LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Editor,
Georgetown Herald,
October 15, 1946

Dear Sir:
I do not wish to prolong the discussion with the Teen-Ager, but will answer his last letter, then insofar as I am concerned, the matter is closed.

When I said that work, rather than a fine array of buildings was the 'Key' to success in life, I meant just that. The Teen-Ager seems to have contradicted himself in that, in his first letter, he implied that it was impossible for G. H. S. students to obtain proper training due to lack of facilities, and now he tells us that "results this year at G.H.S. were among the highest in the province."

No, Teen-Ager, I regret to say the parents do not think first of the school facilities when looking toward a new area in which to settle. The first thought is "Will it be able to find suitable employment," the second, "Will I find a home for my children and myself." With these two matters taken care of, the parents can consider education.

As you say, this building program has been talked about for many years. The students did a grand job of selling War Savings Stamps, etc. during the war years, so why not start doing something about the new buildings yourselves. Get a drive underway as a Building Fund. It will not be completed in one or two years, but at least something concrete will have been done towards securing the buildings.

Your very truly
ex-G.H.S.

MRS. ROBERT HILL CELEBRATES 95th BIRTHDAY ON FRIDAY

Mrs. Robert Hill, Glen Williams' "grand old lady" will celebrate her 95th birthday this Friday, October 18. Mrs. Hill is in good health and takes an active interest in her home and community. Born in the Scotch Block, she has been a life-long resident of the district.

She has a family of seven children: Catherine, Jim and Bert, Glen Williams; Edward, Toronto; Mrs. Andrew Mino, Lismore; Mrs. Ernest Rogers, R. R. 1, Glen Williams; and Mrs. Jack Ferguson, Saskatchewan. Her husband passed away six years ago.

THRIFT MINDED CANADIANS WILL BE GIVEN CHANCE TO BUY SAVINGS BONDS AGAINST RAINY DAY

Million dollar babies! Yes, sir, that's Joan Gilmour and Gwen Tetlock of Ottawa, who got themselves quite an armful ($1,000,000 each to be exact) when the photographer found them at their work in the national vaults where Canada Savings Bonds are being packaged for distribution to the country's banks, investment dealers, trust companies and similar institutions which will have the new bonds for sale on Oct. 15 and after. Joan and Gwen were so enthusiastic about the bonds they put the calendar ahead to the opening day of the sale. "Anybody can be sitting pretty with Canada Savings Bonds," the girls declare.

Less than a year ago, in the dying hours of the Ninth Victory Loan, a group of factory workers in Brantford, Ontario, sent a formal request to National War Finance Committee officials asking that some form of bond savings be continued even though the war was over. These men and women, like thousands more throughout the country, felt that their bond purchases were a top-notch savings plan and they didn't want to lose a good thing once it was within their grasp.

Beginning this week, Canadians everywhere will have another opportunity to salt away their dollars in a good interest-bearing savings plan to be called Canadian Savings Bonds. The N.W.F.C. and its complex organization is, like saving stamps, blood banks, scrap drives and all the other wartime operations a thing of the past. "But the desire of the people to increase their stake in Canada, and at the same time add to their financial reserves, has not lessened," a department of finance spokesman said here today, in describing the new bonds.

"That is no mere supposition by us here in Ottawa," he added. "We recently had a scientifically conducted poll made by experts among present bondholders of the $3,000 a year and under class and found that 82 per cent wanted another opportunity to buy government bonds this year."

It is pointed out that the Canada Savings Bonds are not needed for the government's fiscal commitments. Nor is Ottawa using this bond drive as an anti-inflationary measure. "We know that the people want these bonds, so we are offering them purely as a service to the thrift-minded men and women of the country," it is explained.

The Canada Savings Bonds, and the methods of selling them, differ in many respects from the recent Victory Bond campaigns. This time, except for professional bond salesmen, there will be no knocking on doors to solicit applications. Bonds will be on sale at all banks, bond houses, trust companies and similar financial institutions, and in most cases the buyer goes to the seller instead of the reverse, as was the case during Victory Loans. A payroll savings canvass will be made in all plants where such a canvass is desired, and both payroll savings buyers as well as others will again be allowed to buy on the instalment plan. All Canada Savings Bonds will be registered and will not be transferable or assignable; but they, like the Victory Bonds, can be sold without trouble at any bank for cash should the need arise. It is felt also that although they are not transferable, they will be accepted as security for bank loans because they are badges of the holder's thrift and responsibility.

There will be four denominations - $50, $100, $500 and $1,000. No buyer may take more than $2,000. The interest coupons will be payable annually. The interest rate is 2 1/2 per cent.

"Remember, the whole campaign is entirely up to the individual citizen," an official here declares. "This time there will be no general canvass, no bands, speeches or flag-waving. We feel that most people want to tread cautiously today and save all they can for the future. Here is the chance."

THE WEATHER

(by H. L. Hutt)

After an absence of more than forty years, we returned last week to Niagara Falls, the home of our childhood, to celebrate our 80th birthday, look up old friends, and note changes. The weather was fine and we had a glorious trip. Our friend Will Nodwell took his son John and me in his trailer and we camped wherever night overtook us. The first on the lake shore at Jordan. The sky was clear and we saw that shower of meteors at its best. Thursday night we saw the falls in all the colors of the rainbow under a clear sky and a full moon.

After three full days sight seeing we parked alongside of Brock's monument on Queenston Heights. There the weather caught up with us and we slept soundly to the music of rain on the roof. As it had set in for an all day's rain, we hiked for home and enjoyed seeing the lush green fields of fall wheat, and the bright colours of autumn foliage along the road.

The old relatives at home had kept the records for us, and here they are.

LIMEHOUSE

Mrs. John Riddell of Milton was guest speaker at the autumn thank-offering meeting of the W.M.S., held at Mrs. H. Norton's on October 10th. She entitled her talk "Love" stating that if everyone in the world loved everyone else for one minute the disputes in the world would be settled. This love of the early Christian has been lost and we must regain it to live in peace. She called the Bible a book of love and named stories in it which proved it was so. She ended by repeating the passage "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten son, that whosoever believeth in him should have everlasting life."

Mrs. A. W. Norton sang, "Only Jesus Satisfies," during the program. Nineteen ladies attended the meeting. Refreshments were served at the close.

One of the worst accidents in some time occurred last night about 10.15 on No. 7 highway when Gifford's taxi of Brampton swerved off the road and turned over several times. The accident happened in front of the Hughes farm near Norval. The car was proceeding east toward Brampton and after leaving the road came to rest in the left-hand ditch.

Three of the car's seven occupants, all Brampton men, were seriously injured. Peter Anthony, 30, prominent Brampton lacrosse and hockey player, died in Peel Memorial Hospital early this morning, as a result of a fractured skull and internal injuries. James Gifford, 21, driver of the car suffered a broken pelvis and George Martell, head lacerations. They are both in hospital in Brampton. The other four men, Grant Gallagher, Gordon Steel, Earl Copeland and Jack Palmer were able to return to their homes after treatment.
