Today we Live in a Greater Canada

The Last Frontier Vanishes...

TODAY mining and industry push forward to the Arctic Circle, as Canadian initiative develops the vast resources—the minerals, waterpower and oil—of the one-time wilderness.

New war-time transportation facilities ended the isolation of millions of square miles of the Northwest. The airplane brought the farthest corners of our country—inaccessible for centuries—within a day or two of the cities of the continent.

That northward expansion is typical of modern developments which are stimulating all Canadian activities today, creating new and greater opportunities in every field of endeavour.

Until the present century the story of Canada's North was an epic of exploration—from the days of Elizabethan seamen seeking the Northwest Passage and the old fur traders pushing into the wilderness, down to the Arctic journeys of Stefansson and Bernier and the Mountie patrols of our own time.

Greatest single factor in Northland development was the airplane. It made possible the most significant mining discovery in the North—when, at Great Bear Lake in 1930, pitchblende was found—the continent's only source of uranium, vital ingredient of the atom bomb.

The war brought new activity to the North, and the creation of great new lines of transportation and communication—the Alaska Highway and the famous Air Staging Routes—with landing fields and radio and meteorological stations established throughout the territory.

DAVID HENDERSON started his own business in Montreal when only 17, and displayed an energy and integrity in surmounting early difficulties which won him the friendship and support of his suppliers and bank manager. After achieving success as a jobber he commenced the manufacture of felt hat shapes in an old windowless building. Today his Beacon Products Inc., in its new up-to-date Valleyfield plant, is considered one of the most successful plants of its kind in Canada.

MR. HENDERSON says: "No other country offers such opportunities as does Canada to young men who have ideas and the determination to back them up. Here, if their plans are sound and they know their business, they will find plenty of help and encouragement and every assurance of success."
