Remembrance of God Stressed at St. John's J. D. G.

With Thanksgiving just a week past and its spirit still in the air. Rev. John M. Smith in St. John's United Church on Sunday morning, sought to keep remembrance of indebtedness to God, and the vows made to Him from time to time. He used as his subject: "The Unpaid Vow" and took his text from the 66th Psalm: I will pay Thee my vows, which my lips have uttered and my mouth hath spoken, when I was in trouble.

And who hasn't been in trouble, sore trouble, when there was nothing left but to call on God, believing somehow in His promises. even though former vows were still unpaid? Mr. Smith's mind went back to early days when a hymn was widely sung and with much enthusiasm and belief, "Standing, standing, I'm standing on the promises of God". It sank deep into his memory, and still holds. But why is it not sung now? It is not in the hymn books; can it be that man is not standing on the promises of God?; that in the hurry and bustle of our lives, amid all our prosperity, our security, our selfassurance, we are forgetting God's promises so quickly and trying to get along on our own, until, yes until, sore trouble comes.

Maybe we have been so richly blessed that it has not come to us yet; if not yet, it almost surely will, so that at some time in our lives we will involuntary cry out to Him, if not with our lips. then with our heart and soul, believing His promise that if we cry unto Him in our distress. He will hear us and answer. Answer, oh yes, but often not just as we expect, often not until later do we realize that He has answered us much better for us, than our own asking. "Wait on the Lord, and He shall renew thy strength." What a promise

"Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest." "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." And when we call on Ontario's deputy minister of agri- Him in time of trouble, relying on heart and mind, if not with our lips, make a vow unto Him? At: such a time we realize how unfair it is, to accept His promises and help and yet ignore His commandments and statutes. His will for us. We are ready then to make a vow, promise anything, everything if need be. Many pay their vow. The psalmist said, "I will go into Thy house with burnt offerings, I will pay Thee my vows". How many, very many, forget. The unpaid vow; how much do we owe? If all the vows and promises made to God, had been paid, would not this world long since have been won back to Him, to whom it rightfully belongs? If we pay Him our vows now, how soon will His Kingdom come, and war, and sin and suffering be done away with the world over?

> A young minister, new in his charge, was hastily called to the bedside of one of his elderly members. very seriously ill, and as he walked he wondered in his inexperience what he could say to such a God-fearing man as he knew him to be. So he prayed silently as he went. He found that his member was very troubled because he could not remember God's promises. He was truly distressed. The natural thing to do was to mention some of them and so try to bring them back to his failing memory. But instead the words came to the young minister to say, "But you don't think God will forget them, do you?" His face brightened. "Oh no!" he said, as he relaxed and was at peace > again. He must have paid his vows. The choir's anthem was "God is a Spirit." The offertory "Nearer My God to Thee," Mrs. E G. Bishop. Evening worship was with Knox Church on the occasion of their anniversary.
