Halton Farmers Visit Michigan on Bus Tour

The 1953 bus tour sponsored by the Halton Soil and Crop Improvement Association was held on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of last week. Sixty-six Halton farm folk participated in the event which necessitated two buses. The first point visited was the Fanshawe dam, near London. Here Len Johnson, secretary of the Thames Valley Authority conducted the party on a tour of the huge project and described the conservation programme which has been undertaken. While in Middlesex, the group had the opportunity of seeing something of the havoc resulting from the cyclone in late May. All of the group had seen something of the damage done in Halton by smaller 'twisters' in former years. However, one has to see the wreckage in the various communities of western Ontario to appreciate how lightly we in this county have got off in the past. In Middlesex alone, well over 70 barns and some 30 houses were totally demolished and many others were badly damaged. Along with the wrecking of the buildings went the destruction of avenues and groves of shade trees. It was one of the most tragic sights we have ever seen and one which we hope never to see again. The effects of the cyclone were also observed in Sarnia. True the business section of this city is getting back on its feet, but while the debris had been cleaned from the streets, many buildings were noted where the top storey work was missing and reconstruction work was under way. The group also had the opportunity of a two hour tour through the immense Imperial Oil plant, and also a drive through Chemical Valley along the St. Clair river.

Tuesday saw the party in Michigan, where they visited five different farms. The highlight here was the farm of Frank Jacobs, near Armada. On this 120 acre farm were six upright silos and the operator is a real grass silage enthusiast. Mr. Jacobs has been using grass silage for some 17 years, and it was the general consensus of opinion among the group that there is an authority on the subject, he is the man. He seemed to be equally well versed in soils, fertilizers, rotations, etc. In short, it was with difficulty that our visit here was brought to a conclusion. Another farm which aroused keen interest, was that of Huff and Son, near Romeo. Here their herd of polled Jerseys is being kept in the barnyard — instead of the herd being turned out to pasture, fresh grass is cut daily and fed in racks. The cattle also have the sun of their loafing pens, where dry cut hay is also available. In other words Huff and Son practice loose housing with a five stall milking parlour operated by one man. Their barn is also equipped with a hay drier for cut hay. The final day saw the party at the Ford museum at Dearborn, some twelve miles outside of Detroit. We can only suggest to our readers that this point alone justifies the trip. Here there is something of interest for all members of the family. However, when planning a visit, be sure and allow for at least half a day. Enroute home through Essex County, a visit was made to the sub-section at Woodstock where a study of rotations on heavy clay soils is being made, of the effect of brillum on soil texture, etc.

Local People Guests at Peacock-Coalie Wedding

A wedding of local interest took place in St. Enoch's Presbyterian Church, Hamilton earlier this month. In a double ring ceremony, at which several Georgetown people were guests, Hazel Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Coalie, was married to Seldon Ross Peacock, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Murray Peacock of Port Elgin, N.B. and brother of Mrs. Don Barrager of town. Rev. Mariano DiGangi and Rev. E. M. Aitken officiated. Mrs. H. G. Purser played the wedding music and Mr. Donald Love was soloist. The bride wore a gown designed with scalloped lace skirt over nylon net and satin, with a lace jacket. Her fingertip illusion net veil was gathered to a crown headdress, and she carried gardenias and stephanotis. Her twin sister, Miss Ruth Coalie, maid of honour, wore a three-quarter length gown of yellow and shrimp pink nets over yellow taffeta with a picture hat to match, and carried a crescent of carnations and sweet peas. Bridesmaids Isabel Sutherland, Helen Gibson and Nancy Danylewiz, were similarly attired in shades of blue, pink and green with shrimp pink, and also carried crescents of carnations and sweet peas. Flower girls wearing white taffeta with shrimp and white net, headdresses and nosegays of pastel sweet peas, were Teresa and Patsy Hugel, cousins of the bride, and Patsy Barrager, the groom's niece. Don Barrager, Georgetown, was groomsmen for his brother-in-law and the ushers were Danny Hugel, Toronto, the bride's cousins, Bill Conrad, formerly of Dartmouth, N. S. and John Augustyne. The reception at Mundy's was attended by 175 guests, received by the bride's mother who wore a dress and jacket of embroidered eggshell blue nylon, navy accessories and a corsage of Johanna Hill roses. The groom's aunt, Mrs. Thor Swain of Calgary, Alta., wearing navy silk with a corsage of Talisman roses, assisted. For a wedding trip by motor through the eastern United States to Lake Placid, N.Y. the bride travelled in a silk shantung dress in eggshell blue with hat and jacket to match, black and white accessories, and gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. Peacock will live in Burlington.

