

Farrar Brothers Are Scholarship Winners

For the second year a student at Brampton High School has been awarded the Samuel Beatty scholarship.

The award, given to the most outstanding pupil in mathematics and science outside the city of Toronto, is in honour of University of Toronto chancellor Samuel Beatty.

Harry Farrar

In winning the scholarship, Harry Farrar, Terra Cotta, highlighted the annual commencement exercises at the school. Harry was also presented with four other awards from the Atkinson Foundation, University College, Canada Packers and the T. W. Martin prize.

Another son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Farrar, who established the famous Terra Cotta Inn when they emigrated from Canada a few years ago, was also a commencement prizewinner. Edward Farrar won the Mary Trimble prizes.

Edith Teramoto

Ralph Laidlaw

Two Norval students who received their schooling in Brampton were also award winners. Edith Teramoto won a Ryerson Institute scholarship and Ralph Laidlaw, a Brampton Teachers' Council bursary.

Members Choose Important Features of Farm Forums

On Monday, November 8th the first Forum broadcast was heard for this season. In the Guide the main features of a successful Forum were listed and members were asked which they considered the most important.

These features read thus: Understanding of Agricultural problems in all parts of Canada; Development of leadership; Neighbourliness and sociability; Development of a better informed community.

According to the few reports received these being noted for their brevity, most of the reports listed neighbourliness and sociability as No. 7, Nassagaweya thought this was the beginning of a successful Forum and leads to the development of the other features. Ligny Forum in one group favored neighbourliness and sociability in first place, but the second group placed development of a better informed community which they claimed gives one a better understanding of social and community projects and activities and broadens out into 4H clubs and Women's Institutes. Mt. Nemo, in giving neighbourliness and sociability first place, felt the other features were also important in order to have a successful Forum. Boyne Forum favored the development of a better informed community, the feature which has made their forum successful. In the Limestone Forum two groups were also of this opinion, while the third group decided neighbourliness and sociability had made their Forum successful.

In the (b) part of this question—Are there other important features not listed above? Boyne Forum claim they have tried to keep informed of their local councils and the school trustees' work and the growth in their own community. Mt. Nemo states another feature which is important for a successful forum is punctuality—all members should be on time for all the broadcasts. Limestone claimed that in the 12 years of continuous Forum activity they attributed their success to the plan of electing of officers by nomination committee in the spring and the regular rotation of officers each year. Also the fact each member is given the opportunity at public speaking in voicing the thanks and appreciation of members to host and hostess at each meeting. This gradually gives a member more confidence in hearing his own voice in public.

The second question—In what way has your forum worked with other groups in your community?

Mt. Nemo lists donations to the community park project, provided lunch and program for federation of agriculture meetings. Ligny forum cooperates with federation of agriculture, folk schools and women's institutes; S. S. No. 7 Nassagaweya forum—in cooperation with other forums in their township they sponsored the erecting of "no dumping" signs on the side roads of their township. Postville forum cooperated to raise funds for Red Cross drives and assisted Snider forum to raise funds which are used for community projects.
