

HALTON COUNTY LIBERALS BANQUET IN ESQUINGO

Over a hundred members and friends of Halton County Liberal Association gathered in the new township Hall Stewarttown on Friday evening to enjoy a most scrumptious banquet provided by the ladies of Ashgrove Women's Institute and Ashgrove Women's Association under the convenerhip of Mrs. Wilfred Bird.

At the head table were Mr. Robert McKubbin, M.P., for Middlesex county, who was the very able guest speaker, Mr. Hughes Cleaver, M.P. for Halton who spoke briefly, Mr. T. L. Blacklock, ex-M.P.P. for Halton and officers of the Association.

At the conclusion of the program a vote of thanks was tendered to the ladies who entered by Mr. Fleming of Trafalgar and Mrs. Thomas Giffen as president of the Women's Institute very ably responded.

The Adventures of Flitt the Butterfly

FLITT AND MR. BEAVER

The sun was sparkling brightly on the pond in the Green Forest. Mr. Beaver and his family had been working very hard all morning on the dam in the pond that was their home. They were adding a new room and now came up in the sunshine to view their work.

"Daddy, Beaver, stretched and flapped his tail. Suddenly there was a whistle of wings, a splash — and the startled Beaver family looked around to see Daddy Beaver being carried off in the cruel claws of an enormous Eagle. Up, up in the air they soared while the rest of the Beavers watched helplessly. "Oh, what can we do?" cried Mother Beaver.

Just at that moment, Mr. Sunbeam came sparkling thro the trees to pay a visit to his Beaver friends. As soon as he saw them, he knew something was the matter. "Look, look," cried Mrs. Beaver, and pointed to the enormous eagle osaring up above the trees carrying a big burden.

"He's got Daddy Beaver!" cried the little Beavers.

At once Mr. Sunbeam dashed away thro the forest to tell Flitt of the trouble.

In the meantime, Mr. Beaver was struggling to break the grip of the eagle's claws. He tried to twist this way, then that way, and suddenly, he was free! But he was falling thro the air, tumbling over and over on his way to the ground. The other Beavers just held their breath, for surely Daddy Beaver would be killed in such a fall.

But as they watched, they saw Daddy Beaver fall right into a big tree. Lucky, lucky, Mr. Beaver — he wasn't badly hurt but very frightened. But there he was, stuck firmly in the branches at the top of a tree higher than your house.

Mother Beaver and the little Beavers hurried to the base of the tree and called up to daddy to tell him they would get help to him somehow. Just at that moment, there was a flash of light through the trees, and there was Mr. Sunbeam back with Flitt the Butterfly to help them.

By this time, other little folk of the Green Forest had gathered to see if they could help. As soon as they saw Flitt, they knew that somehow he would find a way to get Mr. Beaver safely back to earth.

Flitt looked the situation over and thought quietly for a moment. Then he turned to Mr. Sunbeam and asked him if he would find the Spider family.

As soon as they arrived, Flitt asked "Can you each spin a long thread, instead of a web? We need to all work together on this. We will twist the threads together and perhaps it will make a cord strong enough to do the trick."

While they were working on the thread, Flitt flew off to find the Blue Jays. As soon as he returned with several Blue Jays, he explained his plan to them. Two Blue Jays took the cord as soon as it was ready and flew up in the tree. Flitt flew up and lit on a branch to direct the operation. The two birds flew around, looping the cord around Mr. Beaver. When all seemed ready, the rest of the Blue Jays flew up to join the first two, and each took hold of the cord firmly in his mouth, and tried to fly upward.

Mr. Beaver could feel the cord getting tighter and tighter around him and suddenly he felt himself being slowly lifted out of the branches. A great cry of joy went up from the little people watching below, when they could see Mr. Beaver moving. Suddenly there was a snap! and Mr. Beaver fell back into the fork of the tree again. The Spider web cord was not strong enough to hold the heavy Beaver, and there he was, stuck as firmly as ever.

The little Beavers began to whimper, and poor Mrs. Beaver was so worried. Flitt felt disappointed that his plan didn't work, but at once sat down to think out another way to free Mr. Beaver.

There was a flutter of wings as he flew to the ground and the little people all knew that he had thought of a better plan.