to test features that help you do your work better, quicker and at less cost.

To get work done, farming now relies largely upon mechanical equipment. Manpower is scarce and costly and mechanization has been the answer to the farm help problem. Never before has it been possible for a man to do so much, so easily, and so quickly as it is today with up-to-date tractors and power equipment.

That Massey-Harris machines may offer the latest features and advantages in design and construction, research engineers test them by modern stress analysis devices and days and days of operation on the Massey-Harris test track—the first modern full-scale test track for power farming machinery.

SUNDAY SERVICE AT ST. JOHN'S CHURCH

J. D. G.
The topic for Sunday morning service at St. John's United Church, was a timely one, namely "Seek peace and pursue it." This was the desire and admonition of the psalmist long ago and it still is the desire of the human race, with the admonition of it still standing. If we really wish peace we must pursue it. This subject reminded Rev. John Smith of a motto on the wall of a home in his student days ministry which ran like "Sitting and wishing without the fishing, will never change your fate; God supplies the fish, but you must dig the bait. Applied to peace, could read "You can't have peace, sitting and wishing without the doing; God will give the peace, but you must do the pursuing." From time immemorial, man has wished for peace, yet has always been confronted with the threat and terror of war. And though peace has often been imminent, almost achieved, some misunderstanding, or greed for power, has swept it away again. All the evidence from every land, points to peace being very desirable, the wish of nearly every human heart, not just the peace of one's own ease and comfort to be let alone; but rather the peace which has one acting in harmony with his fellow-men, actively pursuing this end which gives peace. And peace is one of the still unconquered great heights like Mount Everest, which lies ahead of us for brave and earnest men and women to conquer. And it cannot be conquered just sitting, wishing, criticizing from an armchair in comfort, but like Mount Everest, it is a costly endeavour, which calls for sacrifice, a great deal of team work give and take, seeking to find the other people's point of view, always remembering that we can't pass by on the other side while our neighbour is in distress and need. Then, too, peace is Christian; all Jesus' life and teaching confirmed the psalmist, that peace was worth seeking and pursuing; that His great desire was to bring peace on earth and goodwill among men as was proclaimed at His birth. We claim to be Christians. His followers, so we must seek peace and pursue it, everywhere, at all times, and we will never bring peace to the world.

COUNTY ORANGEMEN PARADE AT HORNBY

Orangemen from various sections of Halton gathered a week ago Sunday for the annual county church parade. The lodges, accompanied by Milton Junior Band, marched to the United Church where Rev. George Leck preached an inspiring sermon as part of the service. The band provided music for the hymns. There was a splendid turnout of members from lodges at Georgetown, Hornby, Milton, Acton, until we bring the spirit of peace into our homes, into our play, into our work and labour-management relations, in fact into every activity of our lives, seeking the good of others as we seek our own. Our aim and every thought must be definitely, the brotherhood of man under the Fatherhood of God. Mrs. Jack Bailey and Miss Isabel Dobson sang the duet, "Love Divine." The Junior Choir sang as an offertory, "O Saviour Sweet, O Saviour Kind" with Marilyn Southey taking the solo verse.

Everyday Menace!

THE DANGER of fire attacking your house is ever present . . . no matter what precautions you take. Of course, you can prevent many fires merely by being careful and obeying fire prevention rules. But your very best protection against financial loss to any and all fires is strong and adequate insurance.
