MACKENZIE NEWS

If this is Indian summer, let's keep it and not give it back to the Indians after all.

After not having Nut coal for a short time, we now have a good supply on hand. While the weather is dry and the supply is plentiful, now would be a good time to put in a ton or two ahead of the cold weather. The price is $23.50 per ton.

See you at the Remembrance Day service on Friday.

Along the Boards

After three periods of rough play in the dentist's chair, we have recovered sufficiently to catch this week's edition. We didn't mind the hammering and twisting so much, but when Doc got the dynamite ready and said he was going to blast, we "took off", papkin and chair and all, only to be apprehended by the attendant going past the Roxy on the dead run. If I do say so myself, that gal can really canter.

Getting down to brass hockey facts, the crowd was somewhat annoyed over Meteor-Raiders game last Tuesday. It seems Gregg Currie, the Meteors' manager, phoned central and was told Georgetown was on slow time, and the Meteors showed up an hour late. We would like to point out that the local Bell girls on duty were not responsible for the error as the information was given by the Toronto operator. Slow or fast time, we won, so let's everyone be happy now.

The Johnny Black benefit game Friday between Oakville and Raiders was a huge success. Oakville's goalie in a football game this fall and injured in a football game this fall and the Oakville club should be commended for their help to a fellow sportsman. The Lions, Opticists and Rotarians did a wonderful job on ticket sales and administration. Georgetown Hockey Club and the Board of Parks did not hesitate to offer their service free of charge.

Just a few comments on the game itself. It took both clubs a period and a half to get over the fact it was an exhibition game, being handled by three N.H.L. officials. Bill Chadwick, referee-in-chief of the N.H.L., assisted by linesmen George Hayes and Baz McGaffin. Things started to break loose in the middle of the second and continued until the final whistle.

Freddie Lawrence, Raiders' goalie, was really booting them out in grand style and caught the eye of the officials and of Butch Keeling, former Ranger defence star, now an NHL referee. Keeling also remarked upon Nash, Johnny Haines, and Junior Beaumont — Haines, incidentally, was a junior last year and has come along well in all the games he has played. The three Weston boys, Stephenson, Gallager and Florian could not get their release from their parent club and will have to line up with Weston this year instead of the Raiders. Dang Kentner, Jr. and Marzo from Acton were flying last practice. The Acton lads, if no Acton team is entered can play for either Georgetown or Fergus. As most of Acton's good hockey players are shrewd, we would imagine the only hockey road to take would be east.

A big night is being planned for Monday the 14th. This will be Equipment Night and Markham Minionaires will be here. Every hockey year a lot of talk drifts back to the Georgetown-Markham series and both clubs seem to be great drawing cards. This night the Raiders, dressed in their new uniforms, will be introduced to the fans who can see where the hockey club spend their share of the gate. It takes a lot of money to outfit a club and the executive wants to show how much it takes and what it takes. Incidentally the two teams will also play this Friday in the new arena at Stouffville.

Evidently Weston are up to their old tricks again. The first game they played in the Sheehey Tost Memorial series ended in a ten minute donnybrook, with the Weston players taking on some over-enthusiastic fans. Jones and Downer, last year's Weston bad boys, were ringleaders of the brawl which started after each had received a match penalty. Referees Hodgson and Braithwaite had a tough job last year handling these two and it looks as if their work is cut out for them this year too.

Walkerton, Simcoe and Brantford want exhibition games with the Raiders. Another Raiders hockey player is in search of a white sweater and whistle job. Bill Chadwick said after the benefit game that Raiders' No. 4 is a good player, but he can't skate. Wonder who he meant? Kent Storey's old No. 12 has been reissued and Dang Kentner is wearing it now. At a meeting of the executive, Don Barrager was appointed coach of the club for this year. Don't forget Equipment Night next Monday.

BIRTHDAY DINNER FOR W. G. GOLLOP, NORVAL 91

Mr. W. G. Gollop of Norval celebrated his 89th birthday on Saturday, November 5th while visiting with his son, George, in Montreal. Mr. Gollop's sister, Mrs. I. Webster of Norval, who will celebrate her 91st birthday on November 15th, baked a cake and shipped it to Montreal in time for a party in Mr. Gollop's honour. A few close friends and relatives attended the birthday dinner prepared by Mrs. E. P. Gollop, who is also visiting in Montreal.

Comments on the Lesson

by Rev. John M. Smith

SUNDAY, NOV. 13th, 1949
"THE SUFFERING SERVANT"

The lesson this week is one which is full of inspiration and which turns our thoughts Christward. The Old Testament prophet to whom we ordinarily refer as Isaiah foresaw the Suffering Servant rising out of Israel, a defeated broken people, and bringing light and hope to those who were engulfed in the darkness of despair and futility. The Christian with the deep pathos, the rich beauty, and the redemptive truth of the Christian heritage available to him can see that the prophet knowingly or otherwise was predicting the future in words which are perfect in their application to Jesus Christ the Son of God, the Suffering Servant, the Saviour of men. "Surely he hath borne our griefs, and carried our sorrows." Isa. 53:4. The Biblical Application: Isa. 53:1-12

These great and beautiful verses have been the inspiration of the millions who have read them in the light of Christian knowledge & recognized their perfect application to Jesus Christ. Here in language unsurpassed in descriptive feeling power the prophet reveals to us the Suffering Servant's "destiny, career, suffering, submission and reward." It is his destiny to bear suffering and deep humiliation which though it seems unjust and unreasonable will bring him to ultimate glorious victory. This vicarious suffering is borne by him in his purity that the impure might be redeemed. The prophet sees the servant being "wounded, bruised, chastised, pierced, plagued, crushed — not for his own sins but for the sins of the world. Without a whimper or complaint, in his innocence, he voluntarily accepts it all. He "the Lamb of God makes possible the matchless salvation."

The Application:

This picture of the Suffering Servant was real to the prophet. He foresaw God delivering the sin gripped nations and individuals and he foresaw the vicarious nature of the redemption. Whether he foresaw the suffering servant as a remnant of God-fearing, God-loving Israelites, or an individual redeemer, or even as Christ himself, has been a point of much scholastic debate. Let us leave it to the scholars. It is sufficient for you and I to see and know that the words of prediction have been fulfilled in the Christ. We see Him as the Suffering Servant, the Lamb of God who is able to take away the sins of the world. This passage for us is "an inspired prediction of how God purposed to redeem the world by sending his son for man's salvation." When we see with the prophet the vision of the Suffering Servant we see the Calvary of Christ. We see God suffering for man's redemption. The Christian, however, does not think of Calvary without Easter and the vindication of God. In Christian joy we, if we have experienced personally the redemptive and vicarious love and know ourselves to be free folk, must cry out "He lives, He reigns, He intercedes. He suffered, was rejected, betrayed, killed, and that he might reign victoriously." "Hallelujah! What a Saviour!"

Helpful Quotations

"We cannot expect to share the triumph of the Christ if we do not purpose to share his suffering."

"The truth will prevail whatever becomes of us."

"Some of the finest people are called upon to endure pain and sorrow from which notoriously evil people escape entirely."

"It is observable that out of undeserved suffering, nobly borne, have come some of the richest blessings the soul of man has been permitted to enjoy."

"Because we are redeemed, we are called to redemptive living, and that means vicarious suffering."
