

BILL BAILEY CELEBRATES 25 YEARS AS "THE OIL MAN"

Repatriate Troops After One Year Korea Service

The Defence Department has announced a repatriation plan for Canadian soldiers now serving in Korea which should bring at least one local man back home this fall. First troops to return home under the rotation policy will be men of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, who have been in the Korean theatre since last December. Pte. Earl Beerman, who has been in hospital in Japan since suffering a knee wound in the spring, is a member of the regiment and should be eligible for return. Several other local men are bearing arms in Korea, most of them going overseas last spring. These include Bob Rogers, Mike Lorusso, Lew Brandford, James Brandon and R. C. Davidson. One local soldier, Ron Edmunds was killed in action and his brother, Allan, returned home a few weeks ago.

Text of the defence department statement is as follows: As long as the military situation permits, men will be eligible for return to Canada who have approximately 12 months service in the theatre, but no man should be required to serve more than one winter in Korea.

First-troops to return home under the rotation policy will be men of the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, who have been in the theatre since last December. In order to maintain maximum operational efficiency within the Korean theatre, only two companies will be rotated at a time.

The first two replacement drafts will leave Canada in September or early October and will include two rifle companies from the 1st Battalion PPCLI, followed by the headquarters company and a quota of miscellaneous personnel.

The support company of the 1st Battalion and a company to be formed from the 3rd Battalion, PPCLI, will follow later.

Other units of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade group in Korea will be repatriated under the same rotation policy on completion of 12 months service, early next year.

The men of the 2nd Battalion who will be returning to Canada include a number of trained paratroopers formerly with the 1st Battalion. These men will supplement trained paratroopers left in Canada and, together with others in training, will ensure that adequate paratroop units are available in Canada at all times.

Also in reserve to aid the single striking force, should its use be required, is a large percentage of additional new paratroopers trained during the last nine months and who are still with static or training establishments from which they could be withdrawn on short notice.

Moreover, arrangements are being made to have 200 battle-trained men from each of the infantry battalions in Korea return to Canada for 100 paratroop training at the rate of 50 per week, so that they will have their training completed by the time their units are repatriated and assume an operational role in Canada.

Although special force men were trained for 18 months, for longer a required during an emergency of action taken by Canada pursuant to an international agreement, the army intends to allow these men to be released as early as possible after the completion of 18 months' service, although it may be necessary to keep certain of them on active service beyond this period.

As a result of this rotation, Canada will have within a few months a double striking force of two formations trained in airborne operations and including a very substantial percentage of battle-experienced personnel.

The whole rotation plan has been made possible by the increase in the size of the army during the past year, and, of course, as above stated, the implementation of this program must always be subject to the exigencies of the military situation.

Hessian Fly Control Discussed at Meeting

Despite the busy season and the low temperature over one hundred were in attendance at the field meeting recently sponsored by the Halton Crop Improvement Association at the R. A. Hurren farm, near Campbellville. Following a discussion led by Agricultural Representative J. E. Whitelock on the sixteen different varieties of oats and barley growing in the plots on the Hurren farm, Prof. H. W. Goble, provincial entomologist from the OAC presented an excellent address on the Hessian Fly and suggestions for its control in so far as the 1952 crop is concerned. In the opinion of Prof. Goble the heavy increase this year has largely been due to weather conditions. He also stated that because there was a heavy infestation of the fly this year, it does not necessarily follow that damage is likely to be bad in 1952. It was however recommended that great care be taken to prevent the fly from spreading to other crops. It was also suggested that seeding of the fall wheat should be delayed until it is feasible to still get a good stand for winter. In this connection Prof. Goble suggested sowing this year's wheat later than the usual time. The discussion was a most interesting one and would appear to have been of great value to the farmers present. It was pointed out that while the Hessian Fly is a pest of all cereals, it is particularly troublesome to wheat. It was also pointed out that the damage was much greater in 1951 than in 1950. It was also pointed out that the damage was much greater in 1951 than in 1950. It was also pointed out that the damage was much greater in 1951 than in 1950.
