AUCTION SALE

100 MORE CALVES urgently needed at the Milton Livestock Market next Thursday. Plenty of waiting cash buyers who will pay top prices. Could use 300 more hogs, stockers and cows are still in short supply, probably a good time to sell any surplus livestock you may have when the prices are high. Special low rates to large consignors. We also have excellent accommodations for selling your complete herd of cattle and would be glad to discuss any sale matters with you, whether you plan on selling at your farm or using our sale barns. These markets are operating every Thursday.

Esqueasing Nominations

said, but this was partially due to increased sheep prices. Some farmers want the dog tax raised, he said, but he believes that most of the killing is not done by farm dogs and thinks this is not the solution. He suggested that a dog tax be raised and that a means of identification be used when a sheep killing dog is discovered. It rarely bears a tag.

Hopes Georgetown Fire Area Commenting on the new Milton fire area whereby a Milton-managed truck is available to township residents at a very low cost, Reeve Currie said he hoped similar arrangements could be made with Georgetown and Acton to give township-wide protection. The towns have an advantage, too, he pointed out, in having extra equipment to fight bad fires.

Supports Esqueasing Stand The next speaker, Reeve-Elect George Leslie remarked on the county assessment, saying he could see nothing unreasonable either in the township's stand on the general assessment or the high school cost question.

"Last year we saved ten thousand dollars by standing up for our rights" said Mr. Leslie. He should be no arguments about the new assessment. It isn't perfect, but it is close to it."

Mr. Leslie said that although he had originally voted against the Home for the Aged, he wouldn't say he was against it now. With the growth in the county, perhaps it will prove to be a necessary thing.

Dust Has Council Liked Referring to complaints from Glen Williams residents about dust caused by passing trucks, he said that it was a tough problem for council. The only solution would be to pave the roads, which is financially impractical. Oiling roads only caused large holes. There would be even more dust, he said, when trucks begin hauling stone to the new Ford plant. A calcium topping has been put on the 9th Line and he hopes this will ease the problem.

Five Years Progress Mr. Leslie spoke with pride of township progress during the last five years. Five years ago Esqueasing had only one snowplow and the township hall was in deplorable condition.

"We have got somewhere, renovated the hall and added considerably equipment while still staying financially sound," he said, expressing his belief in a pay as you go policy.

Resents Department Control A candidate for deputy reeve, Cr. H. Craig Reid criticized too much control from the Department of Highways which at times tied the Council's hands.

"We can recognize a good tender," said Mr. Reid "and every decision shouldn't have to be ok'd by the department. At times this hampers efficient administration."

More gravel had been placed on township roads this year than ever before, he said, 17,000 yds. at 9 1/4 a yd. With twenty ton trucks traveling at 40 or 50 miles an hour, he said it is impossible to keep roads in good shape. The problem cannot be blamed on the trucker who pays a yearly licence equal to taxes on a 160 acre farm.

It had been an easy year on snow plowing but the savings had been absorbed by heavy costs of sanding roads.

Wants Earlier Meeting Wilfred Bird, also a candidate for deputy reeve said Esqueasing is the only municipality which holds such a late nomination meeting and he thinks it should be moved to earlier in December.

Mr. Bird said the new road-maintainer was one of council's major expenditures this year and he believed they had bought the best machine. He blamed the department for holding up work on a cut and fill on the road near the Bingham and Given properties.

Supports Fire Area Another supporter of fire areas is Walter Linham, standing for reelection to council. Mr. Linham said that township roads are in good shape, which creates the danger of accidents due to fast traffic.

He urged that dangerous corners should be protected by cutting back fences and brush, and 'stop' and 'slow' signs should be used on roads crossing well travelled ones.

The township bulldozer, he said, showed a profit of $935 on the year's operation, enough to cover truck operation cost.

Too Much Transportation? R. N. Brown, who served a three year term as councillor for a few years ago was critical of transportation for school children.

"Over 50 per cent of our taxes go to education," he said, "and I sometimes wonder where it will stop. We bus the children to school, they talk of building gyms for exercise."

Mr. Brown wants the 3rd line, which is too low, rebuilt. He thinks there should be ward voting in the township for the people in the "top end", think they aren't represented on council.

Congratulations to the Robert Coulters, formerly Limehouse, now of Weston, on the arrival of a little sister for Philip and Randy on Friday.

FUNERAL TODAY FOR HARRY HUNTER

The funeral service was held this afternoon for R. H. (Harry) Hunter, Norval district farmer who died at his home on Sunday, Mr. Hunter, who was in his 70th year, had been in failing health for the past few months.

He is survived by his wife, Martha McDowell and five children, Florence, Mrs. Robert Andrews, Henry (Mac), Joseph Reed, John Alan and William Francis.

William Schenk, Glen Williams businessman, said that if he is elected he would give the same attention to township affairs as he has to the successful operation of his own business for 37 yrs. Mr. Schenk pointed out that he had served as a North Halton high school trustee for two years.

Spencer Wilson, also a nominee, said he would withdraw in favour of Mr. Currie. He too favours ward voting.

School Report Nominees for school trustee, John Bingham, William Dobble, Donald Ward and W. J. Cunningham, spoke briefly, Mr. Bingham giving a short review of the year's operation of several public schools which are administered by the school area. He said sharp increases in teacher's salaries had contributed to increased costs, salaries ranging from $3100 to $2850 at present.

Mr. Schenk also gave a brief report of North Halton high school district.

Post Dog Taxes Treasurer E. C. Lindsay advanced a solution for sheep claims. He thinks dog taxes should be pooled in the county and claims paid out of a central fund. Sheep claims always mount in September when the town dogs are turned loose, he said, estimating that the cost of the
