Golf Again in Georgetown

Golfers who have bemoaned the fact that Georgetown has no course, will be delighted at the news that J. A. Willoughby has sold his private course to what will be a stock company composed of district people.

Driving force behind the purchase is Kenneth Langdon, who has been negotiating for some time for the property. Mr. Langdon has in mind the creation of a non-profit company of golf enthusiasts who can enjoy the game in one of Canada's most beautiful settings, without the tiresome trips to Brampton, Orangeville, Guelph and other centres which have been necessary for a decade.

Until the local club was closed ten years ago, there were many happy times at Cedar Brae, where through Mr. Willoughby's generosity, a club with very conservative annual fees and green fees for those who played occasionally was available. We would imagine that the income fell far short of paying operating expenses, and of course there was no original investment to pay off.

The new club will be far different, and must be maintained on a sound financial structure. There is a capital expenditure of $125,000 which must be retired in a ten year period particularly the $50,000 mortgage which Mr. Willoughby has given: For this purpose, capital shares of $500 must be purchased by a member, which will be repayable sometime during the ten years.

The fees themselves are not low, but have been set after a careful study of what income must be realized to pay off capital debt and keep the club in top shape. Unfortunately many who wish to play, may feel they cannot afford the $150 or $100 yearly as the case may be. This is regrettable, but it must be realized that the club can only exist, like any other activity, if its income carries its expenses. Only other solution would be for the town proper to buy the club, out of the public treasury, and we should hardly imagine taxpayers, faced with mounting expenses for public works would look favourably on owning a golf course with their tax money.

