again and Longhouse making it 3-0. In the third period Jack Hamilton scored for Commuters assisted by Hugh Wylie and Blake Baxter. Hunter of Biltmores scored late in the third for the final goal. By winning this game Biltmores won the league championship but Commuters never gave up and were in there fighting to the last minute. Steamer Emmerson was outstanding for Commuters last Sunday and time after time he turned away the Biltmores single handed as Commuters were pressing for goals and the Biltmores took advantage of the breakaways.

Playoffs start next Sunday with Biltmores and Rovers in Group No. 1, and Canucks and Commuters in Group 2. It will be a two game series to count with the winners going into the finals. We feel the Commuters will be in there for the finals and will give their opposition a good battle for top honours. So look out Biltmores if you get by the Rovers.

The lines of Coffell, J. Hamilton and B. McCandless and B. Barry, E. Muir and K. Adamson were going well on Sunday, but just could not overcome the lead the Biltmores had on them. The defence of H. Wylie, B. Baxter, J. Louth and D. Baxter and J. Ford deserves mentioning and of course Steamer is always in there with a steady game. Coach H. Chappel has done a good job handling this team the past season and at times it must have been trying for him with seven and eight men showing up for a game.

M. Jordon and C. Norton have been sidelined for the past few games with leg injuries, but they should be ready by next Sunday for the playoffs.

Berlin 'Free University' Has Seen Steady Growth

A 'free university' opened in the U.S. sector of Berlin in 1948 as a counter-measure against Russian dominated Under-den Linden university, has grown in student enrollments from 2200 students to 5,000 today. Twenty per cent of the students are sons and daughters of laborers and a quarter of the student body is comprised of women, a percentage that would have been inconceivable in pre-war Germany.

When the western powers entered Berlin in 1945 they discovered that the Russians, who had arrived some months earlier, had already begun reorganization of Berlin university along Soviet lines. The U.S. education representative at that time proposed that the university should be properly placed under control of the Berlin city government so that all four occupation powers would share control of the school. This was blocked by a Russian veto and the university opened in 1946 under Russian control. Communist professors were installed in key positions and the University was flooded with student party-liners.

When the majority of the students resisted Communist pressure, more direct methods were applied. Six students were arrested and kidnapped in the spring of 1947. It was then that the Berlin city authorities decided to open a new free university in the western sectors of Berlin. Today 42 per cent of the students in the new University are refugees from the Soviet zone, nearly half of the remaining students are from west Berlin with 5 per cent coming from western Germany and the rest from foreign countries. Law, medicine, philosophy and economic and social science make up the curriculum.

New Type of 'Blood Bank' Preserves Blood Vessels

Doctors have established a new type of "bank" which collects and preserves human blood vessels.

The first such bank has been established at New York Hospital, Cornell Medical Center and Bellevue Hospital, part of the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center.

Desirability of such a bank became apparent with the development of new techniques of cardiovascular surgery in which normal blood vessel grafts from deceased persons are transplanted to patients with diseased or abnormal vessels.

The use of blood vessel grafts is already well recognized in surgical treatment of patients suffering from constriction of the main artery of the heart, malignant conditions necessitating the sacrifice of a vital blood vessel, and aneurysms, a dilation of the walls of an artery resulting in the formation of a blood-filled sac.

Dr. Robert E. Gross of Boston is believed to be the first to successfully use blood vessel grafts as early as 1948. He preserved sections of vessels for future use but on a small scale.

The New York bank, on the other hand, draws its supply from all available New York hospitals. It was established in July, 1949.

Watch Your Eyesight!

Country cousins, in the main, have better eyesight than city folks, the Better Vision Institute reports. Many of them should consider themselves remarkably fortunate — for they often take foolhardy risks with their vision. In their day-to-day duties, farm people expose their eyesight to dangers to which no able factory supervisor would consider subjecting his workers. They often "make hay while the sun shines" without wearing sun glasses. And they frequently neglect to wear protective goggles when engaged in repairing farm machinery, sharpening tools, welding, plowing and threshing in dust, and similar activities—sometimes with tragic results. Further, many people in rural areas skip periodic eyesight examinations because of the time and travel involved. Such examinations are vitally important in eyesight conservation.

Rice—Food of Strength

The high nutritive value of rice as a daily diet is adequately attested by the survival of hundreds of Americans who fell prisoners to the Japanese during those grim days of 1942. Through more than three and a half years of imprisonment, these soldiers and sailors were subjected to Nipponese brutality, were worked unmercifully, and yet their diet consisted of no more than three, or sometimes as little as two small bowls of rice per day. Occasionally, it is true, this diet was augmented by a thin broth, and perhaps a little black bread, but, always, there was rice. And it was rice, even in incredibly small quantities which sustained their strength under brutal, slave-work conditions.

20,000 Miles of Transportation

When it is pointed out that a Pittsburgh steel plant gets iron ore from Minnesota, fuel oil from Texas, manganese from Russia and India, ferro-chrome from Rhodesia, nickel from Canada and calcium molybdate from Colorado, one suddenly realizes what a vital factor transportation is in the manufacture of steel.

Forums Give Opinions On Seaway Project

Mrs. R. E. Ellenton

Many people think of the St. Lawrence Seaway as a new and daring venture. Actually the present plan is simply to complete the last links in a long chain of waterway development. Negotiations between Canada and the United States regarding a joint sea-way project go back to the days before the First World War, but the United States government has never given full consent. Even in 1941 when an agreement was signed between the two countries to proceed with the waterway, it was never approved by Congress.

That this topic was one of supreme importance to all Forum members was proven by the fact that 14 forums have sent in their reports this week and report an interesting broadcast and discussion.

In answer to the first question: "Do you think your own region of Canada will benefit or suffer in any way from the development of the St. Lawrence Seaway? All agreed we will benefit as the increased hydro power will bring more industry, and industry larger population and population greater markets for farm produce. Employment will mean a greater amount of money circulating. Cheaper transportation in competition with railways. Greater Hydro facilities. We, in Halton County, will be adjacent to two seaport cities, both prominent industrial and commercial centres where the population and the demand for our farm produce will necessarily increase readily. Cheaper freighting from the Maritimes especially for Labrador ore and for Cape Breton coal. Land owners will benefit from increased property value and our products can be shipped direct to European markets.

The second question — What effect do you think the seaway will have on the future of Canada by the navigation development? Livestock and wheat can be shipped direct to Europe. Through navigation the Great Lakes — St. Lawrence Seaway would be of vast aid to Western Canada, particularly by providing cheaper transportation from the head of the lakes to the Atlantic. Imports will be more readily distributed. It will tend to open up new cities and towns enroute through Canada. It will open land north of Lake Superior, which has hitherto been inaccessible. It will be the most lasting investment the government could make with its money for future industry and farming.

One of our Ontario Junior Farmers won the public speaking contest at the Junior Farmers Conference in Toronto and chose this subject for his topic.
