

ACTON WALLLOPS INTERMEDIATES 13-4 IN ACTON PARK

It took four Georgetown pitchers to retire the Acton team when they went on a scoring spurge in the eighth inning and chalked up eight of their thirteen runs on Saturday. Up to that time, the game had been on an even keel and pitcher Bill Bryden had scattered his eight hits to allow five runs while Georgetown had counted four runs on ten hits allowed by Acton's Chabun. After pitching to three men in the eighth, Bryden was replaced on the mound by Williams who put Lindsay on base when he was hit by a pitched ball, walked Evans and allowed a hit to Kentner and was replaced by McCallum, who took on the next six Acton batters. Murdoch ended the frame on the mound and retired the side when Evans fled out.

Georgetown's hits were registered by Chaplin (2), Storey (3), Gibson, Bill Ritchie, Norton, Murdoch and Bryden. Kentner and Pottit led Acton with three apiece.

Georgetown — Ev Wilson, cf; Hal Gibson, ss; Bill Chaplin, lf; Bill Ritchie, rf; Cliff Norton, c; Kent Storey, 2b; Larry Ritchie, 3b; Art Murdoch, 1b and p; Bill Bryden, p. Williams relieved Bryden in the 8th, and was relieved by McCallum, with Murdoch pitching to the last batter. Andy Ritchie pinch-hit for McCallum in the 9th.

Some Like Them Bold

WALTER GATES sat stright as a rod, although it was nearly four hours since he had started waiting to see the managing editor. He was poised hopefully on the edge of the chair, as if he expected each minute might bring back the copy boy with the news that Mr. Pool was ready to see him about the reporting job.

But, instead, the photographer came around the corner for the fourth time from the direction of the clacking city room. Walt stopped him. "You'll never get to see the old man sitting here, Matey," the photographer informed him. "He hates appointments. Funny that way."

"Then how does anyone ever see him?" Walt inquired. His forehead was furrowed deeply, up to the line of his thick blond hair. He explained he had had a little reporting experience before Army service. Now that he was discharged, he wanted to get back into newspaper work. He shifted his weight from one foot to the other, proving to himself again that the artificial legs he pass out these days are no handicap.

The photographer stepped closer to Walt and spoke softly from the corner of his mouth. He suggested Walt break in on the chief. "But don't let on you know who he is," the photographer schemed. "I know a guy who got a job that way, only he didn't know he was talking to Pool, see?"

"But I couldn't do that," Walt protested. "What's to stop you? Pool's a quiet guy, but he likes 'em bold."

"... But I think the paper is too neutral."

As Walter descended to the pressroom where the chief was, the acrid odor of the etching acid reached him. He had always thought it displeasing. But now he recognized it as part of the nostalgia every enthusiastic reporter has for a newspaper office. It was akin to the unkempt appearance of city rooms and the crippled typewriters about which the reporters always complain.

Walt casually observed the bang of newsprint threading through the presses and, pretending he belonged there, from the corner of his eye he hunted for Mr. Pool. All the men wore the handmade boxlike caps which most pressmen fashion for themselves from a piece of newsprint paper—all except one.

Walt looked at him more closely. He stood with his hands behind his back, doing nothing but observe moaning machines. He fitted exactly the photographer's description of Mr. Pool. He wore large black-rimmed glasses and his graying hair was parted far to one side. Walt strolled casually up to him and they watched the presses together. After waiting for Mr. Pool to speak first, Walt ventured: "There's no end to the excitement of seeing the paper go to press, is there?" He had to shout to be heard. The man merely glanced at Walt coolly over the dark rims of his glasses.

"I like the Post," Walt resumed. "It's a good solid paper. Lot of tradition behind it. But..." here he searched self-consciously for ideas that were not his own. "... But I think the paper is too neutral. It never gets excited about anything. Know what I mean?"

There was still no remark from Mr. Pool. "It ought to have definite policies. Ought to guide the thinking of its readers on important topics."

"Yeah?" The man looked Walt sternly up and down.

"I think the Post needs new blood," Walt went on. "Young blood." He considered giving himself as an example, but decided against being too obvious. "Of course it's the men at the top who count where policies are concerned. Perhaps the Post needs a new managing editor." He was sorry as soon as the bold words had passed his lips, at his comments had brought the man's head around with a jerk.

But now, with Mr. Pool glaring at him in apparent anger, Walt could only add weakly, "What do you think?"

"I think you're batty as a loon," Walt felt his cheeks burn. He sought some way to escape as gracefully as possible. "But I wouldn't know," the man added. He brought his hands from behind his back and placed a boxlike paper cap on his head. "I'm only a pressman myself."

Tsk, Tsk! After being taken to task by the Acton sports scribe last year for counting in the games in the weekly summary, we find the P. F. doing just that last week. Can it be that the rule book has been revised?

Mr. Arnett Early, assessor for the town of Georgetown, attended the convention of assessing officers in Sudbury last week.

PAUL A. FISHER IS MEDICAL SERVICES PRESIDENT

The first members' meeting of the Halton Cooperative Medical Services in the Court House, Milton, on June 19, was well attended by a large majority of the members.

Paul Fisher gave the report of the provisional Board of Directors and presented the Provincial Charter which gives to the newly formed Cooperative the sanction and approval of the Province of Ontario. He also read the By-Laws recommended by the provisional Board which were approved by the Meeting.

The secretary treasurer reported a membership of two hundred and sixty-one with total paid premiums of $3562.00. This membership is made up of nineteen organized groups in Halton County, Home and School Club, Farm Forums, Jr. Farmers, Jr. Institutes and Women's Institutes.

The by-laws provide for the election of twelve directors, four to serve for three years four for two years and four for one year. Those elected for 1947, 1948, 1949 were Paul A. Fisher, Wm. T. Dales, Milton J. Brown and Mrs. Lloyd Crawford; for 1947—48 Miss Florence Meares, Mrs. Chester Service, Mr. Ross Segsworth and Councillor Wm. R. Hume; for 1947—Mrs. Arthur Spencer, Mrs. Joe Wickem, George Robertson and H. E. Bathin.

Following the members' meeting the newly elected Directors met and elected Paul A. Fisher, President and Milton J. Brown Vice president. A permanent Secretary will be appointed at the next meeting of the Directors. R. S. Heatherington, provisional secretary treasurer will carry on in the meantime.

Dominion Day will be the next public holiday and this year it falls on a Tuesday, making it one of those controversial mid-week events.

The fumes from a shallow bowl of household ammonia placed in the oven for several hours will loosen dark, greasy stains.
