Band Member Gets
Canadian Forces Medal

Sgt. Arthur Herbert, a member of the Lorne Scots Band for many years, has received word from army headquarters that he is eligible for the Canadian Forces Decoration. Sgt. Herbert already possesses the Canadian Efficiency Medal and the clasp for his long service with the regiment.

He has served with the regiment when it was called the Lorne Rifles, the Halton Rifles and the Lorne Scots. During the first war he served for five years with the Imperials. Sgt. Herbert plays the sousaphone in the band which has won many prizes in competitions at the Waterloo Band Festival and the Canadian National Exhibition.

FOR over two decades the modest backbone of the Argonaut Football Club has been a slim, iron-grey haired trainer named George Aspinall Stockwell. Riding the fortunes of the Double Blue through feast and famine in Canada, an expert physiotherapist, George Stockwell, nevertheless, learned his training methods through actual on-the-spot experience. Although he has specialized solely in football during the last fifteen years, he trained a varied collection of athletes in his earlier years. In 1924 George handled the celebrated Maitland's lacrosse team with Lionel Conacher, Livingston and company; he trained sculler Johnny Coulson and the great Australian oarsman H. H. (Bobby) Pearce in their prime, and in the early thirties tended the aches and pains of the West Toronto Memorial Cup hockey winners.

The Best Argos

Having served the Argonaut teams almost consecutively from 1929 to the present time, George Stockwell took time out during World War II to serve with a field ambulance unit and was discharged with the rank of Regimental Sergeant Major in 1945. That year, he read his name on the King's list, awarding him an M.B.E.

George Aspinall Stockwell has two favorite Argonaut teams which he elevates above all others. First, he chooses the great 1933 squad with Jimmy Burns, Teddy Morris, Ab Box and the rest, and then proudly calls the 1950 Grey Cup champions. Stockwell likes to point out a surprising coincidence about these two teams in that they both defeated Winnipeg for the Dominion Championship by a score of 13 to nothing.

Aged about the greatest American and Canadian Argos players to go through his hands, George picked out the 1930 Americans as the best, not only on defense as played by Buckner Hirsch and U.S. Captain Axel, but also on offense. Captain Hirsch, Stockwell mentioned twice as the outstanding exception to the general rule, Art Weir and John Morris.

"That Morris was a terrible time player," said Stockwell. "He never was held in check in 1930, not at any time, but it is a little hard to believe that he was in the enemy line for 13 minutes in a nine-minute game. And, in all the games, Ted Morris played he never once allowed someone to rub him out, although sometimes, after a game, he would be shaken up he could hardly find his street clothes in the dressing room!"

The Iron Mask

In 1933, George Stockwell worked with several Toronto doctors in perfecting a playing mask to enable the great Argos kicker, Ab Box, to continue playing although Box had sustained a broken jaw against Montreal.

"Designing that mask was quite a task," stated Stockwell. "It had to be stationary during play. It had to be made in such a way that it didn't hinder vision or hearing and yet Ab's face had to be protected and supported. We made several before the famous Iron Mask emerged. We must have been successful for it helped Ab Box and was then loaned out to many teams in Canada and even found its way over to the States several times."

Another Generation

The latest Stockwell to appear on the Argonaut training scene is young, 17-year-old Bill Stockwell who was made assistant to his Dad this year. Originally, this plan had called for the appointment of Stockwell's eldest son, George Jr., but he was killed while serving with the RCAF over Singapore in 1943.

Now with his son in tow, George Sr. presides over the 1951 Argonauts as the RSM in charge of training and injury, and the team abides by the stern rulings of this regimental gentleman.

While he turns over the parade to "Colonel" Frank Clair, Stockwell's unspoken command rings across the Dominion Champions' training field.

"Attention! Steady in the line!"
