

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

By Don Brill
 The first form boys softball team went down to defeat at the hands of Mr. Wrigglesworth's Public School boys. Don Herrington, besides pitching a marvellous game, accounted for three of the Public School's four runs. Don Brydon playing a good game at short, passed up the other tally. Muir pitched well for G.H.S., while Bill Arnold played a good game on second and Hamilton did well on first. Bob Lavole, catching well up to the seventh inning for Public School, went out of the game in favor of John Tyers after being hit by a foul-tip off the bat of Bill Arnold. Tough luck, Bob.
 The line score was: Public—4 runs, from 9 hits and 2 walks; High—no runs, with six hits and no walks. Men left on base: Public 7, High 6, strike-outs—Muir 6, Herrington 10.

CPL. ED. FRANCIS TELLS OF LIFE AS PRISONER OF WAR

The Red Cross rooms in the Post Office were officially opened last Friday after a two-month holiday, when a number of workers gathered for a social afternoon.
 Cpl. Ed. Francis, was guest speaker for the afternoon and told in some detail about his life as a prisoner of war from the time he was taken prisoner at Mieppe until his release after V-E Day. He paid tribute to the Red Cross and said that had it not been for food parcels received from the organization, the prisoners could not have existed on the rations provided by the Germans.
 Mrs. L. DeVries also spoke, and translated letters received from relatives in Holland describing life under German rule. Mrs. T. Wold, who was to have spoken on Norway, was unable to be at the meeting, and members will have the opportunity to hear her at a later date.
 Mrs. W. G. O. Thompson introduced the speakers and Mrs. Ralph Ross thanked them on behalf of the meeting. Refreshments were served, Mrs. William Cooke pouring tea.
 The Society is particularly anxious for ladies to assist in quilting, as several quilts are included in the year's quota of work. Other articles such as children's clothing are also urgently required and every lady who wishes to help will be welcomed at the rooms.

W. J. Beatty Heads Halton Conservatives

Monday evening, September 17, was the occasion of the annual meeting of the Halton County Progressive-Conservative Association which was held in the Milton town hall. There was a good attendance and the special guests of the evening were Hon. Dana Porter, Minister of Planning and Development in the Ontario Cabinet, and Stanley Hall, M.L.A.
 One of the highlights of the meeting was the election of officers for the ensuing year. Mr. W. J. Beatty of Acton was elected to succeed the retiring President, Mr. Duncan McCallum. The other officers are as follows—1st Vice-President, A. S. Nicholson, Burlington; 2nd Vice-president, Mrs. Edwin Hallett, Oakville; treasurer, Mr. Leathleyland, Acton; secretary, Mr. Lloyd Dingle, Burlington.
 Following the election of officers the representatives of the municipalities to the County Executive were approved.

The constitution of the County Organization was amended during the course of the meeting to add the lady vice-presidents of each municipality to the Advisory Committee.
 The guest speaker of the evening, Hon. Dana Porter, gave a highly interesting address on some of the present and future problems for which the country as a whole and Ontario in particular must prepare, problems which, to a great extent will come under the care of his Ministry of Planning and Development. The speaker was introduced by Stanley Hall, M.L.A. and a vote of thanks was moved by Mrs. Edwin Hallett, thanking Mr. Porter for his presence.
 Mr. Stanley Hall, our sitting member in the Ontario government, and Mr. A. S. Nicholson also spoke briefly.
 The Hon. Dana Porter, in his address, made one point which was particularly effective and which Canadians might do well to bear in mind when they are confronted by the statement, "the government always finds money to finance a war, but in peacetime money seems to be scarce." Mr. Porter pointed out that the war hasn't been paid for yet, and won't be for many years to come.

