Reunited With Brother After Sixty-One Years

Mr. Henry Isley, who is visiting in the western provinces at present, has had a reunion with a brother whom he had not seen for 61 years.

It was in January, 1890, that his younger brother, John bade him farewell on the little station platform at Newton, near Milverton. John, then a boy of 18 went to the states, while his brother Henry stayed in Ontario. He later settled in Vermilion, Alberta, and one day recently he answered a knock on the door and found a stranger there who enquired if he were John Isley. On receiving an affirmative reply, the stranger asked if John knew who he was. After a careful scrutiny, the Vermilion Isley gave up. He couldn't place his visitor. It was brother Henry making the visit that reunited the brothers after a separation of 61 years.

John Isley, now 79 years of age, went to Hardley, Iowa, then north to Crookston, Minn., and finally to the Vermilion district, where he homesteaded 25 miles south of the town. Seven years ago he retired from farming and with his wife moved to Vermilion.
