DOMINION STORES LIMITED

Along the Boards

by Steamboat Epimerson

The mercantile hockey league had its first meeting last Friday in the Old Town Hall. A good crowd was there including a few interested pigeons. Little time was wasted in getting an executive appointed. Yours truly will act as president of the league WOP (WOP means without pay). Dick Crighton from the staff of Smith and Stone will be treasurer and George Barber Jr. of Provincial, secretary. Each team manager will be on the executive. Recreational director Len Self came up with an excellent idea in having Ernie Alcott, Gilbert McNicol and Alex Calder act as a three-man board to decide disputes involving managers, coaches, players or teams. After having all the facts placed before them, their decision will be final and the league will have to abide by their ruling.

Last year, each player had to pay 25c to play. More money is needed this year to operate so a general admission of 35c will be charged. In order to have funds available to pay for the ice for at least two weeks each team will have to contribute $15 to the leagues.

Smith and Stone, last year's champs, will again be being a team, though number has at that two of their stars, Ev Wilson and Tommy Golden are calling it quits. Gord Kelle will have the regular goal-keeping job as Charlie Jones has agreed to play for Alliance.

Norval will again be in the group. Gord McMureby, Huttonville's gift to the league hockey has retired. Carl Maltby, the Vezina winner of last year will be keeping goal for the juveniles.

Provincial will have pretty much the same team, although one or two have not yet appeared for practice. Denny Wright will look after their line-up.

Alliance will have a new goalie in Jones as well as some of the regulars like Buggy Ward, Em Thompson and Bill Muir.

Meadowdale have withdrawn, their entry and Acton and Hornby have been asked to send along confirmation that they wish to enter a team.

Businessmen the poorest outfit in the league will be doubtful starters. (We can't get anyone to stake us to the $15 fee.) Walt and Smokey Richardson are available, as are Schisza, Berry, Sargent, MacCormack and Steamer.

Player certificates are now being printed and each player must sign one by December 1st. It looks as if the schedule will get underway Monday, November 13th and we think this will be one of the league's best years.

Everything in General

For the past two years a pre-season league of Georgetown, Brantford, Weston and Oakville played for the Shoeny-Tost Memorial Trophy donated by the Board of Parks in memory of one Georgetown's all-time greats. The league never got the support it deserved and this year the mercantile league executive are going to ask the arena board if they will place the trophy in their hands so it can be awarded each year to a local team in a local league.

Nick Ferris, regular with the Raiders, has been working out with Brampton, as has brother Quint.

Harvey Chappel is back in town from the north, where he has been playing fastball this summer, to play for the Raiders again this year. Harvey was welcomed home at the Lions Miterade on Monday.

Coach Ken Braithwaite who guided the Raiders to the Intermediate B championship last season has again been hired to coach the team.

Freddy Lawrence, Clem Dwyer and Pie Dillon are trying out for goal.

Del Beaumont is not sure about playing this year.

Nels Robinson of Norval says he didn't mind umpiring in the softball league but he's dazed if anybody is going to get him on skates to referee in the mercantile league.

The businessmen are looking for four or five dignitaries to help buy sweaters.

The juniors have already had their initial practice and a lot of new faces were on hand for a try-out. Ted Vahl is lending a hand for the time being until a manager and coach are appointed.

Bill Hewitt, who moved up to the Intermediates last year, will again be in the line-up. Pie Dillon, regular goalie last year is trying for a berth with the Raiders, while Earl Walters is trying to consolidate the goal tending job. Young Red Kentner from Acton is reported to be a hot Junior goalie out of a team to play with. Al Gillis, Keith King, Keith Scott, Joe Louth, Ivan Huffman and Bud Haines will all be in uniform again this year and these same lads should make a strong junior team for Georgetown.

With the Anglers

by George Hoare

The extended rainbow trout season in certain areas led to a fishing party a week ago Sunday when a group of local nimrods journeyed by bus to Southampton for the day. The group assembled at Art Scott's garage at 6 a.m. and with driver Joe Ambrose at the wheel the party reached Southampton before 9 a.m. Bud Kentner took a picture of everyone in their fishing togs.

Everyone was on the stream by 9:45. Tackle consisted of bait casting rods and lures and fly rods and stropper flies. The water and cool winds chilled everyone and made them wish they had worn more clothes. However, the first few hours were the worst — after that the discomfort was unnoticed.

The writer hooked and landed a nice rainbow about 11 a.m. It was a female and very heavy for its length. It measured 23 1/2" and weighed 5 1/2 pounds. Floyd Varey took second prize money with a somewhat smaller fish. Floyd and the writer lost one each. That's the story as far as the luck was concerned.