DISTRICT DOCTORS MEET AT BRAMPTON

Under the auspices of Peel County Medical Association, district No. 5 of the O.M.A. met in St. Paul's Church, Brampton, last Wednesday. The program was interesting not only for the members but also for a number of their wives who were present.
 After the business agenda in the forenoon, luncheon was served in the Maple Leaf Club to the doctors and their wives. Highlights of the afternoon meeting included a paper on "Arthritis" by Major G. Douglas Taylor, RCAMC of Chorley Park Hospital, "Modern Concepts of Pre and Post Operative Management" by Prof. E. M. Robertson of Queen's University.
 In the evening, after a sumptuous chicken dinner at the church, two guest speakers discussed matters of public concern—Dr. William Magner, president-elect of the Ontario Medical Association, and Rev. Norman Rawson, of Hamilton, a former pastor at St. Paul's Church.
 The ladies were entertained during the day at the homes of Dr. and Mrs. W. W. Bartlett and Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Caldwell, and afternoon tea was served to the group at the B. H. Bull Estate. After dinner, special prizes were presented for bridge and the dinner ticket draw. A couple of "surgical instruments" were humorously donated by Brampton physicians to the winners.

Blake Howard, The Second
 By CLARA BRAUTOVICK
 McClure Syndicate—WNU Features.

KAY hurried along through the misty shipyard, trying to catch up with the launching party ahead that was being guided to the Liberty ship S. S. Blake Howard. She was late because she'd been caught in the melee of tin-helmeted men and kerchiefed women coming off the graveyard shift. Approval lighted the red eyes of the younger men as they passed her.
 Carlene, Blake's sister, must have suggested her name, for the invitation from the shipyard read, "Guest of the sponsor." Carlene never resented her as the older Howards had.

It might embarrass the family to have her here. It wouldn't hurt her—for suffering had drained her dry of emotion. She had lived in a vacuum ever since word had come that Blake had lost his life in covering the Pacific war as a foreign correspondent. She didn't even care now who won. There could never be any sort of victory for her.
 Ahead, a long sleek car halted. Mr. and Mrs. Howard and Carlene stopped out and led the way. Kay stayed in the rear. As she rounded a corner she saw the shining new stern of a Liberty ship, and on its side the name Blake Howard. She lost some of her numbness and was afraid she would cry. "Not now!" she told herself severely.

Winding steps mounted to a platform built to the keel. The faces of the workmen were expectant and proud. From beneath the great hull came the sound of blocks being removed. The Howard's ascended to a smaller, higher platform. The women carried large sprays of red roses. Blake had always brought just such roses to Kay.
 Cameras clicked. Of course newspapermen would be at the launching of a ship honoring a reporter who'd been killed covering the biggest story of all!

A shipyard representative showed Carlene how to hold and swing the red, white and blue encased bottle of champagne. Then, trotting to the microphone, he boasted that this ship had been built in twenty-six days and that well over three hundred and fifty had gone down the ways since the war began.

Then a noted editor spoke of Blake Howard, the man. It was hard to hear everything above the roar. But Kay did get the references to "the curly-headed kid with the shining eyes." He told of the great stories Blake had written. But nothing of the woman he'd loved—the most important part of a man's life!

The first speaker explained that the steel plates were all that now held back the ship. He said he'd count as torches burned through them. "Burn number one!" he cried dramatically.

Till now Kay had kept out of sight of the Howards. Interested, she stepped forward. Her name was called and she glanced up. Mrs. Howard, holding out a thin hand, said, "Come quickly!"
 Someone prodded Kay from behind. She found herself mounting the steps as the second order came, "Number two!"

Carlene, poised the bottle, yelled, "Take this, Kay. You're the one who should launch this ship!"
 "No!"
 Mrs. Howard grabbed her hand and pulled her to Carlene's side. "Both of you hold on!" she ordered. Kay's old awe of Mrs. Howard made her obey.

"Number three!"
 The ship began to tremble and lurch forward. As it started to move away Kay swung the bottle. It crashed against the hull and the champagne foamed in a weird design. The second Blake Howard slipped away from her to go into active service. Only this time Kay was glad! Looking at the bottle that she still clutched tensely, she was suddenly aware that it had broken in a perfect deep "V."

