"HERE COMES THE GROOM" . . .

Rural Telephones Almost Double in Five Years

Rural areas in Ontario served by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada now have a higher average of telephone development than the average for either the rest of Canada or the United States.

Two out of three country homes and business establishments in these areas now have telephones. This has been made possible by the addition of more than 40,000 rural telephones since 1945. For every five rural Bell telephones in 1945 there are now nine.

In the extension of telephone service through country areas in Ontario, 450 new rural telephone lines have been built. In building these and rebuilding others, the Bell Telephone Company, has strung 7,000 miles of telephone wire and placed 22,000 new, long-life telephone poles, according to information contained in a leaflet issued by the company.

Good telephone service, means a lot to farm families, the company recognizes. It keeps them in touch with neighbours and relatives, with stores and service people. It links the farm with the town, and protects life and property.

"We intend to keep on working hard until we have put in the new lines and equipment still needed to give good telephone service to every farm family that wants it," the Bell Telephone Company's leaflet concludes.

Wit, Charm and Melody Spark Best Picture of Bing's Career

Paramount's "Here Comes The Groom", which plays next Monday and Tuesday at the Roxy Theatre . . . is a big bright, wonderfully good-natured comedy that spots Bing Crosby in a role perfectly tailored to his casual off-the-cuff style. This uproariously carefree affair also stars Pert Jane Wyman, slyek Alexis Smith, Franchot Tone and James Barton in an unflinching round of merriment and melody that is as warm and winning as anything that's happened on the screen in a long, long time.

There are additional bonuses in the form of the sensational young singing find, Anna Maria Alberghetti, and a French youngster named Jacky Geneel, who'll charm his way right into your heart. And all of these top-notch performers enact a howling story that has been knowingly staged by ace producer-director Frank Capra.

Bing plays a reporter who becomes attached to two very engaging French orphans while on an assignment in Paris, decides to give them an American home by marrying Jane Wyman. But Jane, who has been waiting too long for him to return and pop the question blows her lid and plights troth with her millionaire boss. When the immigration authorities give Bing a week either to get married or arrange for the moppets' return, he plots an uproariously complicated campaign to win back his lady love from her well-born, well-heeled groom.

The ensuing scramble is packed with howling situation, witty sharp-edged dialogue, and many musical interludes that are neatly tailored into the action.

This is Crosby at his very best in good voice and good spirits, delivering the most winning performance of his career. Jane Wyman is perfect as the fiery miss who incites a romantic tug-of-war.

Tunesmiths Jay Livingstone and Ray Evans have provided three bright tunes for Bing and company, and there is another very hummable ditty forged by Johnny Mercer and Hoagy Carmichael "In the Cool, Cool, Cool of the Evening."

"Here Comes the Groom" is a hearty, happy celluloid treat that will remind you how much fun it is to be alive.

Buck's squad was the most powerful squad that Buck has fielded this year.

I have heard from higher up. In answer to a question that I asked in an earlier column, that there will not be a Student Council this year unless the defaulters who did not pay their student fees last year cough up. I also heard that 90 per cent of the girls paid their fees and 96 per cent of the boys did not. I wonder who the guilty ones are.
