GLEN WILLIAMS

Flood Still Serious Blasting Helps Some

Little improvement is shown in the flood situation at Glen Williams since last week. Houses along the Glen Road on the river side are still surrounded by water and practically every basement in the district is flooded. Some people have not been able to have their furnaces on since the flood began a week and a half ago.

The flooding is caused by an ice jam in the river which extends from the 9th Line bridge to the dam at the old lower paper mill. The W. H. Davison farm property is particularly badly hit and much of the field around his residence is under water.

There was talk of the township dynamiting the ice last Wednesday but it was decided not to do this. On Sunday some of the residents of the area did some blasting on their own, but it is difficult to determine whether this has helped or not.

One Glen resident sums it up by saying "It will be worse before it is better". Meanwhile property owners along the river must suffer flooded cellars and damp houses with the inconvenience of wading through puddles to get in and out of their homes.

Wilson Chairman Again Public School Board

W. Edwin Wilson, head of the Triplett Instruments firm, was chosen for a second term as chairman of Georgetown Public School Board when the board held its inaugural meeting last Wednesday in the school.

Board members for 1951, all of whom were re-elected this year are Mr. Wilson, Ross Duncan, Stan Finlay, Cecil McNamara, Harry Shortill and Ray Salter. James F. Evans is secretary, P. B. Harrison treasurer and M. H. Moyer attendance officer.

A request will be made to council to establish a school zone on John Street from Victoria Crescent to McNabb Street. The narrow road and bridge over the creek make it dangerous for the numbers of children who have to use the street as a thoroughfare on their way to school. The board believes that "school zone" signs will help to slow down traffic.