Kay thought, "I've launched a ship—Blake's ship! For Carlene had taken her fingers off. Suddenly Kay felt alive. Her eyes met the friendly ones of the Howards. "They don't resent me any longer!" she told herself, and watched the ship float away.

Someone said, "Now she goes to the fitting-out dock and in two weeks she'll be ready for service."
 Ready for service! Blake had been ready. Was Kay?
 Men and women had fallen into their places and were already working. They were building another Liberty ship, started even before the S. S. Blake Howard hit water.

The necessity for speed, the thought that every second counted because the enemy also had that second in which to work, struck Kay all at once.

As the shipyard representative thanked her and presented her with a gift, Mrs. Howard asked Kay to go home with her.
 "Thanks, but—"

"We objected to Blake's marriage but now we want to thank you for having made Blake happy."
 Kay kissed the leathery cheek. "I'll come soon, but not now. I've something to do." She motioned toward the overalled women, riveting. "I'm ashamed of all the days I've wasted. I'm going to the employment office to ask the name of a school where I can learn to do my part."

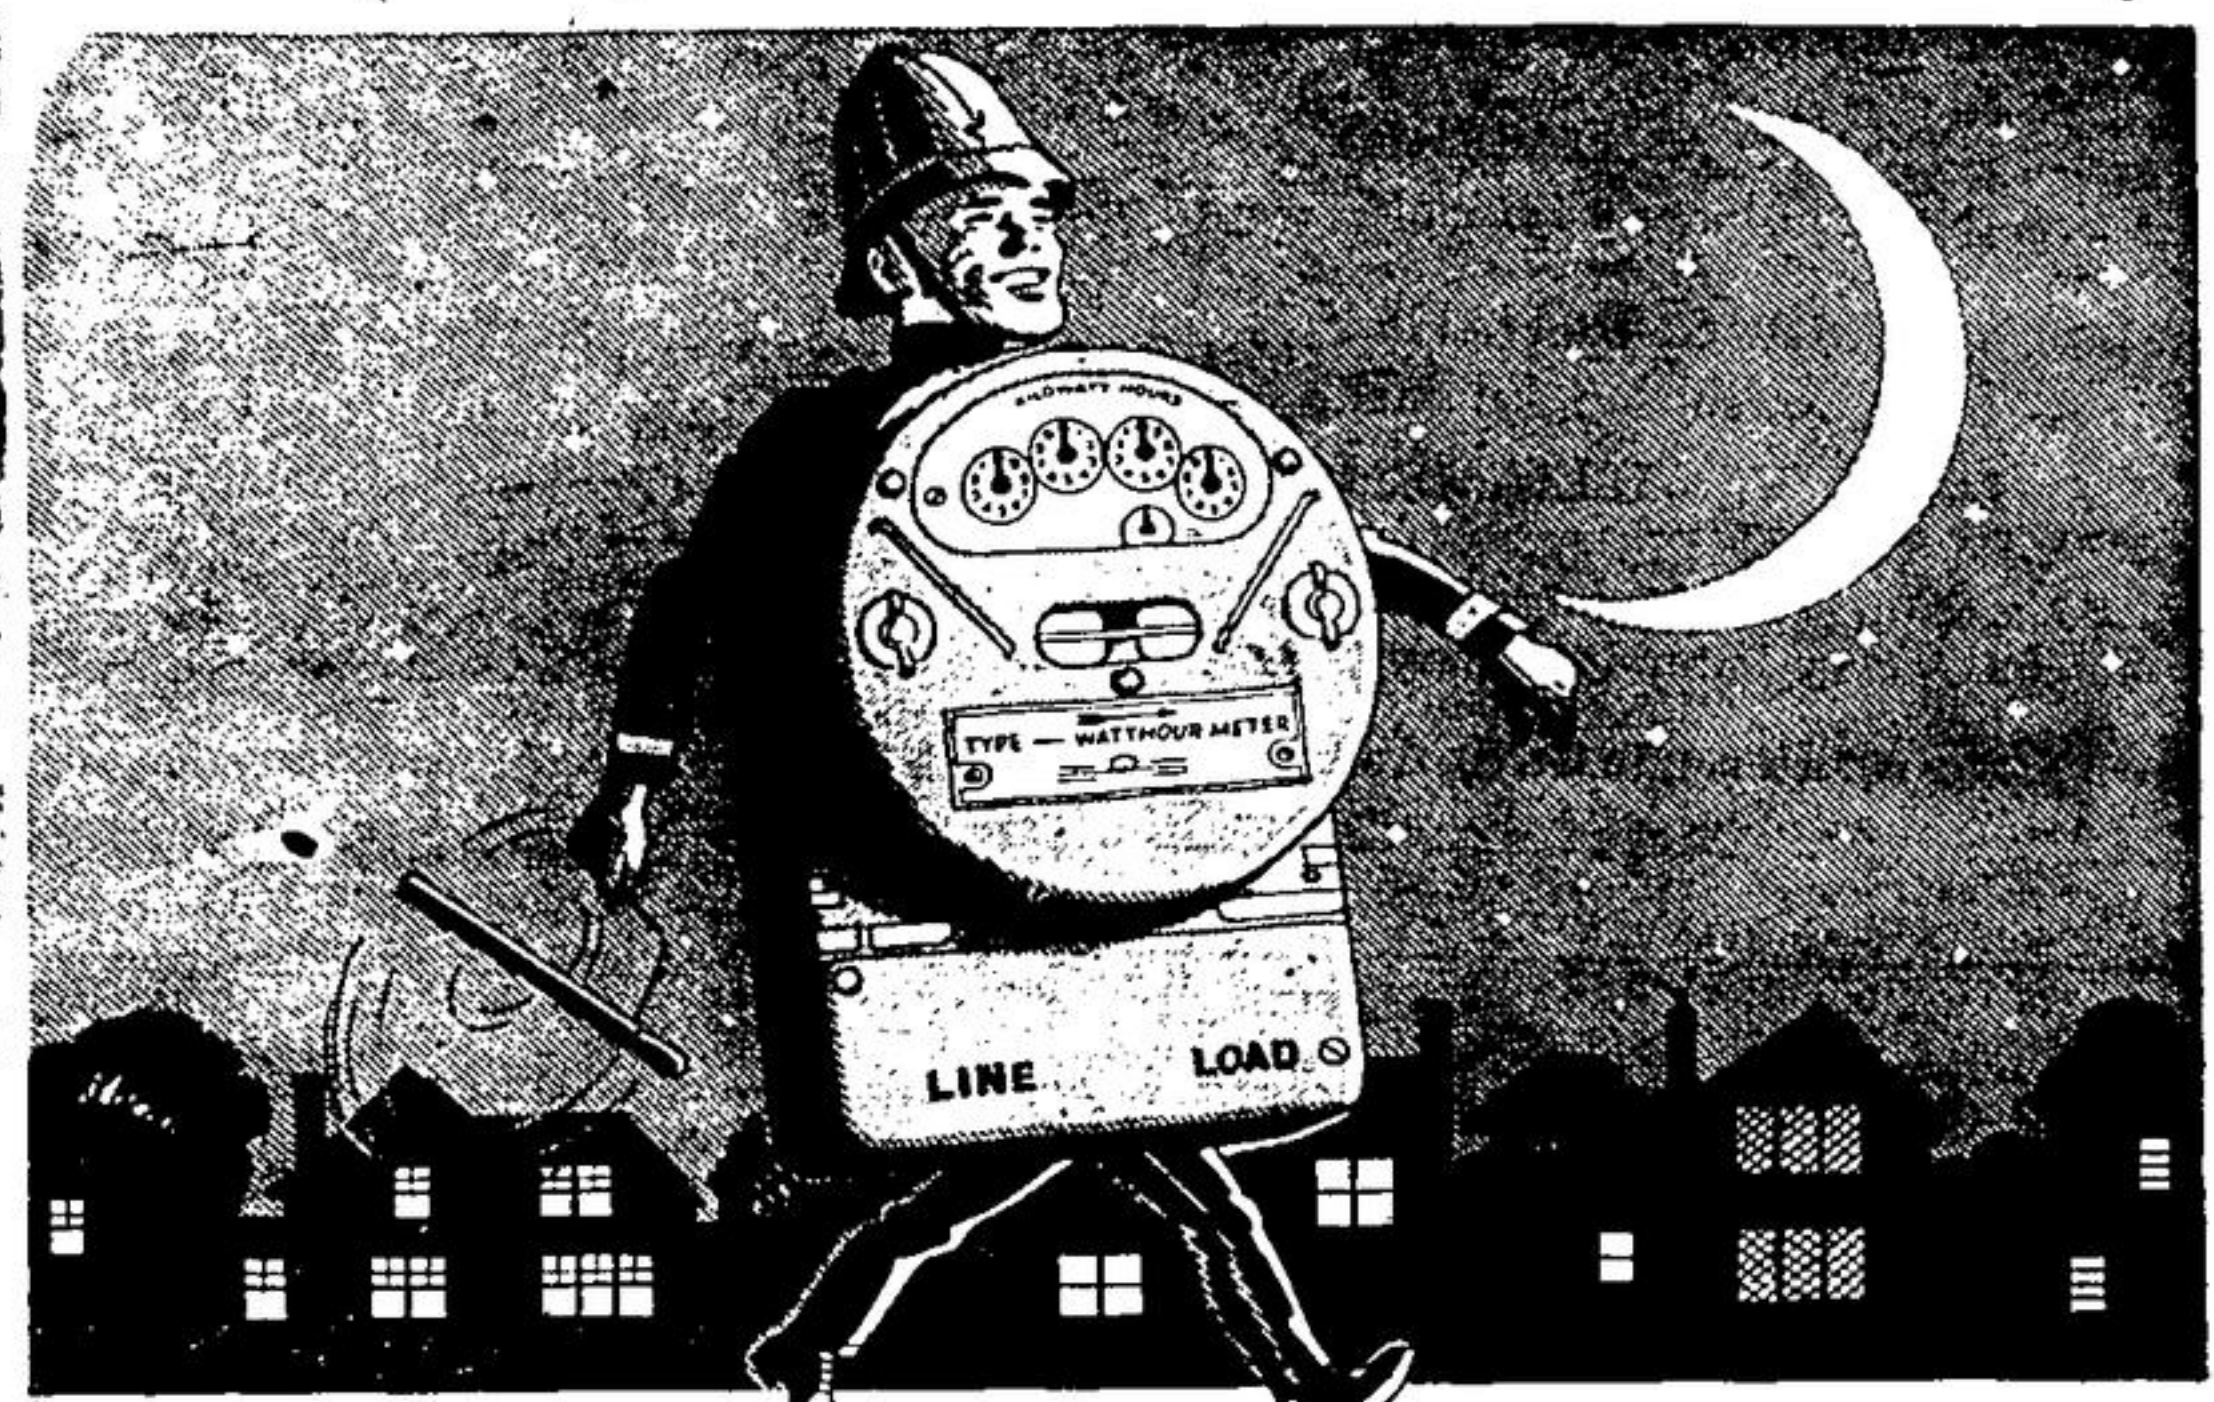

LIONS CLUB MEETING

The dinner meeting of the Georgetown Lions Club was held in the McGibbon House on Monday evening and took the form of a business meeting when future plans and projects of the Club were discussed. Plans were started for the annual Christmas Tree and the club investigated the possibility of holding a number of amateur nights to encourage local talent. Lions Charles Willson and Jack Armstrong entertained with two cornet duets, accompanied by Mrs. Willson at the piano.
