

WHAT COUNCIL DID

Waterworks Extension May Cost $240,000

Radical changes in plans for the extension to Georgetown's waterworks system to take care of mushrooming town growth, may increase the budget by as much as $70,000.

Monday at the council meeting, Reeve Stan Allen read a report submitted by engineer Roberts of the Dineen, Phillips and Roberts firm of consulting engineers which, if implemented, would raise capital costs by this amount.

The original plan, drawn up some months ago, entailed a $170,000 expenditure for a second water source, a reservoir and necessary buildings and equipment. Possibility of industrial growth and a step-up in housing subdivisions, has changed the picture where consideration must be given to increasing daily water gallonage, laying extra lines and generally increasing the potential of the water system.

Council has asked Mr. Roberts to attend a meeting on September 7th when the matter will be discussed fully.

The water report brought up another subject which is in Georgetown's future — a man who would have charge of water and sewer plants. Mr. Roberts says this is a necessity with the added facilities. Some councillors opined it might be possible to combine these duties with that of building inspector. Cr. Gray is of the opinion that with so many subdivisions underway, the inspection job itself will soon become a full time job.

The fire brigade was given permission to hold their picnic in the park on a Sunday.

The town foreman was authorized to hire two extra men for a couple of months to help with major road, sewer and water work being done.

A new Byron Street resident, Mr. Clappison, asked council if sewer installations could be speeded, and was told that it should be hooked up within a week.

Final approval was given for installing a 6 inch water main on River Drive.

The building inspector, who had been asked to check that houses in Cloverdale Heights are the regulation 20 feet from the street property line, reported that the contractors are complying with the by-law in this respect.

Social and Personal

Yesterday Shirin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Harley entertained a group of her friends at her 12th birthday party, after which they saw "Hans Christian Andersen" at the Roxy. Her guests were Barbara Finlay, Barbara Lusty, Barbara Biehn, Sherron Bradbury, Carolyn Korzak, Heather Arnold, Lynda Korzak, Michael, and her brother Michael.

Mrs. John Henderson and son Bob, Normandy Blvd. are home from a two week visit with relatives in Ohio. They were at Mount Vernon, Columbus, Danville and Fredericktown. Harold Henderson and Margaret Grey motored down for the second week at Mt. Vernon and the party returned together.

The following piano students from the studio of Marjorie Newman ATCM, were successful in the recent Royal Conservatory examinations. Grade 3, Karen Scott, Ricky Chapman and Roger Kindree all received honours, and Heather Marchant and Neil Tost passed in Grade 1.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Ostrander have been visiting relatives during a motor trip west. At Delisle, Sask. they were with Mr. and Mrs. Mac Given and at Cut Knife with relatives of the Bingham family. They are continuing their trip to Edmonton and Calgary and will be driving home through the States.

ENGAGEMENTS

Mrs. C. Seifried of Guelph announces the engagement of her younger daughter, Marguerite Elizabeth to Ronald Sydney Hulme, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Hulme, Georgetown. The marriage will take place Saturday, September the fourth at the Church of our Lady, Guelph, at ten o'clock.

Do or Die Tonight in 4th Streetville Game

Streetville is certainly not proving any pushover for the N&Gs in their playoff series.

The locals had high hopes after winning the first match in overtime in a high scoring match which saw 34 goals scored. But when they met here on Friday, the total zoomed even higher and final tally was 38. Unfortunately, Georgetown trailed 20-18 at game's end.

Monday in Streetville N&Gs again had a 2-goal deficit and Streetville is leading the series two games to one now. The teams play here again tonight.

It is not a matter of life and death, but the series is important for position. The winner will compete in A finals and the loser in B.

Mainstays of the Georgetown scoring in the game here were old reliable McCandless, Junior Beaumont and Len Caruso with Hillson and McCann contributing a couple apiece also. Burton, Evans and Bennett were best for Streetville.

Hillson notched two more, Savage, Wilson and McCann were the other scorers in Monday's game

NORVAL

Pioneer Norval Recalled As Oldest Resident Dies

Perhaps the only person who remembered Norval in its days as a thriving community with factories and three hotels, Mrs. Isabella Gollop Webster, 95, died at her home there on Saturday. She would have been 98 next November 25th.

Born in Norval, she lived all her life in the village. Her father, Eli Gollop was a native of England and her mother, Jane Robertson, was second generation Scotch. Her Robertson grandparents homesteaded on the Early farm on the 9th Line when they came out from the old country.

Until three years ago when failing health precluded it, Mrs. Webster always had a big birthday party. Friends recall that she baked her own cake and other confections for the party and a highlight was always when she danced with her brother George, two years her junior.

Her husband, Dr. Samuel Webster who died in 1928, was a medical practitioner in Norval for 64 years. Mrs. Webster was associated with all the various activities which make up life in a small town. She was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church, and one of the first members of the Woman's Auxiliary when it was formed before the turn of the century. Her large home on the highway is a beauty spot with its flowers and gardens, always dear to her heart.

Only member surviving of the Gollop family of eight is W. George Gollop, 93 of Norval. Mrs. Webster had no family of her own, but was mother two two nieces who also survive, Miss Prairie Maguire who lived with her in Norval, and Mrs. Marjorie McPherson of Toronto. Brothers and sisters who predeceased her were Mrs. Mary Jane Black, John, George, Eli, Robert and Dr. Ben Gollop. A small sister was burned to death in a fire which destroyed the early Gollop residence almost a century ago.

