The High School's on the Way . . .

Events sometimes move faster than expected. Normally, large items of municipal business are dealt with in the first six months of the year, when enthusiasm is keen, funds are more plentiful and members of boards and commissions are fresh at their job.

It will come as a surprise, then, to know that at long last the new high school program is closer to reality than it has been at any time in five years.

In baseball parlance, you could credit it, to a triple play . . . School board to Esqueusing to Georgetown.

Early this year North Halton high school board adopted a building program to construct new schools at Georgetown and Acton and add a gymnasium at Milton at a cost of $920,000. The three town councils okayed the program. The township councils vetoed it, on the double grounds that the cost was too high and that costs should be shared on the equalized assessment rather than on a Municipal Board ruling fixing costs in the district at a certain figure for the next five years.

The school board has since revised estimates, paring the cost to $555,000, to provide only the minimum requirements. The new program met with a favourable response from Esqueusing and was passed by their council last week, with the proviso that they would agree only if Georgetown gave in on the assessment squabble. At a special meeting of Georgetown council a few nights later, the town decided to drop financial advantages gained by the Municipal Board ruling, in order to expedite the building program, and the two municipalities are now in agreement. Monday, Nassagaweya and Milton councils agreed to the plan, and the front page of this edition will tell you of Acton's decision last night.

And so the new high school is on the way and the school board can get down to the real work of selecting architects, drawing plans and ironing out details with the Dept. of Education.

It is good to know that differences of opinion between the town and township have been amicably settled. It was a particularly hard decision for the Georgetown council to give up a sum of money to which by law they were entitled, and yet which by equalized assessment seemed to Esqueusing to be an unfair burden on them. Let us hope that the town and country cousins will now agree to agree in future, for there are so many important places where the common good makes cooperation essential.

Quiet Here, But Neighbours Suffer

No town could have been more orderly than Georgetown on Hallowe'en. The grown-ups who wanted some fun worked off their high spirits at the Lions dance, while the smaller fry enjoyed the usual parade from door to door for shell-outs.

There seemed no regret at the dropping of a community party for the kids. Those who used to run the party got out of a lot of work and worry, and the kids themselves had a full schedule of house-to-house calls. Someone remarked that even Hallowe'en has become mechanized, for many parents were transporting their children from door to door, instead of by foot.

Those who were about early on Main Street Saturday morning got quite a kick out of some clever soap work on windows. "How about some Terra Cotta News?" was the query on one well-known window. "You're cracked" drew attention to the obvious on another, while "Lo H . . . with early closing" added a touch of current affairs on still another.

In Streetsville the story was a different one. There wanton destruction was the keynote, and it was only lucky that some serious damage was not done. Broken windows, fires started in leaves and at the rear of business places, open defiance of police and citizens, have been reported in the daily press.

It is a shame that such things can happen. Chances are most of the participants were ordinarily sensible teen-agers who got out of control in a mob. But it does not excuse them and the only way Streetsville can have a quiet Hallowe'en in future is for the police to search out every one of the offenders and the court mete out sufficient penalty to be a deterrent to future mischief.

Schneider Choir Pleases Varied Musical Program

A program of musical entertainment was presented to an appreciative audience by the Schneider-Orpheus Male Choir of Kitchener in St. John's United Church auditorium on the evening of Wednesday, October 29th. The choir, led by Paul Berg, with accompanist Jack Houston, is composed of forty men who are members of the chorus because of the quality of their voices and because they love to blend their voices with others in song.

It was a varied program beginning with a group of sacred songs which included "The Lord's Prayer" and also a special arrangement of "Onward Christian Soldiers." Then followed an "Oklahoma Fantasy" featuring "Oh What a Beautiful Morning" and "The Surrey with the Fringe on Top."

There were solos by tenor, baritone and bass singers.

The whole chorus presented a group of southern songs including "Mah Lindy Lou." The closing number was "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" in an arrangement which was used last May 17 when fifteen choirs including the Schnelder-Orpheus choir, gathered in Kitchener from both Canada and the United States for a "Big Sing." It was a program well worth hearing.
