FARM NEWS

Hessian Fly Spotted On Two Halton Farms

The Hessian Fly some years ago was listed as the most destructive insect attacking wheat in the field. For the past ten or fifteen years it has been a pest of minor importance.

During the past few days we have had two inquiries from Halton growers who were wondering what was causing their wheat to break off just near the ground. Upon investigation they found what appeared like flaxseeds. This is the pupae stage of the Hessian Fly. It is quite possible that the cool weather this spring was favourable for its development. The adult is a small mosquito like fly. The eggs are laid on the leaves and the maggots from these eggs work down between the leaf and the stem. These maggots suck the juice out of the stems and cause a weakened condition, and consequent breakage at or near the ground, and at about this time of year. The adult flies emerge the latter part of August and in early September and lay their eggs on volunteer wheat or on early seeded wheat.

Control
If the field is not seeded, all wheat stubble should be plowed under completely as soon as possible after the wheat is harvested and then worked to firm the soil. Few of the flies will be able to emerge from such soil.

If plowing cannot be done promptly, let the volunteer wheat come up. This wheat will be earlier than the regularly seeded wheat under normal conditions and will act as a trap crop for the egg laying period of the fly. This should not be plowed under until the end of September.

Late planting is also recommended by our Entomological authorities. In short, if you were troubled with Hessian Fly this year, sow just as late as is safe in your district to obtain a good stand before winter. In our opinion this would range from roughly, September 6th to September 15th.

Tom Gard's Note Book

My lawn roller never seems to be home. Possibly I should make another one - just to lend to people! Fooling aside, this borrowing tools and then forgetting to bring them back can be most annoying - and I'm not guiltyless. I was all set to roll the area just spaded for late vegetables when I discovered it was missing. The predicament was finally settled by borrowing Herb's sleek "stork" job. It gave me the idea of looking for a short, fat hot water tank and fixing up a handle attachment from such water pipe. Its weight can be regulated by the amount of water used in the tank - quite an improvement on my present one filled with heavy concrete. Possibly that will be my first job when holidays are over.

Chintz Canopy
Here is a simple way to perk up your kitchen window, noticed while in the St. Thomas area. A light canopy was constructed from building board and fastened on the inside to the edge of the window frame. Bright chintz was sewn in the form of an awning to fit the frame and thumb tacked in place, with the tacks out of sight. It was most attractive. After repeated attempts to describe its construction to my usually bright "bettes half", I finally took the hint and built one. Now she will have to get busy and cover it.

While she is sewing the canopy, maybe I can talk her into covering the guest book I made out of a cigar box last spring. It's quite attractive in its natural finish but it will be even better covered with some of the drap
