

Boyd Gang Scare As Car Backfires

The notorious Boyd gang had Georgetown jittery.

Last Thursday night residents of town and district were awakened early in the morning by a series of loud explosions which seem to come from the downtown district. Several phoned the police while others jumped in their cars and headed for the business district, thinking that the four desperadoes had been surprised out to be made by a number of backfires from a car which was touring the town.

Proof that the criminals, who face charges of murder and bank robbery, were in the district shortly after their escape from Toronto's Don Jail is contained in an article in the Brampton Peel Gazette last week.

A Brampton farmer was eating his lunch Monday noon in his car parked just off Bull's Lane. A black 1952 Chevrolet roared along the road leading through Bull's farm near the 1st Line East from the direction of No. 10 Highway. Turning north on the 1st Line the car was going so fast the driver could not make the turn and the car went briefly in the ditch. A hundred yards down the road the car was backed into the driveway to a burned out barn near a pile of brushwood.

The driver ran to the car trunk and the farmer saw him toss a complete suit of clothes to one of his companions, and take another for himself. A third man stood guard at the road and the fourth stayed in the car. The whole performance took eight or nine minutes and the car roared away again south on the 1st Line.

Arriving home that night, the farmer learned for the first time of the jail break that morning and immediately got in touch with the provincial police. Car marks were found which checked with the farmer's statement and his description of the men tallied with the official description of the hunted criminals. There seems little doubt that he saw the four most hunted men in Canada.

LEGION TWO UP

Carol Marsden, Ross Crawford Wed Christ Church, Brampton

In Christ Church, Brampton, beautifully decorated with mixed gladiolus and fern on Saturday, September 6th at three o'clock, Carol Georgia Marsden, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Marsden, of Brampton, became the bride of Gordon Ross Crawford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Crawford, Brampton.

Rev. Allan Johnson officiated, Mrs. Glenney was organist and Miss Helga Cuthbert sang "O Perfect Love." The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white nylon marquisette and lace over white satin, with lace bolero and sweetheart neckline. She carried a cascade bouquet of red rosette roses and stephanotis. Her fingertip veil, lace edged, was caught with shirred nylon marquisette trimmed with lily of the valley.

Miss Maxine Patterson attended the bride as maid of honour. Her ballerina length gown was peach cinnamon nylon net over periwinkle blue taffeta with lace bolero, and she carried a cascade bouquet of Hibbard roses and wore a similar headdress. Miss Ruth Strangways, bridesmaid, wore a ballerina gown of yellow nylon net over periwinkle blue taffeta with bolero and a head-dress of aristocratic roses which matched her cascade bouquet. Miss Judith Cavanagh, of London, was junior bridesmaid for her cousin, wearing a ballerina gown of periwinkle blue nylon net over yellow taffeta and a cascade bouquet of Tellaman roses.

Mr. Jack Crichton was best man; Charles Laws, Georgetown, uncle of the bride, and Roy Crawford, brother of the groom, ushered.

The reception was held at the Yellow Briar Inn where the bride's mother received wearing a mauve tissue faille dress with matching bolero and royal purple accessories, white gloves and a corsage of purple tipped white orchids. She was assisted by the groom's mother who chose a cinnamon faille dress with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow tea roses.

The couple left on a honeymoon trip to Niagara, Rochester and Montreal, the bride wearing a banker's grey flannel suit with hat to match, red accessories and a corsage of red roses which was a gift to the bride from a friend in Wingham. They will live in Brampton.

The bride's grandmothers, Mrs. Fred Laws, Georgetown, and Mrs. Fred Marsden, Brampton, were special guests at the wedding. Both looked lovely in navy blue with a corsage of one pink and one red rose. The wedding cake was made by Mrs. Marsden who took great pleasure in presenting it to her first grandchild, to be married. The traditional "something old, something new, something borrowed, something blue" were given to the bride by her grandmothers and a dear friend, Mrs. H. Bates.

Out of town guests at the wedding were from Georgetown, Toronto, Streetsville, Galt, Guelph, London, Wingham and Oshawa.

Husband Was Druggist Here Fifty Years Ago

Widow of a Georgetown druggist of fifty years ago, Mrs. G. A. Ramsden died at her home, 500 Colborne Street, London on Saturday.

Mr. Ramsden had a drug store in the corner store of the McGibbon Block which a few years ago was incorporated into the hotel proper, and later operated his shop in what is now MacCormack's Drugs. When they lived in town, the Ramsdens lived in the house on Queen Street, where Mr. and Mrs. William Logan now live. She is survived by three children, Miss Margaret Ramsden of London, Miss Jessie Ramsden of Sarnia and G. J. R. Ramsden, London and three sisters, Mrs. O. A. Cannon, Hamilton, Mrs. Stanley Stewart, Burlington, and Mrs. Roy L. Campbell, Montreal.

Interment was in Queen's Lawn Cemetery, Midland, following the funeral service yesterday in London.

PUBLIC SCHOOL NEWS

PLAN SCHOOL CHOIR AT PUBLIC SCHOOL

Mr. Kenneth Harrison, ARCT began his duties as music supervisor at the school and laid plans for a future school choir. Classes rotate to the music room (formerly Mr. Stein's classroom), the seniors in the morning and the juniors in the afternoon periods. It is a great opportunity for the children to study under such an accomplished musician as Mr. Harrison and it is expected they will benefit greatly by his instruction.

Improvements noticed around the school include a new sidewalk at the east of the building, a new chimney, new doors at either main entrance, and a newly decorated classroom on the upper floor.

Rotary has commenced this week in senior grades, with rotary classes on Tuesdays and Thursdays only. Mr. Henry will teach science.

Mrs. Evans music; Miss Campbell, health; Mr. Stein, physical training and Miss Stull, art.

It is hoped that the newly commenced school term will be a successful one for each and every pupil enrolled.
