Juveniles Go On in Championship Race

Georgetown's Legion-sponsored Juvenile 120 Club, advanced another step in their quest for the Ontario title again, when they defeated Fergus in two straight games. Last Saturday night the locals went to Fergus and in a fast, bruising game won handily over the Thistles 5-0. On Monday night, the boys played in the arena and won-7-6. This was an excellent game, too with Fergus making a great comeback in the final period, but just not able to win from the local Georgetown next meets Oakville Lions in a game here next Tuesday. From now on the 120s are making their road trips by bus, and will be able to take a number of their fans along as well.

The lads are a great team, and are bound that they will bring home another championship this year. However the support they are receiving from the fans is nonexistant, and certainly the odd few people at their games would help their morale immensely.

Mulder Family Thought Drowned in Flood

Former Georgetowners, Mr. and Mrs. Ouke Mulder and their young daughter Frances were drowned in the English flood, according to word which reached town this week.

Word of the tragedy came in a letter which Graham Porter received from relatives in Newfoundland. An English news broadcast had been heard there and the listener had not caught the name, but said that it was a Dutch name and that the broadcast had said the fafamily formerly lived on Kennedy Street. Georgetown, and had moved to England last August.

The Mulders were living at 12 Saville Street, Walton-on-Ouse. which is in the flooded area. Well known in town and district, they lived at Limehouse before moving to town. Mr. Mulder was employed at the Smith and Stone plant and his wife worked at the Bell Telephone office.

Mrs. Mulder was an English girl, and has no known relatives in this country. Mr. Mulder, of Dutch birth, has a sister, Mrs. Roeleof Mulder, who lives in Guelph.

Leo's Electric Service Is New Business Here

A new Georgetown businessman is Leo Riemer, who has established Leo's Electric Service on Mill St. This enterprising young man has been in Canada for a year and a half and learned his trade in his native Holland. He comes from Amersfoort, near Spakenburg, where he attended electrical school for three years, then worked on radar and servicing electric motors. When he first came to Canada he worked for a short time at a stone quarry at Terra Cotta, then took up his trade again with Fred's Electric in Erin and for a year worked in Brampton at Chapple's Appliance Store. A short time ago he went into business for himself, establishing at Ballinafad, and now is moving to Georgetown where he feels there is more opportunity in his line of business. Mr. Riemer has rented the house on Mill Street owned by Jack Mc-Gibbon which has been empty since the Reid and Marchment families moved from town. He will use all the building for his shop except the part in front where J. V. Barker has his real estate office.

At present he is boarding at Victoria but expects to be moving soon. to town. An accomplished organist, he formerly played the organ Hillsburgh Baptist Church and present is organist in Orangeville Presbyterian Church.
