YOUR HELP

IS NEEDED NOW... IF WE ARE TO SAVE OUR LATE FRUITS AND VEGETABLES

Thousands of Tons are Ready for Harvest
Will You Lend a Hand?

Food is precious—let's not waste it through lack of help! Now, in addition to our own needs, we must also help feed the millions of starving people in liberated Europe. This is a tremendous task, but it can be done. If we all do our share. This is the last harvesting emergency we are liable to meet this year—so let's all pitch in and do a real job! Help will be needed from August 20th through to October 20th.

Fill in coupon below and mail TODAY!
FREE TRANSPORTATION
For four weeks' service, transportation will be paid one way. For full season (August 20th to October 20th) transportation will be paid both ways.

- MEN—Every possible man-hour MUST be put in. The need is desperate. Volunteer your services TODAY!
- WOMEN—Every available hand can be used. Fill in the coupon and mail TODAY!
- BOYS AND GIRLS—Thousands are needed. Any High School student willing to work on a farm has permission and is requested by the Minister of Education, to remain out of school for the month of September.

BALLINAFAD

Mr. and Mrs. Sherlock Foreman, of Detroit, U.S.A., spent the week end with the former's parents, Rev. and Mrs. A. O. W. Foreman.

Glad to report that Mr. Bert McMenemy is able to be home again after spending several days in Guelph Hospital as the result of an accident.

Mr. and Mrs. John Snow, Lydia and Clarence returned home after spending a few days in the Ottawa vicinity attending the Snow-MacCas-kill wedding.

Mr. Richard Shortill, of Kitchener, spent last week end with P. W. Shortill's.

Sorry Jimmie Kirkwood is still in hospital. We hope he will soon be well enough to return home.

The Primary Sunday School class held a picnic on Friday. After an enjoyable hour at the falls, games and lunch were enjoyed on the lawn of their teacher, Joanna Shortill.

Miss Helen Robson, of Ottawa, spent a couple of days last week visiting relatives in this community.

A Cottage All Paid For

By Cpl. E. SMOLLETT
McCure Syndicate—WNU Features.

TWO couples were straggling along behind the rest, but the guide shrugged. Nobody got lost in the Broomburg Caves.

That elderly couple had most likely used up their wind climbing the hill from the hotel. As for the towheaded corporal and his pretty bride—they just didn't know anyone existed. Kids like that came to Niagara Falls because they had blissfully planned to come. Once they were there, the rest was hazy. They looked at each other, they ate, they breathed. They toured the caves because the caves lay behind the old Broomburg Hotel, and the tour was free to its patrons.

"Look, Hattie," white-haired Sam Smith said. "This one here is called—what's it say?—Acoustics Cavern."

"Well, we've missed hearing the guide explain it, haven't we? But, Sam, look, Benches!"

Inside, they sank down and admired the pale grace of the stalactites that coned in silent splendor from the ceilings, and the stalagmites that shimmered upward. After a moment, the Smiths laughed and bent and eased off their shoes.

"I wonder," Hattie Smith mused, "why they call it Acoustics Cavern?"

That was when the younger couple caught up with them. "Some day, honey," the towheaded corporal was saying, "I'll show you the real thing—those big caves down in New Mexico!" He stopped short with his slim bride, seeing the Smiths. The Smiths smiled a little. Then they stopped smiling, in surprise, for the corporal exclaimed: "Heck! I thought we'd be alone in here!"

And his bride replied, just as clearly, "But it's only that old couple, Ted. They look nice, and not snoopy. Let's go sit across from them."

The Smiths turned to stare at each other, catching their breaths a little. Then it struck them both at once, and Sam Smith grinned at his wife. So they called this place Acoustics Cavern, did they? But it was too late to put their fingers in their ears.

"It's beautiful, isn't it?" The girl leaned her bright head on the young corporal's shoulder. "Ted, just look at that pinkish stuff, the way the light hits it. The whole place is lovely. Even... even those two people sitting there, Ted. Why, it's just like seeing into a crystal!"

"What do you mean, honey?"

"Oh, Ted, I don't exactly know. Just that—Ted, what will you bet they're on their second honeymoon, maybe even celebrating their golden anniversary?"

Sam Smith's hand crept tenderly over his wife's still fingers.

"I'll bet they're not," the corporal said. "I'll bet they always wanted to come to Niagara Falls just as we did, and he got a good war job or something, and it's the first time they could ever afford it."

"... with the kids all grown up and married," put in the girl eagerly, "and the cottage all paid for, and maybe their grandchildren coming to stay every summer."

They looked at each other, smiling. "I guess I understand now what you meant about seeing into a crystal," the towheaded corporal said softly. "All those things are what we're going to have, aren't they, honey?"

"Yes, Ted. All those things... You can tell, by the way fate put us here, looking at those two!"

The Smiths sat very still. They heard the corporal say, though he seemed only to be whispering it: "Honey, you mustn't ever be afraid I won't come back. I'll bet they went through a war too, and he came back! So you keep right on looking into your crystal, and everything will come out O. K."

When they rose to leave, the Smiths followed them with their eyes. The corporal and his bride stopped at the entrance. "I wonder," he said, "why they call this place Acoustics Cavern? See the sign? I didn't hear anything funny in there. Did you?"

When they had disappeared, the Smiths turned to each other swiftly, and Sam Smith took his wife's trembling hands in his. She said, "Sam, I'll never forget a word they said. That's... that's the way I'll think about us from now on. I'll believe in all those things about... about our golden anniversary, and our cottage all paid for, and the children staying for the summer—"

Sam Smith grinned. "All right, Hattie; dream if you like, but I'm going to think of us just as we are! Nothing could have been more wonderful than the way you came into my life—not that anything's too much to expect from you war-patient women. There I was, foreman for a good twenty years, with never a female in the place!"

"And there you are," said Hattie Smith as they bent to fasten their shoes, "never finding the right man 'till I took a job filing hooks for Navy planes."

The elderly couple left Acoustics Cavern just in time to merge with the other sightseers, now on their way back. The guide glanced at them out of the corner of his eye.

An Overseas Romance

By J. A. Strang

Most of us get a thrill out of a wedding account even though we may not know the happy couple. However, some of our readers may know this particular couple and if so these lines should be of special interest.

The bride as a nursing sister in the Isolation ward of No. 10 Canadian General Hospital, which for some time has been located in Belgium about thirty-five miles from Antwerp. The groom was an officer, and the plans called for a wedding in Paris, France. Maybe you can imagine the thrill, especially for the bride, of a Paris wedding. The wedding day had been set, and then it happened a short time before the wedding day arrived the groom's jeep hit a tree along the highway and the groom had a leg broken. Many of us think that we have the odd spot of tough luck these days but one would think that a nurse that had been through the invasion over there would be exempt from hard luck especially on her wedding day.

However, these nurses have a way with them and she saw to it that the groom's leg was set in a walking cast, and the wedding came off as arranged just over a week ago. The boys in the Isolation ward couldn't let such an important event as a wedding get by without doing something about it so they arranged a shower for the bride. Taking up a collection among themselves they secured the services of another nurse to act as shopping service for them, and they were able to get some Belgian lace of a pattern the same as the bride had been buying for herself. They saw to it that some small bits, of the same pattern of course, were included, just in case they might be needed some day.

No. 10 Canadian General Hospital is closing for keeps; however, we will bet that the bride will remember those boys in the Isolation ward that helped make her wedding just a little brighter. Those soldiers have been through some rather grim events since they left Canada, but judging by their actions on this occasion they must still be very much Canadian in their ways.