Pot Pourri

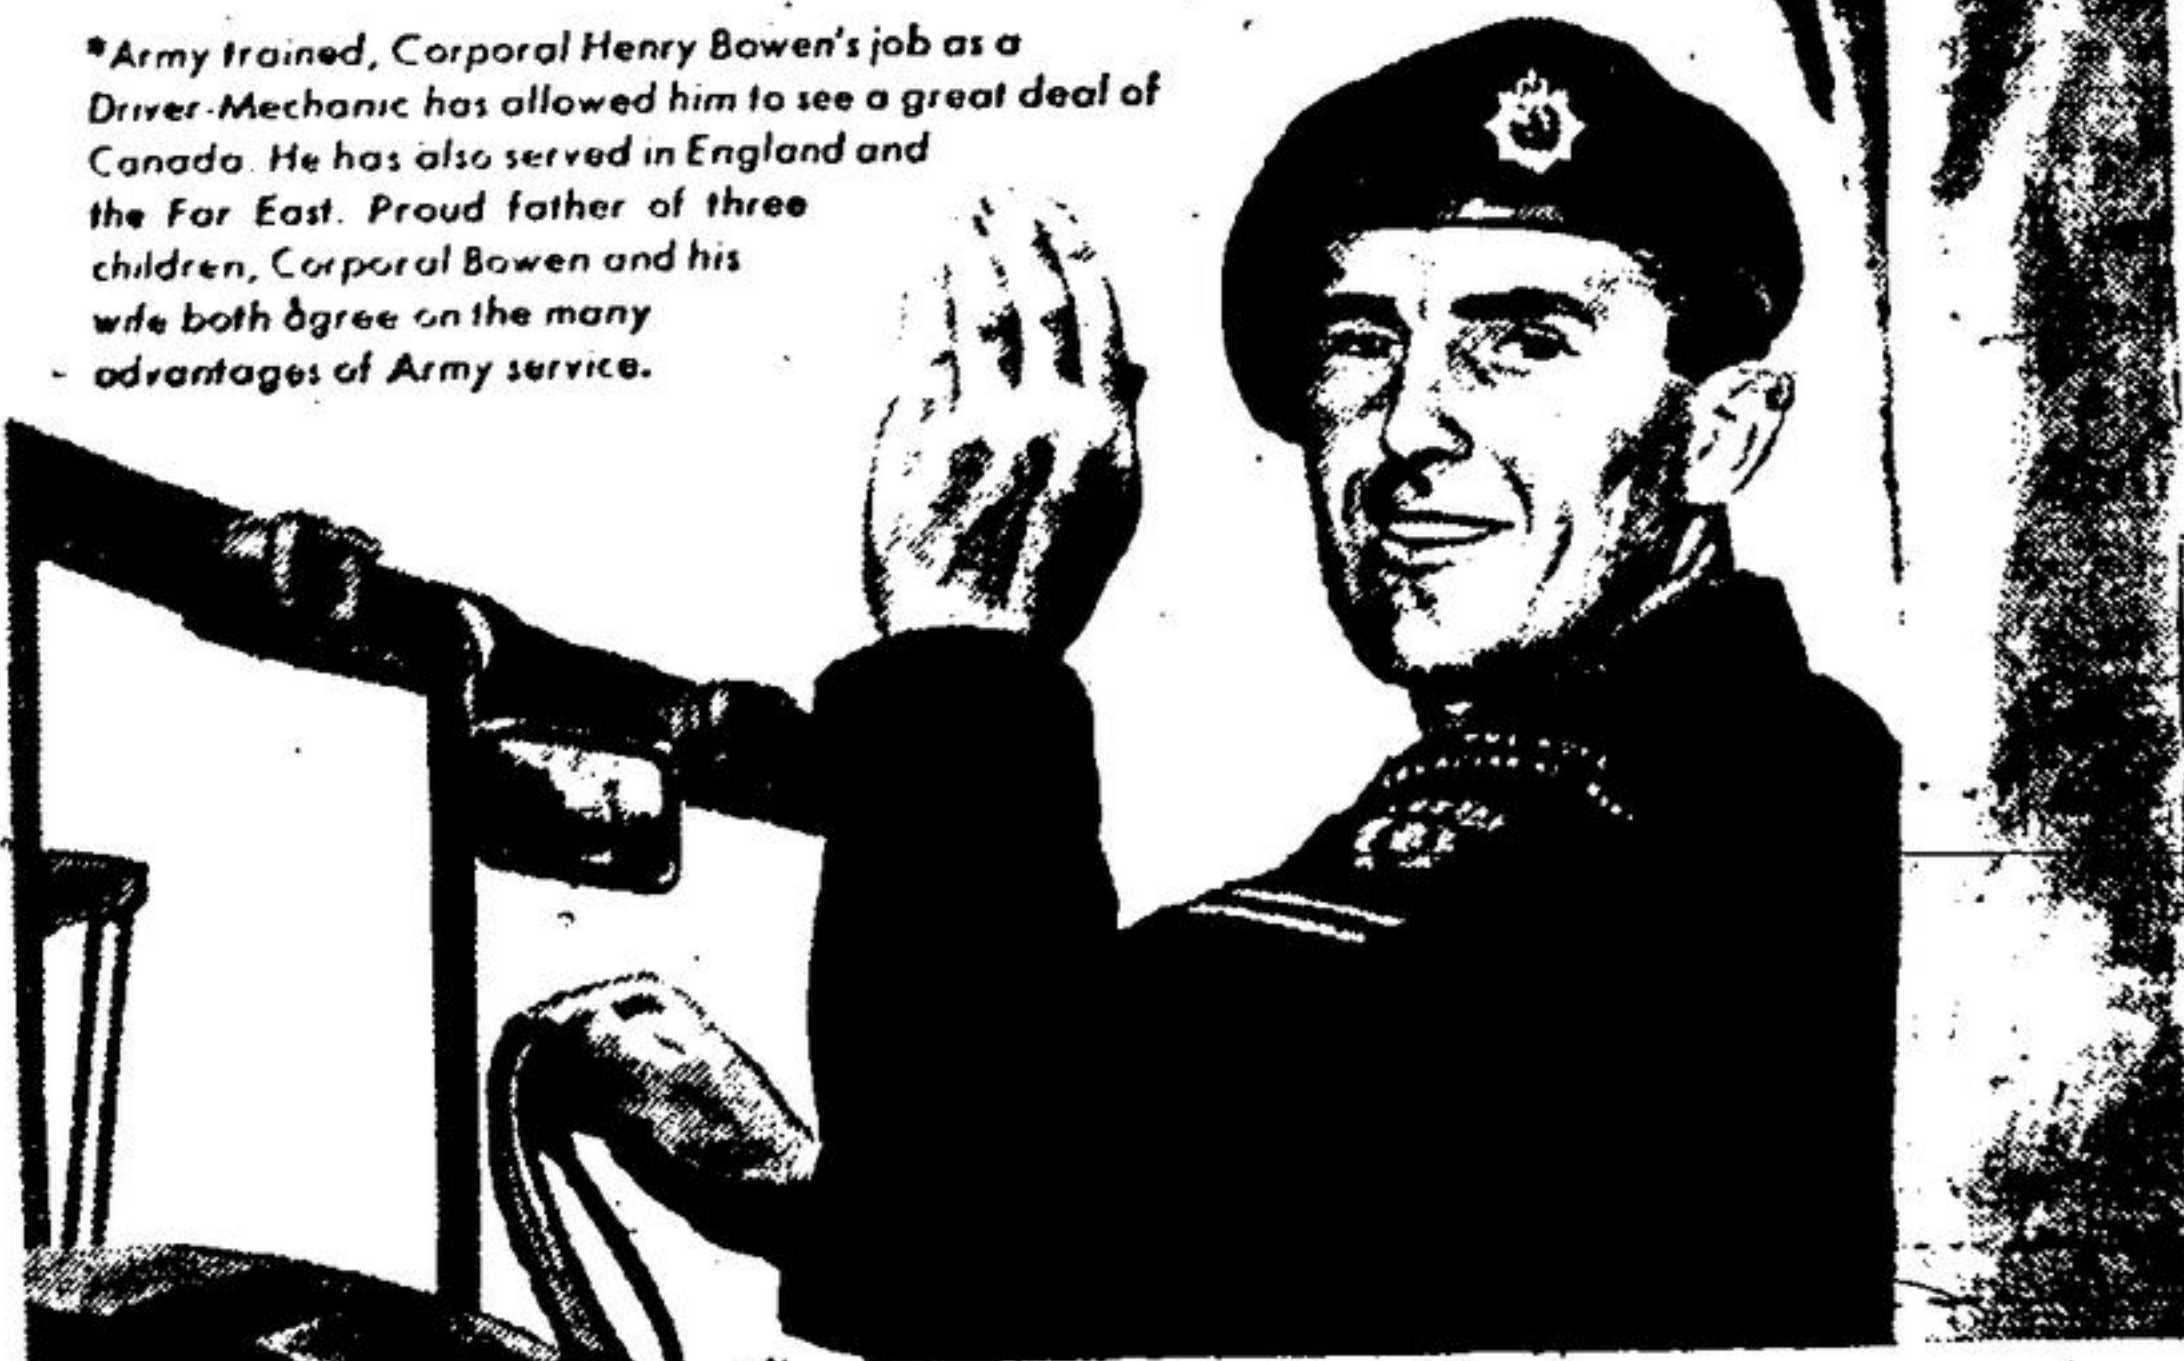

Georgetown may have a winning lacrosse team for the first time in half a century if the N&Cs continue their winning ways. It wasn't quite so easy a series as the first three games would indicate, but they finally routed Wallaceburg on Labor Day, and now only Brookline stands in the way of an Ontario championship. Crowds have not been too encouraging this first season, so now that cooler nights are here, the boys are hoping for a real turn-out at their games with Brookline. Omitted from the list of guests at the Robinson-Stark wedding, reported last week in the Herald, was Mr. W. A. Hardy. Maybe we should not give a free "plug" but the CNE Grandstand show is almost an institution, so we say to those who haven't already seen it, "Do." Victor Borge is worth the price of admission alone, and a terrific production number featuring old fashioned songs and skits is another highlight. Borge is a real performer, as anyone who saw him put on his whole show in the rain last Friday would realize. . . . The Ed Wilsons and Cece Davidsons saw a show of another kind in Stratford during the Shakespeare festival. Driving through the city on a Sunday they decided to stop and have a look at the huge tent and were surprised at the buzz of activity. Turned out the National Film Board was taking some movie shots of the shows and spectators were sought to fill up the seats and make it look like a performance. So it was that, all for free, they saw scenes from both plays, with the thrill of being some of the atmosphere themselves, plus between scenes entertained by Eric Christmas, so often heard on the radio in Toronto. . . .

Hazel Reed Weds In Omagh Church

In Omagh Presbyterian Church on Saturday, Rev. James McFaul officiated at a three o'clock ceremony which united Hazel Marie Reed and James Craig Reid in marriage. The church was decorated with white gladioli and pink roses.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reed, R. R. 1, Milton, and was employed at Otis Elevator Co. Ltd. in Hamilton before her marriage. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Weir Reid, R. R. 2, Norval, farms on the 8th Line near Hornby.

