JACQUES LABREQUE

The tenor voice heard weekly on 'Serenade for Strings', Sundays, at 7:00 p. m. EDT, 8:00 p. m. ADT on the CBC Trans-Canada network, is that of Jacques Labreque, one of Montreal's favorite gifts to radio. He has been singing regularly for CBC audiences since 1936 and has made several appearances among the distinguished company heard in Canada's Victory Star Shows.

An official, completing the record of a young woman volunteer for war-service, asked who was her next-of-kin. 'I haven't any,' she said. 'What?' said the official, 'no father, mother aunts, brothers, uncles?' 'No' she said, and then, after a pause added doubtfully, 'There's my husband if he'll do.'

Chocolate Cake
By FRANK BENNETT
McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
WNU Features.

THE Rev. John Bivens, young, tall, thin and studiously bespectacled, eyed his neat handwritten notes anxiously and at the same time drew through thin nostrils the tantalizing aroma of freshly baked cake. It had been creeping into his study the entire morning, distracting him considerably from concentration on sermon No. 1. With great determination he applied himself to the work in hand. It was to be his introduction to Gainsville and John, although young in years, was wise enough to know the value of the first impression.

Without warning the door behind him opened and Elsie, his wife of two weeks and four days, burst into his study. "John!" she cried, her voice that of one who knows sudden and unexpected success, "Oh, John, it's perfect! After two failures — I've — oh, John, you must come and look at it!"

John turned and smiled fondly at this pretty young lady with blond hair and sky-blue eyes whose face was flushed with wifely triumph. Remembering his sermon he sighed, but dutifully followed her into the kitchen to gaze with admiration at the beautiful cake. A great husbandly pride filled his heart, causing him to forget completely the two misshapen attempts which had preceded this masterpiece. And to ignore the ration points they had consumed. "Wonderful!" he said fervently.

"Thank you, my sweet." Elsie gave his hand a little pat. "I've done it all for you, just to produce the "Wonderful!" he said fervently. proper effect on the ladies. Now I must rush. There's a meeting of Circle No. 2, and I don't want to be late."

"Quite right," John agreed, convinced that no man was ever more fortunate in the selection of a wife than he. "I'll back the car out for you."

With the cake safely cradled in a large green basket, Elsie drove happily toward the church and the meeting of Circle No. 2. John returned hopefully to sermon No. 1.

Not many minutes passed before he heard a hearty knock. Frowning slightly at this second interruption, he opened the front door to find Mr. Boli, the local garage man, standing on the porch. On the driveway was Mr. Boli's wrecker; hitched to it was the front end of the old brown car. One glance told John that his ancient vehicle had been driven with considerable force into some more or less solid object.

Mr. Boli was without tact or imagination. "Your wife phoned me she run the ol' can into a bridge banister and that I was to come and pick up what was left. What do you want done with it?"

John Bivens struggled to speak coherently; there was a lump of fear in his throat. "My wife — was she injured?"

"Couldn't say. What about the junk pile?"

"Unhitch it, please." And the Rev. John Bivens, without hat, coat, or further thought of sermon No. 1, climbed aboard Mr. Boli's wrecker. "To the church, please," he directed. But his arrival at Circle No. 2 went unnoticed. The ladies were intent upon diminutive Mrs. Bivens who was beaming with delight. Her cheeks were pink with well-earned pride. Everyone seemed to be talking at once.
