Campaign Deserves Support

Efforts of members of Georgetown Fire Department to collect money for muscular dystrophy research should meet with a generous response from the public, when one realizes that these already busy men are adding one more chore as a civic contribution.

The firemen are cooperating with their provincial organization in this campaign, designed to raise funds which will be used to investigate cause and attempt to find treatment and cure for one of the modern world's most dread diseases.

The two dairies in town have offered to distribute literature and campaign envelopes to the various houses in town, and firemen will then visit each home to pick up the envelopes. This type of campaign does not call for anyone to stint themselves by donating more than they can reasonably afford. It should be one where each person giving a dollar or two will make a sizeable total.

By donating, we will be doing two things: helping a worthwhile cause and showing firemen that we appreciate their work, not only in the collection, but in the many things they do for the town.

No Tears Shed

Closing of the town dump in the park will draw no nostalgic sighs, either from residents of that district or from those who visit the park infrequently.

For as long as we can remember municipally, there have been delegations coming to council about rats, fumes from burning garbage or the aesthetic parallel of placing a garbage dump in the midst of the beautiful park setting.

Councils have tried to deal with the problem by moving the dump to another part of town, and by trying to find locations out of town limits, but with little success. Now garbage will be buried for good, both literally and figuratively, for the new landfill machine will reclaim waste land for parks and other public purposes, while getting rid of the unsightly collection of trash which we have been collecting in the park for decades.

People who might live in an area where the landfill machine will be used, are being asked to cooperate with council and not complain unless they have reason. The landfill process will cover the garbage every day, and there should be nothing offensive about locating it even in the midst of a residential section of town. For a start, however, until the experimental stage is over, it is council's plan to keep garbage as far removed as possible from human habitation.

Phone the Doctor First

A member of the local medical fraternity asked us some time ago to pass on a word of advice when an accident occurs.

People often become panicky, he says, and the first impulse is to put the victim in a car and rush him to the nearest doctor.

While this is an admirable reaction, it sometimes loses valuable time for doctors are not always in their offices, even during office hours. He cites one case where an accident case was taken to each of the five offices, and a doctor was located finally when the first office was visited a second time.

It is more practical, he says, for a phone call to be made first. If the doctor is in, he then knows what to expect and can make preparations. If he is out, it may be possible to locate him and have him back at the office, or if he is unavailable, another doctor can be called until one is located.

This saves time in the long run, and also avoids too much travelling around in a car, which might have further bad effects on the injured person.

The annual meeting of St. Stephen's Anglican Church Women's Auxiliary, Hornby, was held January 4th at the home of Mrs. Foster Brain with a splendid attendance. The meeting opened with singing of a hymn followed by scripture reading and prayers. The various officers gave their reports for 1954.
