HUMOR AND PATHOS IN PAROCHIAL DRAMA
Plenty of laughs and a tear or two highlight "The Bells of St. Mary's," Leo McCarey's first production since his all-conquering "Going My Way." Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman are starred in this brilliant comedy-drama, story of which is spun around a parochial school. Bing is cast as Father O'Malley, pastor of St. Mary's. His modern methods for educating and rearing the young are in humorous contrast to those of the nuns headed by Ingrid Bergman. Benedict, played by Ingrid Bergman. But a threat to the very existence of their beloved school finds priest and nuns fighting side by side, different ways to avert a catastrophe. The picture plays this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at the Gregory Theatre.
