WHAT COUNCIL DID

Council Votes Bullclam For Garbage Disposal

Unless two members of council should change their minds, the Bullclam method of garbage disposal will be adopted in town before the end of this year.

Monday, clerk John D. Kelly was instructed to prepare a by-law to provide the $11,000 which will be borrowed on amortment to finance purchase of the machine which was demonstrated here this summer and which is reported to have worked so successfully in several cities and towns.

The purchase was made only after a brisk council debate which saw Crs. Hale, Lyons and Noble opposed. The three favoured further discussion with Bob Lane, holder of the garbage collection contract to take over the job of disposal as well, using property he owns with a guarantee to bulldoze earth over garbage as it is dumped daily.

Mr. Lyons reported that Mr. Lane had said he would do the whole job for an extra $3,000 yearly over his present contract. Other councillors argued that the extra money could be better spent on the bullclam machine, though Mr. Noble warned that he did not believe the company's claim that it would take only a few hours a day for bullclam operation, and he thinks a man will be employed full time at this job.

Mr. Lyons proposed that garbage collection should be paid the same as water rates, with separate bills to each householder, but was told that this could not be enforced and it would lead to people dumping garbage all over town.

Mr. Noble claimed that garbage filled land couldn't be built on, but Deputy Reeve Norton said the old Guelph dump is now the site of a housing subdivision.

"We've all kinds of evidence to show the bullclam successful, but not a shred to show that an open dump meets with approval," said Reeve Allen in moving to buy the machine.

"The daily papers tell us every night of open dump troubles," said Cr. Sargent, who seconded the motion.

Mayor Armstrong envisaged filling waste land in town such as the area behind the arena, while Mr. Norton said he thought the machine could work for 15 or 20 years reclaiming Central Park for some purpose. Mr. Lyons reported that people in Brampton hadn't been too satisfied with their recent bullclam purchase, and that he didn't think it would be economical for a town as small as Georgetown to use this method.

Hornings Mills Rector Weds at St. Paul's

A wedding of local and Maritime interest took place yesterday in St. Paul's Church of England, Norval, when Barbara Louise Mulock, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mulock, Upper La Have, Nova Scotia, became the bride of Rev. Robert W. Coupland, son of Mr. C. W. Coupland, Norval, and the late Mrs. Coupland.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. J. E. Maxwell and celebration of holy communion followed. The altar was decorated with white gladioli.

Against objections of Cr. Thomas L. Lyons to granting any more water and sewer services to new housing subdivisions, council last week okayed the plan of a Toronto firm to build 61 houses on property immediately behind Fairview Inn near the Surbeam Heights development.

The property, once part of Cedarvale Farm and later owned by E. B. Tyers was purchased last year by a Mr. Bayer, who has sold it to a syndicate comprising Mr. Staley and Mr. Corbett of Toronto, who intervened behind the scenes to build the houses.

If sufficient NHA funds are made available, the company plans mass production on the 61 houses all at one time, the two men reported.

Mr. Lyons said he thinks Georgetown is getting overloaded with houses and that there is danger of it becoming a 'dormitory' town feeding outside industries which do not contribute tax money to the town's welfare. He is concerned about rising school costs and cost of essential services which the town must supply to such subdivisions.

WHAT COUNCIL DID
Two Opposed as Council Renews Police Contract

With two councillors voting in opposition, council on Monday decided to renew the contract for policing by Provincial Police which terminates the end of the year.

Reeve Stan Allen led the opposition, saying that while he had nothing personally against the constables stationed here, he does not favour a system which gives council no control over policing. He is particularly bitter against the OPP attitude to catching speeding motorists, and would favour having municipal police who could act on council's orders in such matters.

Cr. Garfield McGilvray renewed a plea that council ask OPP headquarters to consider maintaining the present 3-man force, rather than adding an extra man next year as they plan. Previously no one had agreed with him, but this time Cr. Doug Sargent sided in with the finance minister. Other councillors felt that if OPP is wanted, their decisions should not be questioned.

The mayor and clerk were authorized to sign the new agreement. Cr. Harry Hale voted with the reeve against the move.

Street lighting improvements on Ostrander Blvd. will be made at the suggestion of Cr. Walter Gray, by moving one light and adding an extra one.

Tenders will be asked for sidewalk construction on Sarah Street. Re-placing will also be prepared for replacing sidewalks in two sections of northern Main Street, and for sidewalks on Arlette Street and a section of Guelph Street near Wigglesworth School. It is doubtful if this will be done until next year.

ATTEND BUSINESS COLLEGE
Two local girls, Ann Hyde and Jean Muckart have enrolled at Guelph Business College this year.

Hulme-Seifried Marriage Solemnized in Guelph

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Vincent Hulme returned from their honeymoon in Windsor and Detroit this week and are living at 38 King St.

Mr. Hulme and his bride, Marguerite Elizabeth Seifried, daughter of Mrs. Seifried and the late Herbert Seifried, Guelph, were married September 4th in the Church of Our Lady, Guelph, which was decorated with pink and white gladioli for the occasion. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Hulme of town, is a member of the post office staff and his wife works in the Guelph office of the Huron and Erie Mortgage and Canada Trust.

Rev. Dr. J. A. O'Reilly officiated. John Marrin was organist and Mrs. Howard Bowman, Ariss, soloist. She sang O Lord I am not Worthy, On this Day, and Ave Maria during the service.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother—Starence, wore strapless chantilly lace and tulle, matching lace bolero, a head-piece of pearls and brilliants and embossed fingertip veil, and pearl choker and earrings, gift of her groom. She carried red roses and stephanotis. She had five attendants. Her sister Eileen, maid of honour, and bridesmaids Marie Hulme, sister of the groom, and Darlene Doherty, Guelph were powder blue strapless gowns of lace and tulle with boleros, and tiaras of seed pearls and lace and carried carnations, Miss Seifried white and the other pink. Flower girls Linda Seifried and Betty Ann Hulme, wore white dotted swiss over powder blue taffeta, matching headpieces and carried baskets of pink carnations and white mums with pink, white and blue streamers.

Kenneth Hulme was his brother's best man, another brother Francis Hulme and the bride's brother Lloyd Seifried were ushers. A nephew Terrance Seifried was ring bearer. The Knights of Columbus Hall was decorated with multi-coloured gladioli and pink and white streamers for the reception. The bride's mother wore navy and white sheer, matching accessories and the groom's mother turquoise satin, navy accessories, and both had corsages of pink sweetheart roses.

For her going away outfit, the bride chose a navy suit with shawl collar, white accessories and a corsage composed of a white gardenia and red sweetheart roses. Guests attended from St. Catharines, Burlington, Kitchener, Preston, Hamilton, Port Erie, Ariss, Georgetown, Glen Williams and Guelph.
