Criticizes Council for School By-Law Vote

Dear Mr. Editor:
 On Monday next, we the taxpayers of Georgetown are asked to vote on a money by-law, which will affect not only the education of our own children, but also the education of ratepayers children who no doubt in a few years themselves will be taxpayers of our town. Unfortunately the taxpayer has no vote on a money by-law, although he has the right to vote for a mayor and council. On different issues some members of council refer to the large vote that they received at the polls last December, but seemingly do not feel the confidence thus voters placed in them, otherwise the cost of this vote would be averted.

It is unfortunate the executive of the Citizens' Committee who were so active at the latter part of last year, have not seen fit to support or call a meeting to discuss this all-important decision we are asked to make.

I would like to thank publicly the chairmen and members of our present school board also your valuable editorial space in explaining to the taxpayer the necessity of and advantages we would enjoy in having a new public school without it meaning any material increase in our present tax payments. Thanking you for your space.