Ruth Wilson was organist and Jean and Margaret Bird sang I'll Walk Beside You and Wedding Prayer during the service. All are cousins of the groom.

The bride wore a wedding gown which had a fitted lace-bodice, long sleeves and a floor-length net skirt over taffeta. Her fingertip veil was caught to a cap of flowers and matching lace. She wore a pearl necklace and earrings, and carried red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Mildred Reed was her sister's maid of honour, wearing ballerina length aqua silk taffeta with mother-of-pearl beading. She wore a headdress and carried a bouquet of talisman roses.

Kenneth Reid, Norval, was his brother's best man. Ushers were the bride's cousin, Gordon Wingfield and the groom's brother Gordon Reid. Mr. Reid gave his daughter in marriage.

Receiving afterwards in Trafalgar Hall, the bride's mother wore a blue net and lace dress over taffeta and a corsage of red roses. The groom's mother wore grey crepe with lace insertions and a white rose corsage.

For a honeymoon trip, the bride changed to a brown suit, brown accessories, a yellow blouse and yellow rose corsage.

BALLINAFAD

Presentation, Shower For Jean Sinclair

Friends and neighbours gathered in the hall Friday evening to make a presentation to Miss Jean Sinclair, a bride to be next Saturday. Following a short programme, Jean and her fiancé, Mr. Bob McGill were called to the front. A short address was read by Yvonne McEnery after which the bride and groom to be were presented with a easy chair, table and lamp and a bookcase. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Miss Dorothy Warne entertained at a kitchen shower in her home in honour of Miss Sinclair. Games and contests were enjoyed after which Jean was presented with many lovely and useful gifts for which she thanked them in a few well chosen words. A dainty lunch was served to close a very enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Near of Newmarket, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Mays of Markdale were week-end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Ferguson.

The theme for this week is "Back to School." Among the beginners at Blue Mountain are Billie McEnery, Jimmy Sanderson, Alan Jamieson, Brian Sinclair, and Wayne
