FOR COUNCILLOR

Four polling sub-divisions have been established for the convenience of Georgetown electors who go to the polls on Monday to choose six members of council and a hydro commissioner.

Voters in the White Bridge district vote at the new fire hall. Those in the College View district, which is subdivision 2, will cast their ballots at the home of Cyril Engleby, and 2A, the Queen Street district, at the home of Thomas Grieve. The park district and Normandy Boulevard, which are contained in Subdivision 3, will vote at the Municipal Hall.

The name of every qualified voter appears on the Voters' List recently published. If a person is in doubt about their polling sub-division, they would be well advised to contact the returning officer town clerk John D. Kelly, and check on this information. Polls will be open from nine in the morning until seven at night on December 14th.

Mrs. Bert Gilmer, George Arnold, Thomas Grieve, James Ritchie, A. H. Feller, Keith Barber, Everett Cole and P. B. Harrison have been named as deputy returning officers at the various polling stations. Poll clerks include Sam Harrison, Mrs. Jack Cunningham, Mrs. L. Follow, Mrs. Rupert Beaumont, Alice Treanor, Mrs. Douglas Marshall, May Langan and Florrie Alcott.

Stresses Safety Factor In Industrial Plants

FRANCIS, HERBERT JOIN
QUARTER CENTURY CLUB

Representing head office at the Quarter Century Club dinner of Provincial Paper Ltd. last week, John Buss spoke of the important safety factor in industry and urged members of the club to use their years of experience to train younger men to serve their own interests and those of the company by doing the job properly.

The company has a close link with the Pulp and Paper Safety Association, because a former company president, the late Mr. Welton was one of the association's originators, Mr. Buss said.

"The qualities that make a good fighter pilot are the qualities which make a reckless workman", he continued, pointing out that if an older man thinks back to his youth, he too took needless chances. A business counts on the older, established men who have themselves learned safety principles, to train those starting out, and he asked each club member to share in this work. His sentiments were re-echoed by mill manager Ross Duncan, who also spoke briefly at the dinner.

Presentation of engraved watches to Thomas Herbert and Edward Francis, who were welcomed into club membership at the dinner, was made by Mr. Buss on behalf of the company.

The dinner, an annual event, was held Thursday in the Legion Auditorium, with the Legion W.A. catering for turkey dinner. This year, for the first time, the dinner was enlarged to include wives of members.

Harry Hale, club president, was chairman at the dinner. Other members of the executive are: Lena McNally, vice president; Janet McDougall, secretary and Richard Grace.

Mr. and Mrs. George Glasford and Bert Marchment provided dinner music and played for dancing later in the evening. Harry Hale and Andrew Dewhurst entertained with music hall songs, with Miss Jessie Leavitt at the piano.

A minute's silence was observed during the evening for two club members who died since the last meeting, Harry Hills and Herbert Caseley.

Club membership included nineteen men and women presently employed at the mill and 24 members who have retired on pension or are working at other employment.

Members of the club are: Active members: Clayton Allen, Albert N. Carter, James Costigan, Edward Francis, John Fry, Richard E. Grace, Harry Hale, Thomas Herbert, Ann M. M. Hickey, Donald G. Latimer, Walter Louth, Leonard G. Marchment, Fred McCartney, Janet F. McDougall, Lena M. McNally, Walter Peck, Orval Rayner, William C. Reynolds, George A. Smith.

Associate members: George Barnes, George Blick, Robert Buchanan, Martin A. Cummins, Andrew Dewhurst, Hugh Dickie, Robert B. Foulis, Wilfred Gill, Wellington Greensward, Samuel Harrison, Arthur C. Herbert, James Hill, Charles H. Hoare, Isaac Hornby, Alexander Kean, John D. Kelly, Jessie I. Leavitt, George Louth, William Merritt, Frederick McNally, Henry Preston, Chester Scott, Thomas Treanor, Bertie Weston.

Albert Simson Weds In London, England

Word has been received by relatives in town of the marriage of a former Georgetown, Albert Simson.

The marriage took place in Stratford, London, England on Tuesday, November 10. Mr. Simson, who is a London bus conductor, had a photography business here before going to England three years ago.

Cummings Speaker At Fair Board Directors Dinner

"Dutch" Cummings, assistant public relations director of the General Motors Corporation, provided plenty of humour when he appeared as guest speaker at the annual dinner of the directors of Esqueusing Agricultural Society on Saturday.

The dinner was held in Esqueusing Community Hall, Stewarttown, with ladies of Ashgrove Women's Institute catering for a turkey meal. Mr. Cummings, a Peel County native, was introduced by Ken McMillan. Mr. Cummings, while not attempting to give a serious address, interrupted his flow of stories to speak briefly of the great growth in Canada with emigration from Europe and asked that New Canadians be given a real Canadian welcome as they come here to make their home. J. E. Whitelock, county agricultural representative, when he was introduced, told farmers not to worry too much about present surpluses of agricultural products. They are only temporary, Mr. Whitelock believes, for not only is our country growing rapidly, but the United States is expanding in population so fast that in a seven-year period, more people will be added there than the present total population of Canada. He converted this increase into terms of grain, hogs and milk to show how necessary it is to keep increasing production.

Harding Price, chairman of the fair board, was master of ceremonies. He introduced Mayor Jack Armstrong, who spoke of the pride which is Georgetown's in housing a fine fall fair, and Esqueusing reeve George L. Leslie, county warden this year, who wished the fair the same success in future as it has enjoyed in the past.

Entertainment included tap dances by Miss Mildred Johnson of Toronto, solos by Mrs. H. C. Wrigglesworth with Mrs. Frank Wilson accompanying on the piano. Miss Charlotte McCullough thanked the ladies who catered.

Progressive euchre was played later in the evening. Prizewinners were Mac Alexander and Mrs. Ern Hyde, the latter tied with Mrs. H. C. Wrigglesworth for the ladies' prize. Consolations went to Mrs. Jim Fisher and Douglas Currie.

Christmas Significance Forms W.I. Speech Topic

Speaking on a Christmas theme at last week's Women's Institute meeting, Rev. John M. Smith said that people sometimes lose sight of what Christmas means, in the midst of celebration and the worldly things which accompany its religious significance.

He compared it to a child whose mother prepared a birthday party for her, then sends the child upstairs to bed until the party is over. "That's how some of us are inclined to treat God at Christmastime," Mr. Smith concluded, urging the members to give religion its rightful place in the holiday celebrations.

The meeting, convened by Mrs. V. Rawson was held at the home of Mrs. W. G. Bell and followed the Christmas idea throughout.

The ladies discussed plans for Christmas parcels for shut-ins in town and for four residents of Halton Centennial Manor. Miss Ruth Evans sang two solos and Mrs. E. T. Paul played for carol singing.

Mrs. Clarence Hayes gave the motto: Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men. Members exchanged small Christmas gifts.