Rev. J. E. Maxwell conducted the funeral service yesterday at her home. Pallbearers were Garfield McClure, Frank Fendley, Charles Coupland and three nephews, Harold Gollop, Norval, Frank Hull, Toronto and Dr. Fred Gollop, Ottawa.

Mrs. Will Hortop Funeral Tuesday

A resident here until she moved to Toronto 25 years ago, Mrs. Will Hortop was buried yesterday in Greenwood Cemetery following funeral service in the city. She died at her home, 41 Winstow Street, Etobicoke, on Friday.

She was the former Helen Horton and her parents lived in town in the present Cain house on Victoria Street. Mr. and Mrs. Hortop lived there after their marriage and her husband was employed at the old Arnold Glove Factory until it closed down.

LORRAINE GIVEN WORKING IN CITY

Lorraine Given, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Given, has finished her training course at Canada Business College and has a position in the office of the Continental Assurance Co. in Toronto.

which N&Gs lost 7-5. Streetville had the largest attendance of the season to witness the hard-fought match.

Recently Married in North Bay

Hill Bros., North Bay

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hyde sign the register after their marriage in St. Andrew's United Church, North Bay recently. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hyde of town and his bride, Margaret Isabel, daughter of Mrs. Clarence Maxwell, North Bay, are living in Georgetown.

WHAT COUNCIL DID

SEEK SPEED TRAP AS SAFETY MEASURE

Council on Monday considered installing speed traps to curb speeding on the approaches to town.

The matter came up when John Gunn and James McCaig asked for 'Stop' or 'Slow' signs at the Maple-Charles corner. Mayor Armstrong said that while the Provincial Police had told council in the past that speed traps would not be sanctioned, Action is being given one. Another request will go to the OPP headquarters from Georgetown for similar action here.

A new merchant, Archie Girard, asked what position he is in about selling confections after hours, and was told the by-law allows him to sell these any time, but he cannot sell groceries after hours.

The road into the park will be fixed, and a sidewalk installed, on request of the Chamber of Commerce which is planning with the Women's Institute to put stone gateposts at the entrance.

Tenders have been called for resurfacing of Queen Street and paving Young Street.

Council again delayed signing a new contract for provincial policing which will add a fourth constable to the detachment next year, and considerably increase police costs. Costs of policing in Oakville,

Burlington, Brampton and Hespeler, which have their own police, were reviewed, and it appeared that no money could be saved by reverting to a local force. Cr. McGillivray again had no support in his idea to suggest to OPP headquarters that an extra man is not needed at present. Cr. Gray, who is police chairman, took exception to criticism of OPP policing, saying Georgetown is free of major crime, and that as population grows it is sensible to increase the size of the police force.

"There is no room for complaint about the calibre of the men stationed here," he said, "and we will have to comply with the department suggestion or else look for our own men."

LIMEHOUSE

WINS PRIZES AT GUELPH GLAD SHOW

Congratulations to Mr. Al Thornton who won a hammered aluminum tray for most points in gladiolus competition at the Guelph Horticultural show last week and also had the grand champion spike of gladiolus.

A number of W.L. members and friends enjoyed a bus trip to Midland and Orillia with other stops en route last week.

Rev. G. L. Royal of Norval preached at Limehouse on Sunday.

Stubble Field Fire Threatens Farm House

For the second time this year, fire threatened the Clifford Cook farmhouse on Rural Route 4. Georgetown brigade was called last Wednesday afternoon to fight a field of burning stubble. The fire reached within five feet of straw stacks near farm buildings saved when the large Cook barn was destroyed in a March fire, and also endangered the house for a time.

Elliott-Wardlaw Wedding In Knox Church Saturday

INDIA MISSION NURSE IS GUEST IN TOWN

An interesting visitor in town this week is Miss Zaida England, who is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Noble.

The ladies were classmates at the school of nursing at Grace Hospital, Toronto. Miss England later entered the foreign mission field with the Evangelical Alliance and is at present on furlough from her position as a missionary-nurse in India. She is stationed about 175 miles from Bombay.

SILVER-WOOD

Visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George Burt this week have been Mrs. Burt's brother, Mr. Tush Foster and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Grey, all of Toronto. Also Mrs. Burt's sister Mrs. Elvin Gaulty and her two sons Jimmy and Lynn, from Red Rock.

In Knox Presbyterian Church on Saturday, with Rev. Alex Calder officiating, the marriage of Margaret Hewson Wardlaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Hewson, Georgetown, and Ivan George Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Elliott, Campbellville, took place.

The bride wore a graceful ball-length gown of pale pink nylon and she carried pink roses. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. William Atterton of Toronto. Mrs. Atterton wore a ball-length gown of white nylon with lace bolero and carried red roses.

The reception was held at 13 Temple Road where Mr. and Mrs. Elliott will make their home. The bride's mother wore beige, brown accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother wore grey with navy accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

The bride wore powder blue with navy accessories for her wedding trip to Winnipeg. They will travel through northern Ontario, returning by the States.
