Harley-Kay Firm Changes Hands

Third Georgetown manufacturing business to change ownership in the past year, an announcement has been made that Harley-Kay, Limited has been sold to Mr. Stanley Marsland of the Marsland Engineering Co., Kitchener. The deal involves the complete knitting-machine, business, plant and equipment of the firm, which is located on Water Street just down from the Post Office. A new company will be incorporated, to be known as Harley-Kay Marsland Limited.

The business will be carried on with all the present staff except W. E. Nodwell who is retiring. Plans are being made to expand the business, which has been primarily on war orders during the past five years, in order to meet the immediate domestic post war and export business of the company, and it is expected the firm will contribute to the industrial future of Georgetown.

Mr. Stanley Marsland operates plants in Kitchener, Ontario, and Allentown, Pennsylvania, and is well-known in engineering circles. While he will not be making his home in town, he will be here a good part of his time in connection with the operation of the business, and we welcome him to the community.

Previous business changes this year involved the sale by Mr. B. Stone of the Smith and Stone plant to Duplate Limited and the sale of O. B. Dayfoot and Co. to Mr. E. J. Johnston, who operates under the firm name, The Dayfoot Shoe Company.