The poor luck could possibly be blamed on poaching. This came to light when one of our local lads discovered gill nets hidden in the bushes about a quarter mile down stream. They were still wet from the night before. A gill net strung across a trout stream every night for a week could do a lot of harm from a sportsman's viewpoint. It's to be hoped that poaching is cleared up by now.

A Southampton man hooked and landed an 8 pound rainbow earlier that morning. The week before another lad had caught two, 11 pounds and 9 pounds. These fish, sometimes referred to as steelheads, are fresh run from Lake Huron and are noted for their fighting and jumping ability when hooked.

A true steelhead is a rainbow trout that spends most of its life in salt water and runs up the fresh water coastal streams to spawn. The fish, when in salt water, becomes silvery with a bluish or greenish back, usually a few dark dots above the lateral line, and on the tail and dorsal fins. The lower fins are either dusky or whitish.

The rainbows in the Great Lakes are the same colour upon leaving deep water and entering the rivers. So if they are the same colour, why not the same name. The fresh water rainbow, like the salt water fish, gets its true colouring after a short stay in the rivers. This consists of a reddish stripe which runs down the gill cover down the side to the tail.

The lure mostly used in the Southampton district is the devil eye wobler. This is a silver wobler with large ruby-like eyes wired into the head. The 1 1/2 or 2" size is the best.

The Saugen at Southampton is big water, not unlike a coastal salmon stream. There are rapids, big pools and long gliding runs. Just the place for big fish — and I might add, armpit waders.

One of the interesting things noticed was the sea lamprey traps erected by the Department of Game and Fisheries. In one week alone the traps accounted for 24,000. If you like fish as a food you will be interested to know that the sea lamprey is the most deadly game fish killing agent the Great Lakes has ever seen. The lamprey is easily distinguishable from an eel by its disc-like suction head with which it attaches itself to a fish.

The lamprey was first noticed in Lake Ontario several years ago. There it pursued a life cycle much like that of the Pacific salmon. The lampreys came up the St. Lawrence and into Lake Ontario, spawned in rivers on both sides of the lake and then died. The young larvae lampreys lived in the mud of stream banks, for five years, feeding on plankton and minute animal matter. After the larvae stage, the young lampreys, six to eight inches long headed back into the sea where they lived three or four years. Then they returned to fresh water to spawn and die, and complete their life cycle. Up to this time they were not known to prey on fresh water game fish.

It was after the Welland Canal was built in 1922 that the sea lampreys headed into more western water. A short time ago, sportsmen began to realize that some monster was killing game fish in Lake Huron and Lake Michigan. It was the lamprey and scientists soon established the alarming fact that the predator had forsake his migratory habits and taken up residence in the Great Lakes.

The big problem now is how to get rid of them. One way is to catch them in traps when they are on their way up river to spawn. The trap in the Saugen is doing just that.

Everyone was back at the bus before dark and Bud Kentner took pictures of the lucky anglers with their rainbows. After a stop in town for coffee and lunch, everyone seemed to agree with the idea of going down to the waterfront to buy some whitefish from a commercial fisherman. Bud Kentner missed his chance when he failed to be on the scene with his camera. There were at least 24 of the party lined up with one to three fish waiting to get them weighed. Whitefish fried in butter is a delicacy.

That's the story, except to say that Joe had the party all back in town at 11:30 p.m. Those making the trip were: Don Thompson, Maurice Herbert, Tom Herbert, Dave Stamp, Tom Doyle, Jim Carney, Jerry Hepburn, George Hoare, George Hoare Jr., G. Christenson, J. Hepburn, Will Hillis, Frank Parmeter, Fred Spies, B. McGill, B. Reeve, Jim Burds, Bud Kentner, Orval Rayner, B. Gibbs, D. Barber, Vic Greygoose, W. Schenk, Floyd Varey, Jack Muckart, George Burt and F. Brown, D. Brown and W. Smith of Brantford.

The following rivers are still open for rainbows until December 1st — The Saugen, from Lake Huron back about 7 or 8 miles. Big Head River at Meaford, to Sykes Bridge. Beaver from bay to first dam. Sydenham at Owen Sound is open to the dam at textile works. Sauble at Sauble Falls. Patoka, open to Brooks Bridge. If anyone is thinking of a trip, we would suggest they consult one of the local fishermen or the game warden in the area, just to make sure. Better to be safe than sorry.
