Church Young People Present Sacred Drama

The Young People of St. John's United Church took charge of the entire evening service on Sunday, with a sacred drama, Joseph of Arimathea taking the main part of the evening.

Anne Hyde and Betty Greig had charge of the worship service, with Pat Willson at the piano. Directors of the drama were Ern Hyde and Rev. John M. Smith, assisted by Eileen Oates and Joyce Denham. Ross McGillivray supervised the lighting.

Bill Hardman played the title role in the play, and other members of the cast were: Bill Whitney, Nicodemus; Shirles Forbes, Esther; Ted Middleton, Joash; Leanne Darrou, Annah; Sue Crabtree, Beverley Hyde, followers of Jesus; Dale Tost, soldier; Gordon Greig, page; Allen Darby, reader.

The drama was a vivid presentation of the happenings from Jesus' trial through the message of Good Friday to Easter and the hope of the resurrection, especially as these affected the household of Joseph of Arimathea and his friends.

Berlin 'Free University' Has Seen Steady Growth

A 'free university' opened in the U.S. sector of Berlin in 1948 as a counter-measure against Russian dominated Under-den Linden university, has grown in student enrollments from 2200 students to 5,000 today.

Twenty per cent of the students are sons and daughters of laborers and a quarter of the student body is comprised of women, a percentage that would have been inconceivable in pre-war Germany.

When the western powers entered Berlin in 1945 they discovered that the Russians, who had arrived some months earlier, had already begun reorganization of Berlin university along Soviet lines. The U.S. education representative at that time proposed that the university should be properly placed under control of the Berlin city government so that all four occupation powers would share control of the school. This was blocked by a Russian veto and the university opened in 1946 under Russian control. Communist professors were installed in key positions and the University was flooded with student party-liners.

When the majority of the students resisted Communist pressure, more direct methods were applied: six students were arrested and kidnapped in the spring of 1947. It was then that the Berlin city authorities decided to open a new free university in the western sectors of Berlin.

Today 42 per cent of the students in the new University are refugees from the Soviet zone, nearly half of the remaining students are from west Berlin with 5 per cent coming from western Germany and the rest from foreign countries. Law, medicine, philosophy and economic and social science make up the curriculum.

New Type of 'Blood Bank' Preserves Blood Vessels

Doctors have established a new type of "bank" which collects and preserves human blood vessels.

The first such bank has been established at New York Hospital, Cornell Medical Center and Bellevue Hospital, part of the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center.

Desirability of such a bank became apparent with the development of new techniques of cardiovascular surgery in which normal blood vessel grafts from deceased persons are transplanted to patients with diseased or abnormal vessels.

The use of blood vessel grafts is already well recognized in surgical treatment of patients suffering from constriction of the main artery of the heart, malignant conditions necessitating the sacrifice of a vital blood vessel, and aneurysms, a dilation of the walls of an artery resulting in the formation of a blood-filled sac.

Dr. Robert E. Gross of Boston is believed to be the first to successfully use blood vessel grafts as early as 1948. He preserved sections of vessels for future use but on a small scale.

The New York bank, on the other hand, draws its supply from all available New York hospitals. It was established in July, 1949.

Watch Your Eyesight!

Country cousins, in the main, have better eyesight than city folks, the Better Vision Institute reports. Many of them should consider themselves remarkably fortunate — for they often take foolhardy risks with their vision. In their day-to-day duties, farm people expose their eyesight to dangers to which no able factory supervisor would consider subjecting his workers. They often "make hay while the sun shines" without wearing sun glasses. And they frequently neglect to wear protective goggles when engaged in repairing farm machinery, sharpening tools, welding, plowing and threshing in dust, and similar activities—sometimes with tragic results. Further, many people in rural areas skip periodic eyesight examinations because of the time and travel involved. Such examinations are vitally important in eyesight conservation.

Rice—Food of Strength

The high nutritive value of rice as a daily diet is adequately attested by the survival of hundreds of Americans who fell prisoners to the Japanese during those grim days of 1942. Through more than three and a half years of imprisonment, these soldiers and sailors were subjected to Nipponese brutality, were worked unmercifully, and yet their diet consisted of no more than three, or sometimes as little as two small bowls of rice per day. Occasionally, it is true, this diet was augmented by a thin broth, and perhaps a little black bread—but, always, there was rice. And it was rice, even in incredibly small quantities, which sustained their strength under brutal, slave-work conditions.

30,000 Miles of Transportation

When it is pointed out that a Pittsburgh steel plant gets iron ore from Minnesota, fuel oil from Texas, manganese from Russia and India, ferro-chrome from Rhodesia, nickel from Canada and calcium molybdate from Colorado, one suddenly realizes what a vital factor transportation is in the manufacture of steel.

Mr. Dunlop spoke of the many changes he had noticed in the community and of the familiar faces he remembered. He left an inspiring message at both services. William O'Hearn, Brampton, was soloist and the church choir, led by Mrs. Jack Addy, had prepared special music for the day. Pleasant weather and a record attendance marked this anniversary.
