A round table discussion brought out some helpful information for the GRC who are faced with a decision as to whether to hire a full-time director or one or more part-time assistants to carry on the program.

It was the feeling of the majority that a full time man would best serve the needs of the town but that he should be provided with a suitable office. There was also the suggestion that unless a director could be given some authority in the management of the arena and park he could not properly carry out his function or justify his position.

The GRC has several applications on file, all from out of town, for the position, most of the applicants requesting a salary of $3000 or more.
