a sharp saw makes good fruit

...but skill and experience are necessary

Every fruit grower knows proper pruning of his trees is an essential operation. You've got to saw and prune away some of the tree growth to get production of worthwhile, marketable fruit. Skill in pruning is knowing what to cut away and what to leave, skill which only comes with years of experience. The same principle of pruning applies in the field of investments. Money scattered indiscriminately over many securities of varying quality cannot be expected to yield the same rich returns that come from concentrating on a few sound, carefully selected stocks. Where investments have been scattered, there must be wise pruning if the richest returns are to be secured.

F. H. Deacon & Co. have spent many years in learning how to prune for better returns. We have learned how to select the most promising securities, those of companies financially sound, and well managed. They are the stocks we recommend to our clients. The test of a fruit grower is the crop he gets, year after year. The test of an investment house is the way in which the weak and worthless are eliminated from their recommendations, and emphasis laid on companies likely to bear good fruit in the shape of dividends and capital appreciation. Here are some of the results of recommendations which we have made over the past few years. We have many more...

An Air Force Officer—Clinton

This officer became a client of F. H. Deacon & Co. in 1945 at the end of World War II. He invested $1200 in conservative securities. His original investment is now worth $2710, of which $1510 is in cash for re-investment.

A Service Station Operator—Orillia

This client could not take risks. On our advice he invested $1000 in dividend-paying securities we considered safe, but with modest prospects for capital growth. Now, after two years, the original investment has grown to $2785 and is at present invested largely in Bell Telephone shares, a security with an unbroken dividend record of 69 years.

A Government Employee—Ottawa

In December, 1946, this gentleman had $2400 for investment. His main interest was capital gain. After three and a-half years, his original investment of $2400 was returned to him in cash and the profit of $1350 was left with us for re-investment.

A Farmer Near Lindsay

During the uncertain pre-war days of 1930, he asked our help with the investment of $1800. He wished capital gain without undue risk and with reasonable dividends. Today, his holdings are worth $3528 now largely in cash awaiting near-term buying opportunities.

The Size of the Orchard is Unimportant

A good orchard bears good fruit, regardless of its size. The same is true of investments. Whether your funds are large or small you will need the same care and experience to guide you in the wisest possible selection of securities. The vast majority of the investing public is made up of the small investor. Many of the largest corporations in Canada are literally owned by these small investors who benefit from the capital appreciation and dividends of big industries. F. H. Deacon & Co. is an old established conservative Financial House. Whatever amount of money you wish to have carefully and soundly invested, we invite you to telephone or write us. Indeed if you can, come in and see us. We shall be glad to be of service.
