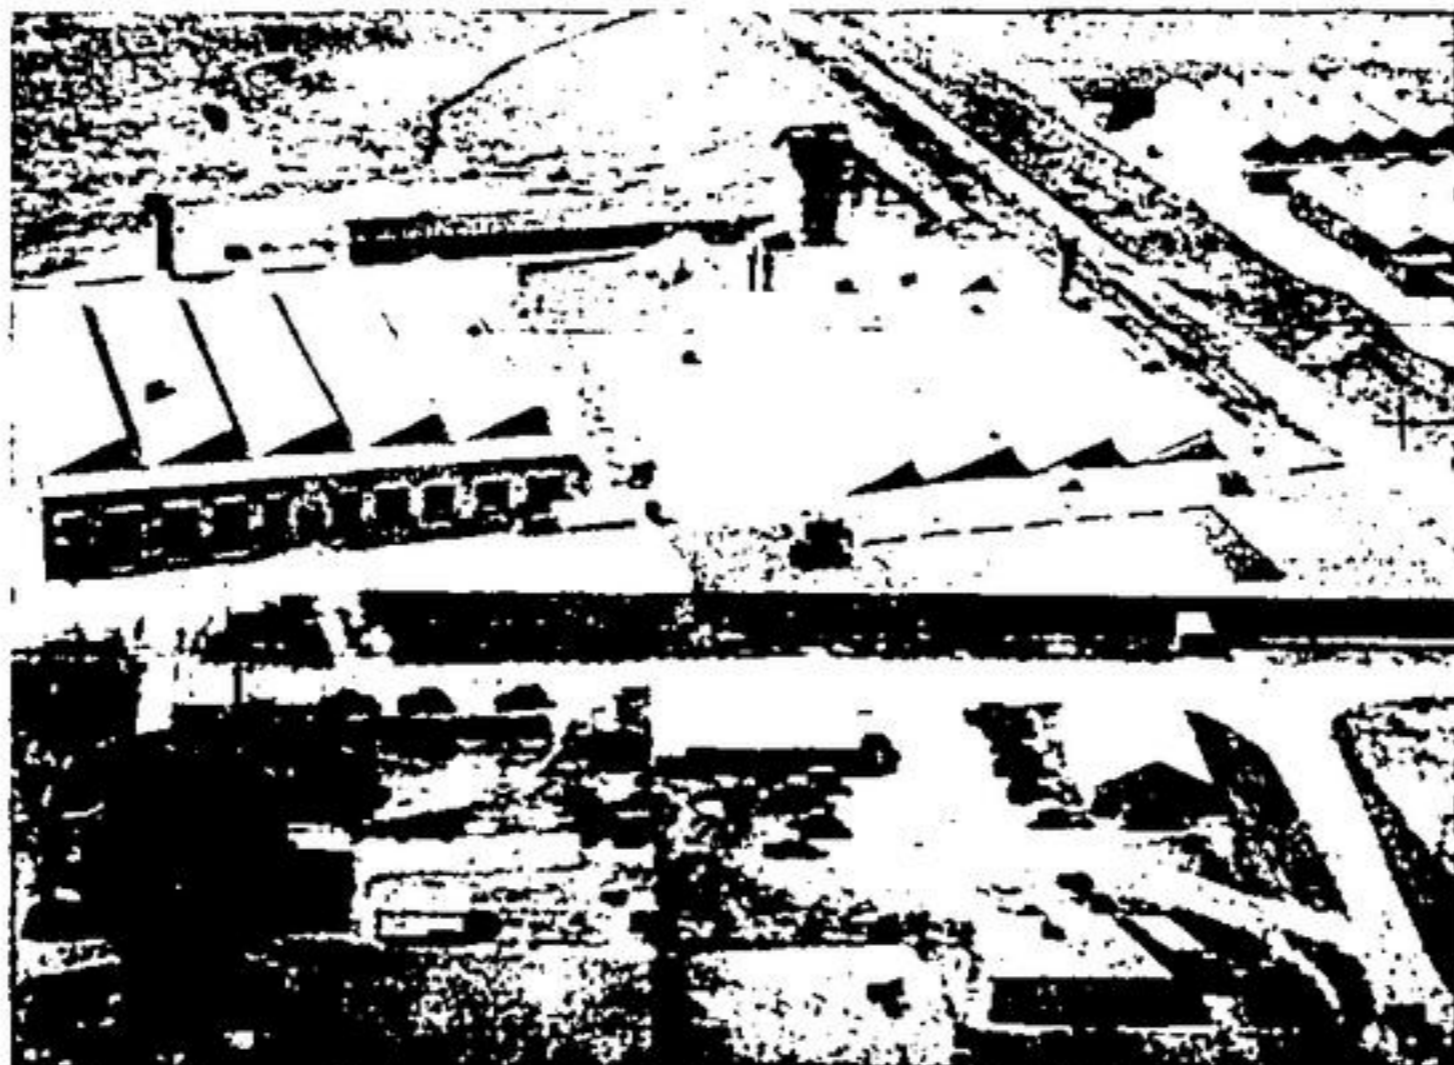

Speaking of the growth of the Company, Will Ford, who has been associated with the organization for twenty-three years, pointed out that when he started there were twenty-seven employees. Now the figure is approximately three hundred, indicating market the company went into.

SMITH & STONE AS IT WAS

This reproduction of an old snapshot taken in 1940 is the best we could do to show what the plant was like in the early days.
