Another much sought after prize is that offered in the Inter-County class for tractors. Competition is open to teams of two young men. who have not yet reached their 20th birthday, from each county in Cntarlo. Choice of contestants will be made by the local agricultural representatives. Prize in this event is an all-expense trip to the 1949 International Livestock Exposition at Chicago.

Then there is the inter-county horse drawn event in which the two top-winning teams of four young men, who will be awarded onservation tour to the Tennessee Valley in the United States.

Competition on Local Day, October 11, will be confined to the counties of Brant, Oxford, Haldimand, Wentworth, Norfolk and Waterloo. On the remaining three days of the match, entry will be open to the world and there will be from seven to 10 classes a day divided into sod and stubble groupings for both tractor and Competitors must qualify for entry to the international contest through their own local matches. They may enter according to age and previous prize-winning experience. They will also have all types of plows. In classes listed as "utility" contestants are not permitted to touch the plowed furrows except with the plow.

Another charge this year is confining certain classes to "tricycletype" tractor. This was deemed advisable and practical owing to the edvance of mechanization in cultivation of inter-tilled crops. This type of tractor is also gaining in popularity and those in charge beheve that its efficient use should be encouraged.

Incidentally this latter change mittee which has responsibility for providing more than 200 tractors for competitors It is also planned to have 100 teams of horses availwill assist the Brant County Com-
