Whole Community Mourns Young Georgetown Merchant

Succumbing to an illness contracted while he was serving with the army overseas, John Clayton Bradley passed away suddenly on Friday, September 5th, while being taken to Toronto by ambulance. The popular local merchant had been taking treatment at Christie Street Hospital for the past year for leukemia and had been home for two weeks until the latest attack which proved fatal.

Born in Georgetown 31 years ago, he was the youngest son of Mrs. Harvey Bradley and the late Mr. Bradley. He attended public and high school and played on the junior hockey team as a boy. Formerly employed at the Provincial Paper Mill, he was associated with his brother Roy in operating Bradley Brothers Store. In June, 1942, he enlisted for army service and after training at Brampton and Camp Borden went overseas with the ROASC. He landed in France soon after "D" Day and served through the campaign in France, Belgium, Holland and Germany.

In February, 1946, shortly after his return to Canada he married Mary Young of Acton, and this spring they moved to No. 4 Normandy Boulevard with their 6 month-old daughter Beverly Ann. Surviving besides his wife and daughter are his mother, who makes her home in Oshawa, two sisters and three brothers, Mrs. Eileen Parkinson and Mrs. Edwin Hoare (Hazel) of Oshawa, Clifford of Acton, and Wilbert and Roy of Georgetown.

Archdeacon W. G. O. Thompson conducted the funeral service in St. George's Church on Monday, with the choir assisting. Friends thronged the church to pay their last respects, many from out-of-town points including Oshawa, Barrie, Toronto, Streetsville, Burlington, Elora, Acton, Mount Forest, Oakville and Inglewood. Pallbearers were Reg Hoare, Walker Cleave, Ross Duncan, Ted Arnold, Walter Richardson and Saul Soberman of Toronto, the latter an army buddy overseas.
